EXPERTS CONDEMN THE WHOLE JCB

Result of the Coroner's Investigation Into the Fatal Accident at the Sunday Night Paxton Hotel Fire.

The inquest to determine the cause of death of Captain Carter of No. 2 hose company, who received fatar injuries at the Paxton fire, was commenced yesterday afternoon at Heafey's undertaking rooms.

The jury comprised Messrs. J. P. Hansen, Prof. M. E. Mueller, Dennis Ryan, H. L. Maivin, Ernest Halven and P. C. Heafey. The friends of Captain Carter and the men injured at the fire were represented by Hon. W. C. Connell, and J. B. Kitchen, proprietor of the Paxton, was represented by Mr.

George E. Pritchett.

The first witness examined was Peter Mc-Guire, one of the injured men. He testified that his company, No. 2, was at the scene of the fire and had water on it in less than five minutes after the alarm sounded. The witpess turned on the water at the fire plug and then ran to the place where his comrades were. A ladder had been placed in position reaching to the window in the third story, which had been broken. By direction of Captain Carter the men played on the window, from which smoke was issuing, and then started to ascend the ladder. Mulvihill was first with the nozzle of the hose, Downs was next and the witpess was third. Carter stood at the foot of the ladder. The witness had only ascended a short distance when someting struck him and he knew nothing more for some time. There was no noise of other intimation that the wall was going other intimation that the wall was going cross-examination the witness stated On cross-examination the witness stated that water was thrown on the window for a few seconds only before they started up the ladder. It was not more than five or six minutes after the alarm when the wall fell.

On redirect the witness was positive that the fire could not have been burning long enough to have heated the wall. With a good wall there would have been no trouble. The wall there would have been no trouble. The witness stated that he had examined the wall since the accident, and had found it only eight inches thick. The only part which fell was that above the floor of the third story.

was that above the floer of the third story.

J. J. Ormsby, a member of No. 1 hose company, was the next witness. He had assisted in placing the ladder in position. It was a twenty-eight foot ladder and rested egainst the window siil. The witness ascended the ladder and knocked in the window and slid quickly to the ground. During the time he was sliding to the ground the men of No. 2 company were throwing water. men of No. 2 company were throwing water on the window. As soon as he reached the ground they started to ascend the ladder with the hose and he started after another ladder. He had not gone over twenty feet when the wall fell. It was not over eight minutes after the alarm when the wall fell. The witness put his hand on the window when he broke it and it was scarcely warm he was, therefore, jositive that the heat was not sufficient to cause the wall to fall. George C. Whitlock, the city building in spector, was the next witness called. He testified that he had examined the wall. The portion which fell was about sixteen feet square. It was an eight-inch wall and was only one-story high, resting on the second story of the old Herald building, which was story of the old Herald building, which was a twelve-inch wall. The original building had three stories on the north end, and this wall had been erected on the south end of the building. It was not joined or "bonded" to the north end of the wall, but was merely built up against it and was held in position by the joists in the ceiling and the anchors. The witness' theory was that the fire had followed the steam pines above the ceiling and Ane witness' theory was that the fire had followed the steam pipes above the ceiling and had burned off the ends of the joists, causing the ceiling to fall and pushing the walls out. In the opinion of the witness the wall was never stable nor secure, and he considered it flangerous. In fact, the whole building had been condemned and he had no faith in it at all. If the wall had been twelve inches in thickness and properly secured the witness thickness and properly secured the witness was of the opinion that there would have been

Charles D. Cox, pipeman on the No. 3, shemical, followed, Mr. Whitlock on the stand. He testified that he took the chemical pipe into the kitchen and played upon the ceiling and walls. Captain Windom called him out and sent him to attend to the chemical. While at the engine he heard some one shout that No. 2 men were under the wall, He rushed in and dragged a man out, who proved to be Thomas Downs. The falling of the wall was the first he knew of the fire being above the ground floor. The brick which fell were not warm when he pulled Downs out. Cox said that the wall fell in about five or six minutes after the alarm was sent in. George W. Tillson, city engineer, testified that he had examined the walls after the fire. He thought the wall had been poorly con-structed and that poor material had been put into it. Witness thought the wall insufficlent in thickness and dangerous.

Mr. J. B. Kitchen testified that he was the owner of the property now and at the the wall was constructed. He said that when the addition was made he left the matter almost entirely with J. F. Coots, the contractor who did the work. Witness thought the wall was in good condition, and as good as when built five years ago.

Chief Galligan testified that he was at the fire about nine minutes after the alarm was sounded. The first orders he gave were for the men to enter the building, but when he found the wall had fallen ordered them out again. There was no fire to amount to any thing when the wall fell out.

The chief said that if it had not been for the cross sections on the second floor that the whole wall, clear to the alley, would have fallen. Witness considered the wall dangerous and poorly constructed. The chief closed his testimony by saying that a good gust of wind without any fire would have knocked the wall down.

J. F. Coots, the contractor, testified that he built the wall in the spring of 1886. That the carpenter and brick work was well done and good material used. He also said that every precaution had been taken to make the addition perfectly sate. The witness said he bad been a builder for thirty-three years, and this was the first time such a thing had happened case was then given to the jury, who, after debating nearly an hour, returned a yerdict to the effect that M. J. Carter came to his death through the falling of the wall, and recommended that the grand jury investigated to the state of th tigate as to who is criminally liable for his PITTSBURG, Pa., April 16.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-Some days ago Dave Barr, a well known saloonkeeper of this city, challenged a rival named Tom Dorsey to fight a duel. The latter promptly accepted, but on the way to the West Virginia state line Barr conveniently fell into the river and was half drowned, thus preventing the duel. Heavy Rains Cause Serious Damage at Ingerselt.

INGERSOLL, Ont., April 16-[Special Telegram to The Bee.]-Owing to the heavy rains a portion of this town is seriously flooded by an overflow of the mill stream. The west wall of the Campbell block was undermined by the water and fell with a terrific crash. The stock of James McIntyre, a furniture dealer, was carried away by the floods. The coffins formed a dismal procession floating down the stream. All efforts to save the stock were ineffectual owing to the high water and the rapidity of the stream.

The old bear bristled up and snarled, and Oscar was so badly frightened that he threw down the sack, took a back track, and didn't stop running till he reached the house of his sister, more than a mile and a half from the spot. Her husband away, and her Oscar stayed around the house for two hours or so, he saw Andrew Dunham coming up the road with an axe on his shoulder, and he ran out and told him about the bears. Dunham is an old bear-slayer. He followed Oscar to the spot where the bears had been seen. They found the remains of the flour sack and a few of the dried apples lay on the ground, but the old bear and her cub were not in sight.

Dunham tracked them to the creek where the mother bear had evidently slaked her thirst. Then she had waddled along the west bank of the stream, and inside of an hour Dunham got a glimpse of her. She was all bloated up and she could hardly walk when he first saw her. The cub was whining at her side, but she seemed to pay no attention to it. At last the old bear lay down, and Dunham, who had been getting closer all the time, ran up and grabbed the cub. The mother bear snorted, growled, and made a lungo toward Dunham when she heard her cub squeal, but she was unable to chase nim. She rolled over on her kicked and sprawled about, and kept on roaring. The dried apples had been too much for her, Dunham said, and, not caring to kill her, he kept the cub and left her there to get over her spree. Always have an eye out for the man who grieves over the worship of Mammon; ten to one he would chattel mortgage his furniture the day before shipping it to California.

Division Superintendent Blickensderfer Said to Be Slated-Changes in the Train Service-Railroad Notes and Personals,

The old familiar figure of Ed Dickinson is expected to appear in Omaha at any time, the probability being that he will report for duty about May 1. It is understood that his title will be that of assistant general manager but the amount of salary ne is to receive is, at present, a mystery. It is known, however, that he refused an offer of $12,000 per annum from another road and the opin-ion prevails that his salary with the Union Pacific is in that immediate neighborhood.

The impression prevails very generally that Mr. Dickinson's coming will be followed by a general cutting-off of heads, but there seems to be no great cause for alarm. That there will be some changes there can be no doubt, but they will be mainly confined to minor positions. It is a foregone conclusion that there will be an immediate change in the office of the superprepadent of the New York Confine the office of the superintendent of the Ne-braska division. The strained relations which have existed between Mr. Dickinson and Mr. Blickensderfer would render it im-possible for the latter to remain in the service of the road.
