Wells Not to Blame.

Yesterday's dispatches contained an account of the arrest of B. M. Wells of the Judd-Wells investment company in Chicago, on the charge of disposing of the firms property for the purpose of defrauding the creditors. W. H. Kuepher, the assignee of the firm, was seen yesterday by a BEE reporter and gave a full explanation of the affair, setting Mr. Wells right in every particular.

"I appointed Wells my agent to take charge of the property of the firm in Chicago," he said. "Some of the firm's creditors went on to Chicago and tried to get possession of the property to satisfy their claim. I had no right to settle the claim under my instructions from the court, and Mr. Wells had no right to give up the property without instructions from me. I had ordered the lumber which was at the bottom of the controversy to be sent to this city, and the only thing for him to do was to send it according to my order. The arrest was evidently made for the purpose of bluffing Wells into paying off the firm, but it failed to work."

NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS.

District Court Will Consider the Ordinance for Fining Saloonkeepers.

LEGALITY OF THE MATTER TO BE TESTED.

Narrow Escape of Boatmen from Drowning—A Woman Under Bonds to Keep the Peace—Wells' Arrest Explained.

The city ordinance which gives the judge of police court power to impose a fine on the keepers of disorderly houses is to be given another whirl this morning in district court.

William Dilsaver was arrested about a week ago, charged with the maintaining of a disorderly house. He pleaded guilty before Judge McGee and was sentenced to pay a fine of $54.60, in default of which he was sent to the county jail to board the amount out with Sheriff O'Neill. It has long been a question whether the city ordinance authorizing proceedings of that kind is legal, and Dilsaver consulted Attorneys Dailey and Aylesworth as to the steps that should be taken. Yesterday afternoon the matter came to a head, and a writ of habeas corpus was sued out in district court for the release of Dilsaver.

The ground upon which the writ is asked for is the illegality of the ordinance. The attorneys claim that the city has no right to punish offenses of any kind except in so far as that right is given it by the statutes of the state. They further claim that there is no such thing as a disorderly house mentioned in the statutes, so that no law relating to the subject can be passed by the city. The question will be heard before either Judge Smith or Judge Deemer this morning at 9 o'clock, and the matter will be decided.

The city ordinance above referred to is to be tried to its utmost capacity in the next few months. Captain W. A. Hays was arrested several days ago on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, and he was fined $64.10 night before last at a session of the police court held for the special purpose of hearing his case. He at once gave notice that the case would be appealed to the district court. He has retained the legal services of George H. Hewitt, and the case will be pushed to the furthest limit. The outcome of the cases will be watched with great interest, from the fact that when Attorney P. E. Seabrook left the city the saloonkeepers and a good share of the business men of the city lay back and congratulated themselves that they would not be troubled any more by such proceedings. The fine system has been in vogue in all the principal cities of the state ever since the passing of the prohibitory law, but the question of its legality is one which has never been decided by the supreme court. Whichever way the case is decided this morning, it will be appealed to the supreme court, and thus a vast amount of litigation is likely to result from the opening up of the subject.

Proud of a Local Institution.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 23.—To the Editor of THE BEE: It has always been something of a mystery to me that the local newspapers, usually so prompt to praise and boom all local institutions, should overlook one of the greatest enterprises, not only in Council Bluffs, but in the entire west, when writing up the important improvements and enterprises of the city. I refer to the United States Masonic Benevolent association. It has only been in THE BEE that I have seen anything of late about this prosperous concern. Columns have been written about the magnificent six and seven story blocks, the motor lines, the parks, bridges, Chautauqua, Manawa and scores of other things that command more than local attention, but very little has been said in the local papers about this the largest and best known Masonic insurance society in the world. We must measure an enterprise by the extent and character of the business transacted and the amount of money received and paid out. By this measure all the other enterprises in the city dwindle into perhaps not insignificance, but into small proportions compared with the immense volume of business transacted by this association. Outside of the members of the order and the many beneficaries in the city and vicinity there are few people who realize that we have got right here in our midst one of the greatest concerns of its kind in the world, but if they would pause as they rush by that beehive of industry, the Masonic temple, they could hear from the street the incessant clicking of the flying keys of typewriters, the rush and clatter of messenger boys and clerks, and if they would pass just about the time the mail is gathered up for any of the trains they would see the postal clerks come to the big box at the lower end of the shute that leads from the mailing room and gather up the letters, not in a common delivery mail bag, but in a big government mail sack. If they would ask the two postal clerks who carry away the big sack about the number of letters daily taken from this single mail box they would learn that as high as 4,000 are often deposited by the Masonic people in a single day. If this would not give them a sufficient idea of the vast volume of business transacted a visit to the various departments where the young lady and gentlemen clerks are the pictures of concentrated energy, and a two-minutes chat with Secretary W. J. Jameson, who is a steam engine of energy himself, would force the conclusion that there is no other building in this part of the country whose walls surround a busier phalanx, or witness the pouring in and out of such a tide of business.

The unprecedented success of the association is due first and primarily to the plan upon which it is organized, furnishing life indemnity to Masonic brethren and their families at the lowest cost consistent with strict business principles, with a guarantee fund from each member that gives a financial standing and confidence that cannot be shaken. This guaranty fund has reached the immense sum of $130,000, and continues to grow with the same marvelous rapidity of the company itself. The interest on this fund will pay this year four of the regular death assessments. The company since it has been organized has paid out from its Council Bluffs office and through the Council Bluffs banks, over $40,000 to the widows and orphans of deceased Masons. The association makes a liberal contract with the assured, free from annoying restrictions. It does not purpose to give its members something for nothing, but guarantees to give each the worth of his money, and to pay in full such benefits the assured is entitled to under the terms of his certificates.

In answer to the demands of its patrons the association is issuing a $1,250 certificate upon proportionate rates of larger certificates. This is for the benefit of patrons who do not desire to carry the regular $2,500 certificates, which was formerly the smallest issued. It also enables the many whose confidence in the association, which was rock-rooted from the first and has been growing every day, to increase their insurance, making the limit $6,250 instead of $5,000. The more I look into the plan of this magnificent institution the better I am pleased with it, and the prouder I become of the fact that it is a Council Bluffs institution, organized by Council Bluffs men and brought to its present wonderful stage of development by Council Bluffs brains and energy.

The head of the association is Judge J. R. Reed, who has just been appointed chief justice of the United States court of private land claims, than whom there is not a man in the country with a cleaner record for honor and probity. All the other officers are gentlemen of equal integrity and high character. W. O. Wirt, first vice president and manager of the western department, is a gentleman whose ability as an insurance man cannot be questioned. Fred H. Brown, second vice president and manager of the eastern department with headquarters in Chicago, has an unsullied business record and the experience of twenty years as an insurance manager. There is not a better known man in Council Bluffs than Secretary and Treasurer W. J. Jameson and it is largely to his fertile brain and steam-pressure energy that the marvelous success of the association is to be attributed. He is the working member of the association and gets through with an avalanche of routine business every day that would paralyze an ordinarily constituted individual. He pulls off his coat and rolls up his sleeves when he comes into the office in the morning, but this is the only departure from his drawing room manners. Meet him when you will and he has a crushing grasp for your hand and a cheery smile that adds days to your life and makes you feel that there is something more than words in the brotherhood of man. Dr. T. B. Lacey, the medical director, stands at the top of his profession, and closely and critically examines every risk that is offered. There is not a man connected with the association who has not an unsullied reputation, and whose life has not compelled perfect confidence of all who know him. It is an institution that I am proud of, both as a citizen of Council Bluffs and as a Mason, confident that it is protecting my wife and babies better than any other agency can.

Fighting the Waves.

Bert Evans, Mike Kildare and Charles Evans had an experience at Lake Manawa yesterday morning that will last them the rest of the season. They were crossing the lake while a stiff breeze was blowing. They attempted to tack, when the rudder suddenly broke. The weight of the boat had been thrown upon the rudder, and the giving way of the support capsized the boat and sent the three occupants into the water head first. They were near the south beach when the accident occurred, and they at first thought they would be able to swim to the shore without much trouble, but the wind was from the south and a short trial convinced them that it would be flying in the face of providence for them to try to swim in that direction, and they turned about and struck out for the north shore. A young man named Thomas, who tends the boats saw their predicament and set out in a row boat to help them. After he had nearly reached the three swimmers, he too ran against the wind and capsized. He was so near the others, however, that they were able to reach the boat and climb on top, and in this way the luckless quartet drifted in to shore. There was nothing so very serious about the affair, but it is a little too soon yet for them to look at it in the light of a joke.

Put Under Bonds.

Mrs. Williams, the leader of the gang that has had some unpleasant notoriety during the past week or so because of the thieving that it has been alleged they are doing near the east end of the motor bridge, was arrested and taken before Justice Cones yesterday morning for a hearing on the charge of threatening to kill. Mrs. James Richardson, one of her neighbors, filed the information. Mrs. Williams was accompanied by the whole outfit that hangs out at her house, who came along to see that she got justice. Her case was heard by the justice, after which she was put under bonds in the sum of $200 to keep the peace. She gave the bond required and was released.

Mrs. James Spare had an experience with gasoline yesterday morning at her residence, 814 Avenue A. By the assistance of some of the neighbors the fire was extinguished, but not until her hands and face had been badly burned. Her injuries are not considered serious.

IN SOLEMN SESSION.

Men Who Practice "Special" Medicine Conferring.

Five or six professional-looking gentlemen with patriarchal beards drove up to the Paxton about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. They proceeded at once to the cafe, where they were closeted in secret session about half an hour, after which they all reentered the hotel lobby and dispersed. When approached by THE BEE reporter they were loth to give him any information. After fighting shy of questions for some time, the gentleman who posed as the leader vouchsafed the information that they were delegated to the continental congress of medicine and surgery being held here at present When asked for a list of the delegates he replied that he was unable to furnish it, and knew of no one who could. None of his companions would tell what was the object of the meeting, by whom called, nor would they answer any other pertinent questions.

Early in the present month a conference was held in this city by a lot of doctors, who have been tabooed by "regular" practitioners. This conference decided to call a meeting of its fellows in order to organize some kind of an association for self-protection. Circulars replete with rhetoric were scattered over the country by the executive committee, residing in Omaha. The circular requests all non-regular practitioners to gather here on June 22 and 23 for the purpose of "perfecting an organization for the higher elevation of medical, furgical and scientific attainments; for the promotion of a more thorough mutual intercourse among liberal physicians and specialists; to secure fair and equitable legislation, and advance the just claim of those who practice medicine and the different specialties of medicine and surgery in the estimation of the better class of the people and the law."

In a conversation last evening one of the participators in the congress admitted that the meeting was called to take steps to legalize liberal medical methods.

A meeting was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and an organization perfected. Today the congress will continue its deliberations with closed doors.

YOU CAN SEE

with half a glance that this is a safe place to buy your own as well as your boy's clothes. We'd rather miss a sale than mislead a customer and have him disappointed or disposed to "BLACK BALL" us at every opportunity, for we're after that kind of success that comes in the long run from serving people well.

OUR OWN MAKE

of School Suits and Dressy Clothes for Boys have done "heaps of good." Some of our customers are as enthusiastic about these goods as if they had an interest in the business. It all comes from the splendid satisfaction realized. Isn't this better than "bam boozeling" the people and having them feel that you have played a "confidence game" on them.
