

HIS ASCENSION CELEBRATED.

How the Enthroning of Bishop Scannell Will Be Observed Today.

WITH SONGS AND SWEET INCENSE.

Clergy Who Will Direct and Participate in the Solemn Ceremony—Line of Bishops—The Vicar General.

Rev. R. Scannell will be installed bishop of Omaha today at 10:30 o'clock in St. Philomena's cathedral. The clergy will move in procession from the parsonage to the cathedral. The installation exercises will be conducted by Vicar General Choka. At their conclusion, the installed prelate will be formally introduced to the congregation. Then will follow the reading of the epistle appointing the bishop to the diocese of Omaha, after which the clergy of the diocese will sing the episcopal ring. A prayer will then be said, after which the bishop may deliver a short allocution to the people.

The musical features will be rendered by the excellent chorus of the cathedral, aided by Salisbury's orchestra. The former will sing Cimara's "Grand Messe Musicale," to the accompaniment of the latter, the choir being under the leadership of Miss Annie Arnold, and the organ being under the hands of Miss Maggie Swift. This mass is one of the most inspiring in Catholic music. Its rendition on Sunday morning last was most favorably commented upon by all who heard it.

During the offertory will be introduced Cappocci's "Laudate Pueri," a most beautiful composition, which was rendered for the first time in this country in St. Philomena's cathedral.

The offertory part will be sustained by Lieutenant Kinzie, and the responses made by the ladies.

In the evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be pontifical vesters.

The Line of Bishops.

Thirty-one years have elapsed since the first Catholic bishop came to Omaha. There was little in the city at the time to encourage the missionary. The territory was sparsely settled, and while a fair proportion of the early pioneers were of the Catholic faith, there were still too few of them to justify the erection of a diocese and the appointment of a vicar apostolic to preside over it.

Nevertheless a sainted monk from the Trappist monastery at Dubuque was drawn from his cell at Mt. Melleray to assume the duties of the position. He was consecrated bishop on May 10, 1859, soon afterwards coming here and announcing himself as Bishop O'Gorman. The monks will remember his name with respect and affection.

Those were not the days of beautiful churches, palatial edifices and inspiring ceremonial. The poor vicar apostolic came unannounced among strangers and took up residence in a white house then located on the corner of Harney and Eighth streets, which had been surrendered to him by Thomas O'Connor, still of this city.

Omaha was dead. The Pike Peak excitement had drawn numbers of her resolute pioneers from her, and such a variety of them were stranded because of the wild-cat bank panic which characterized 1857. Yet they were not in despair, and as they waited for the apostolic missionary sixty-three years ago, they were waiting for the dawn of a new era.

The poor bishop smiled. He had no money with which to build a piteous shanty, much less a cathedral, and a cathedral upon the sandy grass-grown streets of Omaha would have been an absurdity. He had no money with which to build a piteous shanty, much less a cathedral, and a cathedral upon the sandy grass-grown streets of Omaha would have been an absurdity.

When Bishop O'Gorman assumed control of affairs, his territory included Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and Dakota. It was to this territory that he was appointed, and he was, in 1870, appointed. It was, however, later reduced because no living man could hope to travel over it regularly and survive the ordeal. Bishop Burke of Wyoming, a couple of other bishops of Montana and Idaho, while Bishop Henry of Nebraska, were to the part of the state of Nebraska lying south of the Platte river. The only territory which remained for the last years of Bishop O'Gorman's life was that lying north of the Platte river.

Of the work accomplished by that deceased prelate the Rev. R. Scannell cannot be overpraised. It is still fresh in the memory of every resident. The uniformed, however, have but to look about them for evidence of the faithful stewardship of these good prelates.

The Vicar General. Rev. Father Choka, pastor of St. Wenceslaus church, since the retirement from the state of Rev. R. A. Shaffel, S. J., has acted as vicar general, and since the death of Bishop O'Connor as administrator of the diocese. He has devoted himself to the duties of his office with great assiduity, readily adapting himself to the occasions which have required the exercise of varied talents. He has made himself known to the clergy and laity as a linguist, and has been able to understand the needs of the church, with its various nationalities, Italian and Polish as well as English, Irish and American worshippers.

As to who will be selected to fill this responsible position by Bishop Scannell cannot be imagined.

Not Cholera but Too Much 'Possum. "Never heard about my first and last case of Asiatic cholera?" asked Dr. Arthur Frost, a well known Richmond physician. "Well, it happened this way: Buck Ward, an acquaintance of mine, came to me one day, several years since, in a state of great excitement. 'Doc,' said he, 'I have discovered a genuine case of Asiatic cholera. You know that nigger old Bob Clayton, that used to work for me? Well, old Bob's got it, and got it bad. You want to hurry up, too, I tell you, or you'll see a regular epidemic in this town.'

"Of course this piece of information somewhat startled me. Back I knew to be a trifle eccentric, but as he was thoroughly reliable I determined upon prompt action in the matter. I then hurried to old Bob, who lived in a little shanty on the outskirts of the town. He was a thoroughly sick nigger, I assure you. He was groaning with pain, retching and vomiting up some black stuff that puzzled me considerably. There had been some talk of cholera that summer—it was then August—so I determined to call in my friend, Dr. Weisiger, for consultation. Old Bob was in too much pain, apparently, to tell me what he had been eating. "When Dr. Weisiger came he looked at my 'cholera patient.' 'This is what you call cholera is it?' he asked in a tone of sarcasm. 'Here,' he added, 'get me an emetic.' This was produced and the dose given to Bob. "It was really so. Old Bob had eaten a whole 'possum that morning, and his sickness was the natural result of his gluttony. The thing that puzzled me, though, was how old Dr. Weisiger ever discovered that fact. I found out afterward—that is, after I had been grieved almost to death by all of my medical friends. "Dr. Weisiger had seen old Bob working past his house early that morning with a dead 'possum under his arm. 'He easily inferred the rest.'

HAS PAID FOR THE WHISKY. The School Board Allows the Bill for the Pipe Warmer.

MOUNT & GRIFFIN'S BILL GOES BACK. School Site Selected—Some Condensation Decided Upon—The Plans for Kellom Building—Other Educational Matters.

Every member of the board of education attended the meeting last night. A report from the committee on buildings and property was submitted recommending that the proposition of M. Hitchcock to sell lots 10, 11, 12 and 13, block 15, in Hitchcock's addition for $500 to be used as a site for the Clifton Hill school building be accepted. The report was laid over.

Then the coal bill, over which the committee on heating and ventilation and Mount & Griffin have been disputing for some time, came up again. Along with it came the bill for repairing pipes that were frozen and burst. The jug of whisky worth cost $2.25 was also referred to in the discussion.

The coal bill was resubmitted to the committee on claims and the bill for repairing the burst pipes, including the price of the jug of whisky, $2.25, was allowed.

Mr. Poppleton from the committee on teachers' reports reported that the committee had considered the matter of employing additional teachers and had agreed to recommend that one teacher be employed for each of the following schools: Center, Long, Lake and Walnut Hill, and that the superintendent condemn the Cass street school so as to do away with the services of one teacher, thus rendering the election of only three teachers necessary for the present.

On motion Mr. Martin the committee on buildings and property was authorized to accept the plans for the Kellom school submitted by Messrs. Bell & Berth; off, providing they are found satisfactory and that bids can be secured for the erection of this building at the price guaranteed by the architect. The resolution also authorizes the secretary to advertise for bids when the contract has been closed with the architects by the committee. No bids will be received for this school building except those for a complete building. The board voted to rent one additional room at Center school and one at Lake school.

Mr. Smyth offered a resolution to authorize the proper committee to rent an additional room at Walnut Hill. A dispute arose between Mr. Martin and Dr. Gibbs as to the comparison between Omaha and other large cities with reference to the number of pupils per teacher in the schools. Mr. Martin held that Omaha had a smaller number of pupils per teacher than any of them. The average number of pupils per teacher in Omaha is about thirty-five and in many other cities it is as high as forty-five.

The following were employed as assistant teachers: Miss Helen Lloyd, Miss Hallie M. Squires, Miss Lydia Bruchart.

Decidedly Beneficial. The benefit tendered Prof. Bonfield at Germania hall last evening by the Omaha Turnverein was a huge success in every way but a financial one, although a fair sum was realized at the door.

Ladies and children were admitted free, and a large number of them were present, but the sterner sex was not very numerous. An interesting athletic contest was given, interspersed with selections by Tiele's orchestra. All of the classes took part, and every number, from the acrobatic feats of the older pupils to the cute drills of the little ones, was loudly applauded. Fritz Fuhrhaug gave a fine exhibition of club swinging.

for them. After six months' working with an operator of this sort the receiver could describe him almost to a positive exactness without ever having seen him or heard him described.

Such is the case with such a variety of slang. This is easily accounted for. The men in New York and San Francisco communicate all the latest phrases to Chicago, from which point Galveston, Denver, New Orleans and Ogden receive the "new talk," by the means of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Richmond and Boston acquire their stock from New York. In this way a bright saying heard by an operator in New York is repeated the world over the same day, as the cable operators are quite as slangy as the rest of the craft.

Agricultural Notes. There seems to be a decided reversion of feeling against the practice that has so long obtained of breeding immature sows. One point in favor of breeding old sows is that if properly cared for they will bring forth two good litters a year.

It is always profitable for the farmer to have a good flock of fowls on his place, but with these, just as with any other live stock, it is the best sort that pays best. Blooded fowls and blooded cattle are all in the same line, and one will pay as well in proportion for the increased cost as the other.

The Rural New Yorker method of potato culture—deep planting, with subsequent level culture—has been tried in Alabama, with the result of obtaining yields averaging 33 per cent higher than from other methods. The hilling up of potatoes is without some or reason, and the practice should be allowed to fall rapidly into disuse.

It pays to grow turkeys, although they require rather more care than hens. As soon as the warm days come they grow restless, and will want to be off with their broods. The farmer must be on his guard, as they will often fail to return at night, and is disastrous to the young fowls in wet or inclement weather. Turkey poulters are the most tender and sensitive to wet and cold of any of our domestic fowls, though when fully grown they become the hardiest of all.
