4 O WONDER Sim City lost yest day's game. His name was Meakin, and he came from Phila-They had a der delphia-as a blind man would have known after having seen him move. Why, he was slower than the wrath of Jehovah, and before the game was half over everybody was yawning in their sents. When he pitched down in Denver the great ball. Davies was very wild and the other day, a friend writes me, they had to use a turn-table to switch him around in the box. The Lambs didn't hit him, you say! Don't see how they could, considering that he only put about one ball out of a dozen within reach of the plate.

He is a charitable fellow, though, is this Meakin; he only gave nine men their base on balls.

Gave away pretty nearly the whole snap didn't he!

And Sioux City has so little to give. The day was another grand one, but the attendance was only fair to midalin'. But the fair ones were there all right, and that made up for a good deal.

There is little to say about the game, for it was draggy and monotonous notwithstanding the closeness of the score.

The Corn Huskers are playing ball, and are apt to stumble upon a victory almost any time.

You all know what the blind hog found. Of course, Manager Dan got his base for a starter, for Philadelphus began his prodigality from the vory outset.

It would look had indeed if Danny was denied his base in the first inning. He has the features of the game. Score: only made it eighteen times out of the last twenty-one games. Pretty decent sort of a man to head a batting list, ch !

But vesterday he didn't get home, although Halligan and Sutcliffe supplemented his good luck with safe hits.

On the Deacon's tap to Genins, Dan was extinguished at the plate.

Then Jakey Strauss made one of his characteristic muffs of a high one from Papa's bat, and Jocko got in with the initial tally, and the bases were still filled with sheep. But no more of them got home, for on the Commodoro's grounder to Meakin, "Old Cy" was nipped at the plate and Larry at first. That was a double-header in the nick of time. I don't know what the nick of time is, but that's what Uncle Dick said it was, and he knows more about time, I guess, than any other living man rick's error in the sixth did the work, letting And the pumpkin rollers came right back at us and tied the score. Shannon threw Swartwood out at first, but talking back to Emslie, Score:

Stephenson of Council Bluffs pitched splendid ball for the visitors, and although spiendid bail for the visitors, and although the Burlingtons hit him hard they were without luck, the fielding of the Falconers at the nost critical times being magnificent, especially Storey at short, who had some marvelous stops. Whitney Miller played for the visitors and he actually stole the first two runs made, base by base. The errors of the home team cost them the game, for each one counted with slekening constancy. The Usual Compliments Exchanged by the Beltigerents-President Lowry Takes a Hand--Pulaski's Neck in Danger.

There were seventeen members who attended the council meeting last night and they sat down upon Mayor Cushing so hard that it will be several days before he will fully realize what has struck him.

Yesterday Tug Bgg furnished the exclusive information that the mayor had selected Mike Donovan to serve as a member of the board of public works, vice Major Furay whose term of office has expired. The mayor kept his word and the appointment of Donovan was one of the first papers read. After the clerk had read the appointment President Lowry said, "What will you do with the appointment "

"Move it be confirmed," responded Mr. Cooper.

"Second the motion," said Mr. Morearty. "The clerk will call the roll," continued President Lowry.

The roll was called, but there were only two members, Cooper and Morearty, who stood by the mayor and Mr. Donovan.

"That was a stem-winding knocker," came from a democratic member, and the galiery gods laughed while President Lowry hammered a hole in his desk as he restored order that the reading clerk might be heard.

The board of public works had held out, of charged against the water works company, the sum of $400, to pay for repairing a washout caused by the bursting of a water main. The water works company protested, and the whole matter was referred. City Treasurer Rush's report on the sale of $100,000 of city hall bonds was approved. City Clerk John Groves was granted a two weeks leave of absence.

Thomas Birmingham, the sidewalk inspec-tor, reported as follows:

tor, reported as follows: I desire to call your attention to the noto-rious fact, that the sidewalks in the business and most prominent parts of the city are in a very deplorable and dilapidated condition. Ordinance No. 2472, entitled an ordinance prohibiting wooden sidewalks within the fire limits, places me in such a position that I can-not do anything to remedy the above nui-sance, yet prayers of the most damnable char-acter are offered up for me every day for an evil that I cannot regulate; and in order to protect the citizens from any bodily injury and myself from any further abuse, I would suggest that your honorable body instruct the uggest that your honorable body instruct the board of public works to immediately adverise for a contractor for the construction of ment sidewalks.

The report was adopted and referred to the board of public works, Bids for furnishing 700 street lamps for the suburban portions of the city were opened. The bids were as follows: Robert Bregar, 700 gasoline lamps, 16 candle power, to burn from sunset till sunrise on a two year contract, $16.60 per lamp, per annum.

The Ohio street lighting company, 700 gaso-line lamps, 16 candle power to burn from sunset to sunrise, two year contract, $19 per lamp, per annum. The electric light company offered to furnish incandescent lights, 20 candle power at $22 per lamp, or 2,000 candle power arc lights at $150 per lamp per annum. A number of the members of the council spoke in favor of the Onio street lighting mpanv.

President Lowry had a word to say. He spoke as follows:

speke as follows: "The trouble is, the opposition has a strong hold on the council. If you will go out upon the streets tonight you will find that the Ohio street lighting company has any number of lamps that are not burn-har and L mant the residence and the ing, and I want the gas inspector and the members of the council to show their hands." Regarding Dr. Test's presence at the asy-lum, witness said "it was a very common thing for him to be absent when the assistant physician was absent, leaving the insti-tution without an attendant." One of the complaints made against the witness was carelessness, evidence of which it was claimed had been found in a nest of kittens which had been born in Dr. Test's bod. Liveringhouse made a similar denial. Mrs. Slater said after this little episode that lovernor Thayer had told her he would never remove her for political reasons. The testimony of the witness closed with a escription of the meeting which Dr. Test had called to silence the tongues of employees regarding the doctor's relations with Mrs. Liveringhouse. The doctor explained how nely he had been and how he needed pany, and how the conduct which had set tongues wagging would hereafter be discor tinued.

That did the business-Jake scored Van Dyke then attempted to steal second, but Old Cy put an end to his soaring ambition by a mighty nice throw down to Danny.

Nancy Morrissey was fired out at first by the boy with the rusty hair. In the second we went 'em one better

The Professor gave Nancy a high fly Nancy took it in in great form. Meakin then gave Josephus his base, and a wild pitch helped him to second. Scheibeck's error to third, and another one by Genins Traf also made first unscathed on the latter blunder, but he was left, for Manager Dan struck out and Swartwood took O'Hooligan's fiy.

The Husker's retired gracefully in one, two, three order. In the third Old Cy was served a scurvy trick. He tried to drive the sphere through the earth. But his feet were in the road, and the ball caromed off his big toe straight down to Miss Morrisey, and when Alonzo Knight said, "You're out, sir!" he was mad enough to eat scrap iron. But Meakin did all he could to make up for it. He gave the Deacon his base only to double him up the next moment, however, Then when the Corn Huskers cause in and made two runs and took the read, the specta-tors woke up to the fact that they were liable to see a game after all.

First of all Papa muffed Walsh's throw of Earle's hit—the first time he has been guilty of such a thing since he was a child, and that was almost a bundred years ago, Then Larry hit Meakin, and after Donnelly had thrown Swartwood out at first, the author of the Blue Danube was unfeeling enough to knock out a three-bagger.

Of course the two runners came home, Van Dyke followed this up with a hot one at Walsh, but Walsh was there all right, and snatching the wnizzing globe bald-headed he proceeded, with the material aid of the Prolessor and Uncle Cyrus to run Mr. Strauss down between third and home. That made the crowd shout lustily, and they continued it when big Morrissey filed Truf.

The Lambs were blanked in the next, although Mr. Meakin gave them the usual base on balls. Sloux City likewise failed to connect. The fifth was also profitless for our side, but the Huskers added another to their surplus, and the spectators became suspiciously

You see the little globe trotter, Billy Earle, landed on Larry for a three-sacker, and Swartwood following with a hit, and of course Earle scored, but it was their last.

icy Morrissey's out, however, blasted all their hopes.

So glad ! 'Fwould have been humiliating to be beaten by those country boys. "We want this game right here," pro-claimed Manager Dan, as the Professor faced Meakin. "Play bail, Jimmy."

And Jimmy did play bali-that is, he stood there like the statue of Narcissus, refusing to go after any of Mr. Meakin's devious gy-ratious, and the consequence was, Meakin gave him his base just to get rid of him.

Walsh singled him on to second, and Traf's sacrifice advanced both a bag. Earle made a wild throw of Dan's little bunt and Donuelly scored, Walsh went to third and Dan him self to second
