LOWLY SCORES A POINT.

The Lincoln Mans' Suit Against the Burlington.

Judge Henry C. Caldwell, United States circuit judge, has handed down an opinion on the motion to remand the case of Thomas W. Lowry, the grain man of Lincoln, versus the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad company, to the state court.

The defendant asked to have the case remanded to the state courts, alleging that the case should be tried there and that the United States court had no jurisdiction.

The opinion of the court quotes several sections of the interstate commerce act, showing that the action is one arising under that act, and might have been originally brought in the circuit court, thus making it a removable cause.

Owing to the fact that the parties to the suit are not agreed upon the construction of the act of congress, the court holds that it has jurisdiction, and the motion to remand is overruled.

At that hour a volume of smoke burst from the door of 312 North Sixteenth street, in the store occupied by the New York five and ten-cent bargain company, and was quickly followed by an alarm of fire.

The fire department promptly responded to the alarm. When the hose companies arrived on the ground the entire block was filled with smoke which poured in dense clouds from the open windows of each floor and made the location of the fire difficult to determine.

The stock was almost a total loss. It was valued at $7,000 and insured for $3,000. The furniture store of Chamberlain, Anderson & O'Connell, adjoining, was filled with smoke. They place their loss at $3,000.

Smoke reached the lodge room on the third floor and damaged the furniture to some extent.

The loss on the building is fixed at $1,000, covered by insurance. How the fire originated is a mystery, but it is thought some careless person threw a cigar stump into a pile of waste paper in the rear of the room, thus starting the blaze.

KILLED BY A MOTOR.

A Boy Meets His Death in Jumping From a Car.

Late yesterday afternoon Johnny Hayward, a boy seven years of age, was killed by a motor at Thirty-fifth and Leavenworth streets.

The lad was jumping off and on the passing cars when he was caught by one and received a blow on his head that resulted in almost instant death.

The lad was hastily conveyed to his home, at the corner of Thirty-fifth and Jackson streets by a couple of street cleaners who had witnessed the accident.

Efforts were made to resuscitate the child, but life was extinct. The face was not cut or bruised, only a small blue mark on the white skin near the left temple where the motor car step had struck him.

Motorman R. H. Waring, living at 1014 Cumming street, was in charge of the car at the time. He stated that small boys are in the habit of jumping on and off the cars in that vicinity and that the accident was unavoidable.

Johnny was a very pretty boy, and the oldest of four children. The child's father is a carpenter and is somewhere in Texas, where he went to look for work.

The street railway company has made arrangements to bury the child. An inquest will be held at Healy & Healy's at 11 o'clock today.
