from Watty's aggregation already this sea-

Nothing very discouraging about that, is there!

Eporgtle occupied the points for the locals and pitched with his customary effectiveness, while Cornelius McHale was thumped and punched until it would have been a difficult matter for his nearest relatives to have recognized him.

To begin with Cornelius presented Manager Dan with a base. He stole second and Donnelly's sacrifice advanced him to within ninety feet of home. His attempt to get there on Jocko's little push to O'Brien, however, proved abortive, for the big, husky Dutchman threw him out at the plate.

That was bad.

"Old Cy's" rap for a single had the effect of rekindling hope in the bosoms of the fans and when the Deacon, a moment later, planted one out in far left for a couple of cushions, and Jocko and Cyrus came ambling in they just parted their faces in one joyous shout.

Then the Commodore got his base on balls but Papa's out to Erastus Wright brought the Arctic explorers in. They were only allowed a few moments' rest, though Papa McCauley with the able as-sistance of Donnelly and Shannon, retiring the first three men up with the most pleasing celerity. Both sides were blanked in the second, but in the third Omaha garnered another brace of tallies.

Laroque threw the Professor out at first, but Jocko got in a hit. Then Sutcliffe lifted a high one to O'Rourke, Griffin got his base on four bad ones, and the Commodore jostled Cornelius for three sacks, scoring the tw runners. McCauley's out at first spoiled all further proceedings.

The Esquimaux never saw first, the tlannel-face Mr. McHale rustling his club through the summer winds three times in succession, and Papa caring for his two triends.

It was still another pair for the caracoling battery, but Minneapolis made no change. The Millers started out to win, but rank Lambs in the fourth. "Old Hoss" Miller toyed a triffe too long fielding by both sides and timely slugging by with Colonel Walsh's grounder, and the Colonel reached the first station in safety. Jorgtice arched one to Erastus, and resumed a recumbent position on the newly cropped sward in front of the bench. Walsh didn't like this and he got up on his toes and stole second, scurrying right on to third on Kid Baldwin's wild throw. Manager Dan boosted him in on a clever single, reaching third himself on Erastus' throw in to head off the lad with the terra cotta hair. The Pro-fessor and O'Hooligan followed with safe ones. Danny came in, too, and then they quit. Jocko and "Old Cy" being laid away in one coffin, with O'Brien and Laroque as the nall-bearers. In the fifth, after blanking the Lambs, Mr. Watkin's slaves made their first run, "Old Hoss" Miller being the hero that did it. After Hamburg's out he made a hit, and so did McHale and Reddy O'Rourke, and that's the story in a nutshell. In the next inning, again after shutting out the Shannon family, they lasscood No. 2, something after this fushion: The big, fat tuba player sat down on a high fly to Shannon, but Laroque made a single and Eitlejug wrapped up a couple of bases and presented them to the Kid and Major Limburg. On Miller's sacrifice to Twitch the gentleman from the town where Raymond jumped to came home. ded the scoring until the eighth, This when Walsh succeeded in making the cirwhen Walsh succeeded in making the cr-cuit a second time. O'Brien's error gave him first. Again he burgled second. Leti-jeorg got first on balls, and on Laroque's buuglesome handling of Manager Danny's drive, Joe scored. Immediately subsequent Shannon and Donnelly were doubled by nice work of O'Brien and Els In the ninth Cornelius became tired, probably from carrying that face of his around so long, and he just simply floated 'em over. Halligan hit him first-a single to left. Then Old Hoss Miller tried to knock a little dicke bird off of the right field fence with "Old Cy's" grounder, and Jocko crossed the pan Cyrus loped clear to see Then the Deacon pinked Cornelius while for another, and the Commodore hopped or him for his second three-sacker, Papa for double and Gortleepi for one labeled for first The result of this enfilade-I can't get out o the habit of using French-was live targe corputent runs, more than the Esquimau got in the whole game, In their half they doubled their score. MeHale looked so careworn and weary that Eddle sent him to first for nothing, and Erastus and Reddy flica out to the Deacon and the Commodore. "Give 'em a couple of runs, Idlejag. What's the matter wid ye!" yelled one of Eddle's South Eleventh street friends. And not wanting to disappoint any one, Eddie threw a straight one against Ely's bat and it bounced back safe, and another one of the same kind was given to O'Brien and he went Elv one better, and both men ahead of im ran over the plate and fell in a swoon in Watty's arms at the bench. with Germany.

LONDON, June 21 .- The position of the queen in English politics is usually supposed to be generally passive. In foreign politics she has been known, since the life of the prince consort threw some light upon the business of royaity, to be greatly interested, but with internal English politics she has hitherto been credited with interfering but little. At an opportune moment, when the conservatives' scheme of local self-government for Ireland is about to be contracted with Mr. Gladstone's home rule proposals, her majesty has permitted the publication of a confidential communication which she sent to he archbishop of Canterbury on the eve of another crisis in Irish political history-the introduction of the bill for the disestabilishment of the church in Ireland. The inference is that her majesty desires to make Archhishon Talt's memories the medium of divulging what her attitude then was with a view to the application of the information to present events. Her majesty did not approve of the disestablishment policy, but she accepted the decision of the country and the commons used her i.fluence to induce the lords on the

When the bill went in to the lords, the general expectation was that they would reject it and that another of those constitutional crists would arise which threaten the exis tence of the upper house as now constituted. The fate of the monarchy is so reasonably associated in the mind of her majesty with that of an hereditary upper house as to create alarm when the position of the latter appears

The queen wrote to the archbishop: "Considering the circumstances under which the measure has come to the house of lords the queen cannot regard without the greatest alarm the probable effect of its absolute re-ection in that house. Carried, as it has been by an overwhelming and steady majority through the house of commons, chosen expressly to speak the feeling of the country on the question, there were no reasons to pelieve that any fresh appeal to the people would lead to a different result. The rejection of the bill there would only serve to bring the two houses into collisio and so prolong a dangerous agitation of the subject.

These words, pregnant of application in he early future, are being quoted throughout by the liberal press as a proof in antici-pation that the queen, accepting the verdict of the country on home rule, will use all her power and personal influence to prevent the ords from opposing it.

It held over here for one day to give the citiits mammoth proportions. It was side-tracked at Ninth and Marcy streets and was clewed by not less than five thousand people loring the day. The great timber is 110 feet long and four feet square, and covers three flat cars, resting only, however, upon two of them. It rests upon two saddles, so arranged as to turn freely, in order to prevent any disaster while rounding a sharp curve. The stick is cov-cred with a huge tarpaulin, made expressly for it, but the ends are uncovered, and in two or three places the covering has been torn, either by design or accident, thus affording a satisfactory view of the fallen monarch of the forest. Every exposed part sides is covered with the pencil autographs of hundreds who have seen it, while a few have essayed to carve their names in the soft wood. Determined to make the monster of some utility while in Omaha, the switchmen pasted several of their large posters upon it, moouncing to all that their annual picnic would occur in the near future, and extending an invitation to everybody to attend. A general desire was manifested to secure

The age of the tree was discussed and a couple of clerks employed in an uptown es-tablishment concluded to forego Sunday school in order to find out how long the stick had been above ground. They scrutinized the rings very carefully and after half an hour of counting and calculation they announced that the veteran was 430 years old. There vas no one on the ground to dispute it.
