

SHADOW OF THE GALLOWS.

Its Bomber Fall Rests Lightly on Murderer Albert Hauenstein.

HE WILL STEP OFF THE TRAP TODAY.

Arrangements for His Execution—How His Last Days Were Spent—Thinks He Has Secured Complete Forgiveness.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., April 21.—(Staff Correspondence of THE BEE.)—The respite of thirty days allowed by Governor Boyd to Albert E. Hauenstein, found guilty of the murder of Hiram Ruten and William Ashley of Ruten Valley, Custer county, on November 1, 1888, expires tomorrow.

The reprieve in question was first announced by telegram to Sheriff Jones of this county on the morning of April 17 last. That official was not satisfied with the notification and immediately telegraphed the governor for more particulars.

It may be necessary to state, because the allowance of the respite has been misunderstood, that the delay was granted on the statement of Judge Hanor of Hauenstein being examined with respect to his alleged insanity and that he should not be executed until after the jury should have reported in the case.

Effect of the Reprieve. It was nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon before Sheriff Jones had satisfied himself of the governor's action.

The verdict of the jury adjudging Hauenstein a new man was the accused. He abandoned the tricks he had resorted to for the purpose of convincing the people of his insanity.

The evening preceding the day upon which he was to have been executed, he requested the sheriff to tell the Catholic pastor of this city, Rev. Father Healey, that he wished to be married.

Everybody Likes Him Now. Since that time a change has come over the mood. He spends the greater part of the time reading religious works, in quiet meditation and prayer.

Visit to the Gallows. It was late when THE BEE correspondent reached the jail. The latter is situated in the basement of the court house.

I'm Made a Confession. At midnight Hauenstein sent for THE BEE reporter and in the presence of Charles Parkington and the spiritual adviser of the accused, Rev. T. P. Haley, made the following admission.

When I'm Murdered. "On the fatal day Ruten and Ashley came to my house, without authority, to search for a few things that had been taken from the school house.

Securing the Rope. The matter of supplying ropes for the hanging of murderers is not as easy as most people might suppose.

HER ATTORNEYS ELATED WITH HOPE.

Sensational Feature of McFarland's Third Confession—Claims to Have Made a Former Assault on the Murdered Man.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 21.—(Special to THE BEE.)—Mrs. Sheedy's attorneys feel elated and express the belief that it is almost unnecessary to attempt to offer any testimony in defense.

Hauenstein Talks. "I have not now any statement which I want to make without consulting my spiritual adviser.

Hauenstein's Crime. There is scarcely any doubt that an attempt will be made to show that Hauenstein was provoked to commit the murder and that a certain attorney in town advised him to carry a weapon.

Information upon this point was sought today by THE BEE. It was ascertained that Hauenstein's victims being her brother and the other son.

Charles M. Carpenter, the saloonkeeper, was the next witness. He testified that he was at the Sheedy residence the night Mrs. Sheedy was assaulted.

Cross examination: "Dr. Hart called me over to the Sheedy residence on the night of the murder.
