Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Munger celebrated their china wedding—that twentieth anniversary. Their guests, about fifty in number, were confined almost exclusively to old residents of Fremont, Mr. and Mrs. Munger having lived here all the years of their married life. In extending the invitations no intimation was given that it was their wedding anniversary, but some suspecting friends found it was the presentation to the flost and hostess of an elegant Haveland china set. The occasion was an enjoyable one in every particular. When the guests departed for home, each was presented with a pretty souvener card, to which was
