MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE. ]-Today's game between Minneapolis and Omaha, while exciting and marked by some phenomenal plays, was saffron hued. The fielding on both sides was ragged and neither pitcher can take unto himself any considerable credit for his work. The only point on which the locals can pride themselves is that they batted out and won a game that appeared to Shugart played a great game at short, but took no part in the stick work further than to get to first on an error.

Only nine hits were made off Bartson, the ex-"Chicago pirate" pitcher, but he was very free with bases on balls, and hit Larry Twitchell twice.

Long Mr. Earl played a most peculiar game at third, and was alternately hissed and cheered by the fickle throng. He made three errors and the bleachers howled for "Miller." He made five clever assists and a put out and was cheered. But it was when his long two-bagger in the seventh put victory in sight that the 25-cent patrons of the game decided to let him play through the remainder of the game:

Hengle made the motion which Earl seconded in that "lucky seventh." Both were two-baggers, and the crowd went wild as they saw the victors fall behind in the race. Eiteljorg contributed the two runs which Minneapolis counted in the second by watch-ing Shugart's pop-up fly while it fell within a few feet of him. a few feet of him.

Other members of the Omaha team did their best to help the locals win, but when two cheesy errors and a nit in the fourth failed to result in runs, then the Nebraskans started out to win for themselves. But they were cut off, however, by the timery hitting of Hengle, Earl and McQuaid.

A long running catch by McQuaid, a con-tortion act by Earl, and Shugart and Walsh's work at short were the features of Manager Charley Cushman never closed his eyes last night, trying to work out some scheme whereby the Brewers could defeat the Senators. He changed the batting order in the hope that it might have the desired result, but all to no purpose. Lincoln went out to win and win she did. The home team as usual took the lead up to the fifth inning, but after that was never "in it." The visitors smashed out sin gles and doubles whenever a hit was needed about as they pleased. O'Day was knocked out of the box in the third inning and Burkett put in, who finished the game in good style, Stafford taking Burkett's place in left field. The patting on both sides was of the slugorder, Dalrymple making a home run and a single, while Raymond carried off honors for Lincoln, both in batting and fielding. In the fifth ne made a couple of phenomenal stops of what seemed safe hits. Burkett took the crowd by storm with his usual brilliant fielding. At the gait Lincoln is going now, its dol-lars to doughouts they beat Milwaukee four

The home club scored as follows: In the first a base on balls, a sacrifice and two singles netted one run. In the third a base on balls, two singles, a double and a home run netted three more. A base on balls and two singles tied the score in the fourth. Two errors, a single and double were responsible for three more in the fifth. For Lincoln two errors and four singles were responsible for four tallies in the first. A base on balls, a steal and two sacrifice hits scored Cline in the second. Lincoln took the end in the seventh, scouring five runs on a base on balls, two errors, two singles, a double and triple. In the eighth they pounded Vackery all over the field. Beaten by the Bleachers. Stoux Crrv, In., May 7 .- It was ladies' day at the ball grounds today and about twelve hundred people turned out to see the home team lose the second game with Denver Extremely high wind, dust and sun made good playing impossible. The game lay largely in the hands of fortune and the bleachers. The latter came near winning it for Sioux City in the eighth when they rat-tled Fournier so badly that the home team ored seven runs. Weak batting and three stly fielding errors lost the game. Score;

King Kel's Circus Game at Postor

Provokes Much Merriment Boston, Mass., May 7.-Today's game at the Congress street grounds between the Kelly gang and the Heds was a grand contest, lasting eleven innings. In the last, with two men out and Seery on first, Kelly put the ball over the wall on the first ball pitched. It was a home run, but Kelly seeing that Seery had brought in the winning run commenced turning somersaults and handsprings, so this hit counts as a single.

Mains pitched for Cincounati, and Boston hit bim very hard up to the seventh, but after that they did not score a run. Tem Brown led the batting and made three tre-mendous triples in succession and two singles. Seery, Kelly, Johnston and Whitney batted hard. The Cincinnatis played a grand field-ing game and brilliant plays were made by Whitney, Canavan, Robinson and Johnston. Murphy caught finely, and Kelly nailed every attempt at stealing except once. # BEHRING SEA CONTROVERSY.

Another Note from Secretary Blaine to Paulicefote Made Public.

MODIFICATIONS SUGGESTED BY SALISBURY

Certain Ones in the Questions for Arbitration Which Do Not Wholly Meet the Views of the President.

WASHINGTON, May 7,-The following note in addition to the correspondence that has airendy passed in relation to the Behring sea controversy is made public, Mr. Blaine to Sir Julian Pauncefote:

Sir Julian Paunceiote:

Department of State, Washington, April 24, 1891.—Sir: The modifications which Lord Salisbury suggested in the questions for arbitration do not wholly meet the views of the president, but the president changes the text of the third and fifth in such a manner, it is hoped, as will result in an agreement between the two governments. While Lord Salisbury suggests a different mode of procedure from that embodied in the sixth question the president does not understand him actually to object to the question, and he therefore assumes that it is agreed. The six questions as now proposed by the president are as follows:

1. What exclusive jurisdiction in the sea now known as the Behring sea and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein did Russia possess and exercise prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

2. How far were these claims for jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and concoded by Great Britain?

3. Was the body of water known as the Behring sea included in the phrase "Pacificocean" as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, in the Behring sea were had and exclusively exercised by Russia after said treaty?

4. Did not the rights of Russian as to the jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in Behring sea east of the water boundary described in the treaty between the United States and Russia of March 30. 1837, pass unimpaired to the United States under that treaty?

5. Has the United States any right, and if so what right of protection or property in the fur seals frequenting the island of the United

5. Has the United States any right, and it so what right of protection or property in the fur seals frequenting the island of the United States in Behring sea when such seals are found outside the boundary of the three-mile

6. If the determination of the foregoing 6. If the determination of the foregoing questions shall leave the subject in such a position that the concurrence of Great Britian is necessary in prescribing regulations for the killing of the fur seal in any part of the waters of Behring sea then it shall be further determined, first, how far if at all outside the ordinary territorial limits it is necessary that the United States should exercise an exclusive jurisdiction in order to protect the seal for the time tiving upon the islands of the United States and feeding therefrom; second, whether a closed season (during which the

for the time fiving upon the islands of the United States and feeding therefrom; second, whether a closed season (during which the killing of seals in the waters of Bebring sea outside the ordinary territorial limits shall be prohibited) is necessary to save the seal ishing industry, so valuable and important to mankind, from deterioration or destruction, and if so, what months or parts of months should be included in such season and over what waters it should extend.

The president does not object to the additional questions respecting alleged damages to English ships proposed by Lord Salisbury if one condition can be added, namely, that after the issues of the arbitration are joined if the United Spates shall prevail all the seals taken by Canadian vessels during the period shall be paid for at the ordinary price for which skins are sold. This seems to the president to be the complement of Lord Salisbury's proposition, and ho doubts not that it will secure his lordship's assent. In the first paragraph of Lord Salisbury's dispatch of February 21 he makes, the following declaration: "It is now quite clear that the advisors of the president do not claim Behring sea as mareclausum," and indeed that they repudiate that contention in express terms.

Lord Salisbury's expression is put in such form as to imply (whether he so intended I know not) that the United States had hitherto been resting its gontention upon the fact that the Behring sea was a mareclausum. If that know not) that the United States had hitherto been resting its, gontention upon the fact that the Behring sea was a mareclausum. If that was his intention it would have been well for his lordship to specify wherein the United States ever made the assertion. The emphatic denial in my dispatch off December 17 last was intended to put and end to the iteration of the charges to climinate it from the current dis-cussion.

charges to climinate it from the current discussion.

Lord Salisbury complains that I did not deal with certain dividests written by Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Wellington, in 1822, which he had before quoted. If he will recur to the wenty-sixthrand twenty-seventh pages of my dispatch of December 17 he will observe that I specially dealt with these;
that I maintained, and, I think, proved from the text that there was not a single word in those protests referring to the Behring sea, but that they referred, in the language of the Duke of Wellington, of October 18, 1822, only to the lands "extending along the shores of the Pacific ocean from latifude 49 degrees to lattitude 60 degrees north."

In the first paragraph of Lord Londonderry's

In the first paragraph of Lord Londonderry' protest of January 18, 1822, addressed to Coun Lieven of Russia, he alluded to the matters in protest of January 18, 1822, addressed to Count Lieven of Russia, he alluded to the matters in dispute as "especially connected with the territory rights of the Russian crown on the northwest coast of America bordering on the Pacific ocean and the commerce and navigation of his imperial majesty's subjects in the seus adjacent thereto."

From these and other pertinent facts it is evident that the protests of Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Weilington had nothing whatever to do with the points in Issue between the American and British governments concerning the waters of the Behring sea. They both referred in different but substantially identical phrases to the territory south of the Alaskan pentisula bordering on the Pacific and geographically shut out from the Behring sea. I regret that my arguments on the point which Lord Salisbury considers of great importance should have escaped his lordship's notice. In Lord Salisbury's judgment the contention of the United considers of great importance should have escaped his lordship's notice. In Lord Satisbury's judgment the contention of the United States now rests wholly upon the ukase of 1871 by the Emperor Alexander II of Russia. The United States has at no time rested its argument solely on the ground mentioned, and this government regrets that Lord Sallsbury should have so apprehended the position as to limit its basis of right in Behring sea to the ukase of the year of 1821. The United States has, among other grounds, insisted that, recurring to any of its inherited and superior rights in Alaska, that this government has as full authority for going beyond the three mile line in case of proved necessity as Great Britain possesses. Two or three instances of the power which Great Britain exercises beyond the three mile limit have already been quoted, but have failed to thus far secure comment or explanation from Lord Salisbury. Another case can be added, which, perhaps, is still more to the point. In 1889—only two years ago—the British parilament enacted a law, the effect of which is fully shown by a map enclosed herewith.

[Note—The map referred to represents: triangular sheet of water with the aper formed by three small firths or bays. The great body of water is nameless on the map Across the base of the triangle is a line of ex-great body of water is nameless on the map. Across the base of the triangle is a line of exclusion, measuring clinky-five miles, and the two sides are fifty-six miles and sixty-two long, making the total enclosed area 2,700 square miles.]

Far outside the three-mile line the parliament of Great Britain has attempted to control a body of water, situated beyond the northeastern section of Scotland, 2,700 square miles in extent, and to direct that certain nethods of fishing shall not be used within that great body of water under a prescribed penalty. It will be observed that the inhibition is not alone against British subjects, but against any person. There quote the pertinent sections of the parliamentary act in question:

"1. The fishing hoard may, by by-law or by-laws, direct that the methods of fishing known as beam trawling and otter trawling shall not be used within and otter trawling shall not be used within all drawn from Duncan's bynead, in Caithness, to Rattray Point, in Aberdeenshire in any area or areas to be defined in such by-law, and may from time to time make, alter any revoke by-laws for the purposes of this sertion, but no such by-law shall be of any visibity until it has been confirmed by the sorretary of Scotland. Any person who uses any such method of fishing in conteasention of any such by-laws shall be, liable on conviction under the jurisdiction of Scotland to a fine not exceeding £5 for the first offense and not exceed to be set in contraven mentioned.

If Great Britain way thus control an are of 2,700 square miles of ocean on the coast of 2,700 square miles of ocean on the coast of Scotland why magnet the United States prescribe a space around the Pribyloff islands if which similar prohibitions may be enforced. The following would be the needed legislations of the collowing would be the needed legislations. The following would be the needed legislation for such a purpose by congress, and it is but a paraphrase of the act of purliament: "The fur seal board may by by-l.w or by-laws direct that the methods of sealing known as spearing, or harpooning, or with fire arms shall not be used within a line drawn from the shores of the Pribyloff islands, sixty miles in the Behring sea, and said board may from time to time make, after and revoke by-laws for the purpose of this section, but no such by-law shall be of any validity entil it has been confirmed by the secretary of the treasury.

"Any person who uses any method of sealing in contravention of such by-laws shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding flable for the first offense and not exceeding flab for the second or any subsequent offense, and every spear, harpoon or firearm attempted to be used in contravention of any such by-law be seized and destroyed or otherwise disposed of as said fur seal board may direct. It must not escape observation that the area of water outside the three mile line on the coast of Scotland whose control is assumed by Great Britain is as large as would be found inside a line drawn from Cape Cod to Portland harbor on the New England coast." Lord Salisbury reasserts his contention that the words "Pacific ocean" at the time of the treaty between Russian and Great Britain did include Rehring sea. Undoubtedly the Pacific ocean includes Rehring sea. in the same sense that the Atlantic ocean includes the full of Mexico, and yet it would be regarded as a very inacurate statement to say that the Mississippi river flows into the Atlantic ocean. I think Lord Salisbury falls to recognize the common distinction between the "Atlantic ocean" and "the waters of the Atlantic." While the Mexican gulf is not a part of the Atlantic ocean, it would, I am sure, compare with the general usage to say that the Bearing sea is not technically a part of the Pacific ocean. It undoubtenly belongs to the waters of the Pacific ocean. The English channel was not ordinarily to be understood as included in the term "Atlantic ocean." One would not say that Dover or Calais is on the coast of the Atlantic ocean. and yet clearly the English channel belongs to the waters of the Atlantic ocean. The English channel was not ordinarily to be understood as included in the term "Atlantic ocean." One would not say that Dover or Calais is on the coast of the Atlantic ocean. and yet clearly the English channel belongs to the waters of the Atlantic.

In point of fact, therefore, according to the usage of the word there is no dispute of any consequence between the two governments in the regarning on the one hand and the sea of Oknotsk the sea of Kamselatka and the ley sea on the other, and so long as Russin, drew that distinction it must apply to and must absolutely decide all the connection between the two countries as far as the waters of the Behr ng sea are concerned.

To discuss this point further would in the opinion of the president contribute nothing of value to the general contention. In the opinion of the president contribute nothing of value to the general contention to the scizof value to the general contention. In the opinion of the president, Lord Salisbury is strongly in error in making the following statement: "nor they (the advisors of the president) rely as a justification for the seizure of British ships in the open sea upon the contention that the interests of the seal fisheries give to the United States government any right for that purpose which according to international law it would not otherwise possess. The government of the United States has steadily advocated just the reverse of the position which Lod Salisbury has imputed to it. It holds that the ownership of the islands upon which the seals breed; that the habits of the seals in regularly resorting thither and rearing their young thereon; that their going out from the islands in search of food and regularly going thereto and all the facts and incidents of their relation to the islands qive to the United States a property interest therein; that this property interest was claimed and exercised by Russia during the whole period of its sovereignty over the lands and waters of Alaska; that England recognized this property interest so far as recognization is implied by abstaining from all interference with it during the whole period of Russia's ownership of A and during the first nineteen years of overeignty of the United States It is yet. Tetermined whether the law-less intrusion of Canadian vessels in ISB and subsequent years has changed the in wand equity of the case therefore prevailing.

Will Probably Be Recalled for His Lack of Respect. WASHINGTON BUREAU THE BEE, )

513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7. "In consular and diplomatic positions the slightest slip of the tongue or misstep will set one in serious trouble," said an attache of the department of state in speaking today of the incident which occurred the other night at the official dinner given in Vancouver, B. C., at which United States Consul Ewing attracted widespread attention and not a little indignation by refusing to drink the toast offered to Queen Victoria's health. "Ewing," continued the diplomat, "should have responded to the proposition both as an official duty and a courtesy to those he honored with his presence. Unless he intended to respect the crown his hosts respected he should not have attended the dinner. I have no doubt that the British foreign office will ask for Ewing's recall, and should it do so, of course he will come back. We could and would not afford a refusal of such a request, despite the fact that Mr. Ewing is a nephew of Senator John Sherman

Crops Along the Great Northern. Sr. Pact, Minn., May 7.-The Great Northern has received crop reports from 361 points on its main line and branches. With only a single exception the reports are of a most favorable nature and indicate an abundant harvest. The acreage of wheat is about 15 per cent greater than last year on an average. In the Red River valley and Bot-tineau county the prospects for a big yield of wheat are better than in 1887, the year of the great harvost. ## TIME TO DROP THE BUSINESS,

An Italian Opinion on the Outcome at New Orleans.

New York, May 7 .- Regarding the grand jury report in New Orleans, M. Contencin, president of the Italian chamber of commerce in this city, says: "I do not consider tha the character of the men, their past lives and records, criminal or otherwise, has anything to do with the question over which Mr. Blaine and the Marquis Rudini have been bickering I think they had better drop the matter now I think we had all better drop it. That is the best thing that can come out of an everlast ingly bad business. One crime does not jus tify another and respect of law is never in-culcated by an exhibition of lawlessness. New Orleans was disgraced when the assassins of Hennessey were not convicted; all was disgraced when her mobs where allowed to become murderers, though the authoritie had plenty of time and ample power to inter fere and prevent the crime had they been disposed, and now the city of New Orleans is disgraced again by the action of her grand jury, which has not had the saving grace to come out and say, as the civilized world has said. These lynchers were murderers; they were not good citizens and they have robbed our city of its fair fame the world over.

MORE TALK THAN TRUTH.

Wheat in Kansas and Nebraska in Splendid Condition.

Archison, Kan., May 7 .- J. W. Orr, as sistant general attorney of the Missouri Pacific, who has traveled extensively this week in the western part of Kansas and Nebraska, says that there is more talk than truth in the reports of damaged wheat. He says that the prospect was never better and the farmers never more hopeful. Here and there the Hessian fly is working, but doing very little damage. Occasionally there are spots of yellow wheat in draws or other low places where water has stood and killed the But these places are an inconsiderable part of the vast area of the country that is planted in wheat, and with seasonable weather until harvest time the yield will be unprecedented in the history of the two states.

Pinkerton's Detectives Have as Yet Made No Startling Discoveries.

COMPARISONS OF THE HANDWRITING

Samples of Dr. Graves' Chirography Said to Resemble the Inscription on the Bottle That Held the Whisky.

Boston, Mass., May 7 .- A letter written by Dr. Graves about a year ago to a resident of Braintree, and still preserved, was compared today with the fac simile inscription on the bottle received in Denver by Mrs. Barnaby. The first feature to attract attention is that the writing, as a whole, bears unmistakable evidence of baving been done with a stylographic pen, and it bears out the opinion of Mr. Worrell in regard to the signature of Dr. Graves' taken from the hotel register at the Gilsey house, that it also looks as if written by such a pen. As in the case of the signature of the hotel register and the inscription on the bottle, the writing in this letter from Dr. Graves to a patient in Braintree shows not the slightest shade, and there is that general similarity of slope and style of the hand-writing in the three instances noted in the comparison at Denver and described in the dispatches. But there is this particular difference: While according to the Denver dispatch every "r" in the inscription is in one style and every "r" in the signature in another, both styles of this letter appear in Dr. Graves' epistle to Braintree. The other Dr. Graves' epistle to Braintree. The other noticeable features are these: All the letters 'e,' 'y,' 'e' and 'k,' which occur in both the missives and the inscription, are of different styles, particularly the 'e' and 'k.' There is a resomblance though not especially marked, between the "i" and "s" as well as in the "p" and the ending of the letter "d." But in the whole comparison of the handwriting there is nothing so strikingly impressive to the ordinary observer as the single fact that the handwriting in the Braintree epistle, that on the hotel register and that in the inscription all appear to have the unmis-takable appearance of work done with a stylographic pen.

Dr. Graves made most of his investments for Mrs. Barnaby through the Boston bankers, Paine, Webber & Coat of No. 20, Devonshire street, who placed about $50,000 for him, he paying them in checks on Providence banks. Mr. Paine says that the doctor bought bonds and was always careful. His purchass have turned out well and Mr. His purchases have turned out well and Mr. Paine adds that the firm would very willingly take back at the purchase price everything they sold him.

It has been learned that Superintendent Cornish of Pingerton's national detective agency has been for over a week conducting operations in the Barnaoy murder mystery that may result in conclusions different from those anticipated by the public. I will say that I am told the official analysis of the contents of the bottle received in Denver may prove that the same was originally filled with good whisky and that the poison was mixed with it and not with a chemical fluid imitation of whisky, as has been stated. We have some interesting material to work on, but understand em-phatically there has been nothing as yet developed that throws well founded suspicion on any one, not even Dr. Graves."
