FOUND DEATH IN THE SHAFT. THE CITY.

Three cars of ore from Mexico for the smelter were received by the customs officers yesterday.

John Mitchell has complained of his daughter Lizzie as an incorrigible girl, and wants her sent to the reform senool. George McClure attempted to unload his noisy jag in a quiet neighborhood but at the request of the police judge he won't t y it again for ten days.

In the letter of Rev. Warren Cochran, published in THE BEE a few days ago an error appeared which should be corrected both in justice to Rev. Cochran and his divorced wife. Mr. Cochran wrote: "She invited me to come and see her and sleep in the hop house with the hired man." The types with the hired man." The types made the sentence read; "She invited me to come and see her asleep in the hop house with the hired man.'

Mrs. J. M. SOUTH OMAHA.

Spaulding-Munroe.

At 2 o'clock vesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, 3019 Burt street Omaha, Miss Mary E. Spaulding, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Spaulding, and Mr. Alexander A. Munroe, superintendand MF, Alexander A. Multice, superintenti-ent of the city schools, of this city, were married, Rev. Mr. Robert L. Wheeler officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Munroe left on the afternoon train for Toronto, Canada, and after attending the teachers' convention will spend the summer in the New England states.

In the New England states. Miss Spaulding was one of the teacher heroes of the blizzard of January 12, 1888, is a woman with every grace of person and ac-complishment of mind and is as popular as she is accomplished. Superintendent Munroe is one of the recognized educators of the state, to whom the high standard of the city schools is due, and is a man of merit and promise. All who know them will join in congratulations and good wishes.

George Bradbury, the night engineer at the Paxton hotel, lost his life in the elevator shaft last evening.

Bradbury went to work at 6 o'clock. About he was silled to fix a valve on the steam vlinder in the shaft between the first and second floors. The elevator boy took Bradbury up to the top of the cylinder, where there is a foot board to stand upon while oiling the machinery. After leaving the engineer the boy went on to the top with the elevator.

It is supposed that when the lift started down Bradbury was caught between the counter balance and the cylinder and rushed.

One scream was all any one heard. The elevator was stopped and a long ladder brought. On the top of the shaft machinery lay the body of the engineer.

As quickly as possible the man was taken o a room and Dr. Gilmore summoned. Bradbury was unconscious and remained in that state until death came a half hour later. The proprietors of the Paxton have no idea how the accident happened, as a man goes to the shaft nearly every day to oil the machinery. Dr. Gilmore made a hasty examination and found that the left side had been crushed and that death was the result of internal injuries.

Bradbury was a married man, but had no family living here. It is understood that the dead man was an engineer on the ill-fated German corvette Apia, which was lest in the great storm at Samoa. Doceased was taken to San Francisco with some of the survivors, and drifted eastward. He arrived here last winter and had been in the employ of the Paxton people for about seven months. The dead man is a member of several secret societies, and they will probably take charge of the remains, which are at Mike Maul's undertaking rooms.

Ages of Misfortune.

If Hick Carpenter, the venerable third baseman of the Kansas Citys, had been at the police station yesterday morning, he would certainly have recalled the days and scenes of his childhood, and that, too, by renewing his acquaintance with a personage who has been erroneously supposed to have died several hundred years ago. You may not believe it, but it was King Pilate, the very same identical old duffer, whose ancient cussedness is known to all who are familiar with biblical lore. A few skeptics about the station were in-clined to disbelieve it at first, but there was old Pilate himself, and there was his word for

It was evident, even before he said so, that he had experienced sad reverses since he was nrst heard of in the palmy days of Jerusalem, and he had gone from bad to worse, taking big tumbles at each succeeding descent. Time had dealt harshly with his royal jags, and he acknowledged that the events of the old days of purple and fine linen could be re-called only at long intervals as the mental phantasmagoria of a pleasant dream. On top of his other misfortunes the cruel and ong continued buffetings of failure had destroyed his reason and the old fellow was as crazy as a bedbug. Weak, half starved, sick and demented, Pilate was a sad relic when the officers fished him out of the weeds in the rear of Belle Brandon's disorderly house in the Third ward. He was literally alive with vermin, and he was therefore taken up more tenderly and handled with greater care than was Thomas Hood's poor unfortunate, who hastened madly to death in the swim. He was taken to the station and placed on cot to await consideration at the doctor's

PRICE IS HELD FOR MURDER,

Coroner's Jury Charges Him with Killing Mrs. Fanny Tate.

STORY DEVELOPED AT THE INQUEST.

Circumstantial Evidence Strong Against the Accused - He was Drunk and Acted Strangely-Seen to Slip Into the Yard.

Three o'clock yesterday afternoon was the hour set by the coroner for the inquest of the body of Fannie Tate, the murdered woman. By 2:30 quite a crowd of curious people had collected on the sidewalk in front of Heafey & Heafey's, and made a patroiman's life miserable keeping the space cleared.

At 3:30 the coroner arrived, and Constable Dingman brought in the last juryman.

County Attorney Mahony sat on the right of Dr. Harrigan and questioned the witnesses. Attorney D. L. Lapsley was present as a representative of Price and cross-examined most of the witnesses.

Dr. Charles C. Allison was first placed upon the stand. The physician stated that he had made a post mortem examination of the body while it was yet warm. On the left side of the neck was a discoloration and also two distinct marks a couple of inches in length. There were black spots near each eye, but no abrasion of the skin. The lungs were deeply congested and there was a large amount of bloody, frothy mucus in the bron-chial tubes. The other organs of the body were normal. An internal examination of the neck showed a rupture of the blood yes-sets and a contusion of the muscles. Dr. Allison was unable to state positively whether the woman had been assaulted or Dan Tate, husband of the dead woman said that he left home about 6:30 o'clock for his work. At 10:45 word reached him that his wife was dead and he hurried home

Mr. Mahoney made a diagram of the house and surroundings and Tate explained to the jury the position of the woodshed and out buildings. His wife was in the habit of locking up his dogs in the woodshed every night before she went to bed.

Seven-year-old Charley Tate told his story again. When he first went on the stand he was badly frightened, but soon cooled down and answered all questions in a straight-forward manner. He said that his mother came home about dark and that Price was came home about dark and that Price was with her. A famp was lit and he was sent for beer. In a little while he was again sent for beer and then Price went away. When he was gone his mother said she was going to Gertic Kelly's, and left Charley on the front step eating a piece of bread. The lad said he saw Price go down toward the tracks and then come up and enter the ward through a

As they stepped into the alley a man was seen running east soward the railroad track. Was suce Price was the man he saw running.

On cross-examination the boy told the same

Chris Thompson, twelve years old, lives next door to the Tate house. He said that he was ready for bed when he heard some one scream and say, "Stop, you are choking me." At first he thought it was the dogs, but then he heard the screams repeated followed by a couple of kicks against the sides of the shed. After this the boy went to bed, but got up when he heard people talking in but got up when he heard people thating in the alloy. Christina Thompson, mother of Chris, told about hearing the screams, but as she does not understand English she paid no particular attention to them.

Nelson Turkelson lives across the alley in a house fronting on Sixth street. He saw Fannie Tate and a colored man drinking beer in the house during the evening. He was talking with Mrs. Tate during the evening. She said she was going up to the saloon where her husband worked and make trouble, but did not say what the trouble was.

to the shed was that he thought somebody was trying to steal some of Tate's pups. The woman was lying on her back with her clothing considerably mussed and the pups were licking her face.

Officer Vance Fields said that he was standing near the front of Turkleson's saloon when Nels came up and told him that there was a dead woman in the alley. He stopped at Tate's house and got a samp, then went on to the shed, where he found the body. An alarm was sent in for the patrol wagon and the coroner, Dr. Swanson, who was in a drug store near by, was called and pro-nounced the woman dead. Ida Brown-Nelson said that Mrs. Tate was her aunt, and that Price and Mrs. Tate was been at her house during the evening. Price wanted to go bome with Mrs. Tate, but as he was drunk her aunt did not want him to. They both left the house together. Price came back about 10:30 p came back about 10:30 p. m. and acted stranger, besides talking in a foolish way. After considerable talk he started for home, iam C. DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Best little pill ever made. Cure constipation every time. None equal. Use them now.

Too Early for Them. At the meeting of the board of public works held last Friday, the members agreed to meet C. E. Squires, the street sweeping contractor, and inspect the workings of a new four-horse sweeper that has been recently purchased. The meeting was to have been heid at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The sweeper was on the streets doing its work, but owing to the early hour none of the interested parties were present.

Constipation poisons the blood; DeWitt's Little Early Risers cure constipation. The cause removed, the disease is gone.
