FIGHTING FOR THE CORPSE. PLEASED AND SURPRISED.

Considerable of a Clash Occasioned by Engineer Bradbury's Remains.

CORONER HARRIGAN IS OBSTINATE.

He Will Not Hold an Inquest at Maul's-Friends Will Not Allow the Body to be Moved.

If any inquests get away from the individaal who fills the coroner's office it won't be his fault, as was conclusively demonstrated by his course yesterday. The remains George Bradbury, the engineer who met his death in the elewator shaft at the Paxton, were taken in charge by M. O. Maul, at the request of the charge by M. O. Maul, at the request of the proprietors of the hotel, and removed to his undertaking rooms. This was of course dis-tasteful to the coroner, who has steadfastly and persistently refused to hold any inquests at that place, but has on the contrary sent eight out of every ten of his cases to Heafey & Heafey's leading out the balance of his & Heafey's, hading out the balance of his patronage among the other half dozen undertaking firms.

taking firms. On occasions where, as in this case, the friends of the deceased have requested Maul to take charge of the body, the coroner has promptly sent another undertaker, generally a representative of Heafey & Heafey, a fter a representative of Heafey & Heafey, a fter the remains, with peremptory orders that it be delivered to the messenger. Heretofore, these demands have been complied with, even against the wishes of the relatives and friends of the deceased. Yesterday morn-ing, however, Mr. Maul was instructed by Mr. Brainard, one of the proprietors of the Paxton and by the officials of the local branch of stationary engineers, of which the deceased was a member, to keep the body in his charge and prepare it for burial. Finally the coroner put in his appearance, and declared that he could not hold the in-quest there, and also announced that Heafey & Heafey would send over for the body. When informed that the friends of the de-ceased desired Maul to keep the body he said ceased desired Maul to keep the body he said that he had an order from the association of engineers demanding that it be turned over to Heafey. He failed to produce the order, however, even when requested to do so, and it subsequently developed that he had no such order and had not been given one. Mr. Crosier, the recording secretary of the engineers stated that if any such order had been given he would have been the only one to have given it, and he said that he not only refused to give the coroner an order when he requested it, but he had told him plainly in requested it, but he had told him plainly in the presence of nearly all the officers of the association that they wanted the body to re-main at Mau's. The coroner also endeav-ored to secure an order from the hotel people, but was again told that they wanted the body to remain where it was.

body to remain where it was. Finding that there was so much objection to allowing the body to be removed to Heafey & Heafey's, the coroner changed his tactics and said that he would have Burket come and take possession of it. Still the friends of the deceased insisted that no change should be made, and the official change should be made, and the official corpse viewer then started out to hunt up his corpse viewer then started out to hubt up his man Friday, Constable Dingman, and sent him to get the body, whether or no. His de-mand was met by refusal, and after abusing every one connected with the place until he was shown the door, he took his departure, swearing that he would get a wagon and re-turn and get the body even if he had to break down the doors and take it by force. Dingman returned after a while, but with-

Minutes grew into quarters and then into hours, and still the coroner did not come. Constable Dingman still kept up the siege, but without any noticeable results. ENJOINED THE PAVERS. South Omaha Citizens Protest Against

Certain Paving Improvements. The petition in the injunction suit of George W. Masson, John A. Doe and Alfred Gary

against the city of South Omaha, was filed in the office of the clerk of the district court yesterday. The restraining order is issued by Judge Doane and a hearing will be had Saturday morning. The trouble grows out of the bids for paving opened at South Omaha yesterday. The city council of South Omana advertises for bids for paving Twenty-fourth street from A to Q street. Prior to that time an ordinance was passed creating the paving listricts. Yesterday the bids were opened and it was ound that the Stradamant asphalt company had captured the contract at $2.7712 per quare vard. The plaintiffs were considerably wrought up and at once came to this city and employed lawyers to start a fight. They claim that the "Ventura" asphalt, the kind that it is proposed to lay upon the streets, is worthless for the office. Mayor Cushing is inclined to send in the name of some good republican, but he fears it would be rejected by the democratic major-ity. All kinds of appeals are reaching the executive and some of them are really funny. Monday a ward worker, one of the small bore fellows, addressed a letter to the mayor, requesting that a certain man be appointed. The letter was filed away and will be kept as a political relic to hand over to future mayors. mayors.

Mr. Cushing states that as he is not work ing for another nomination, the appointment will not necessarily be a political one.

The attorney told Mr. Crosler that the coroner had a right to take the Lody any place he saw fit to hold the in quest, and that any resistence to his demands would be a violation of the statutes. Mr. Ma noney also stated that such a violation would be followed by a comptaint in the police court and an arrest.

Mr. Croster said that he know nothing about the legal side of the case and cared less. All he wanted was to have Mike Maul bury the body of his comrade. After the departure of the county attorney the crowd slowly dispersed, leaving the coroner's right bower alone in his glory to hold up the front of the building. Dr. Harrigan returned from South Omana about supper time and went directly to his home. A BEE reporter visited the usual down town haunts of the coroner last night, but could not find the man who never fails to hold an inquest. It was understood, how-ever, that the doctor was considerably sur-prised at the failure of his plans to secure the body. the body

No definite steps for further action had

No definite steps for further action had been arranged up to late in the evening, and the banner of victory still floats from the Maul house top. It is claimed that Coroner Harrigan went before Judge Helsley late yesterday after-noon and requested a warrant for the arrest of M. O. Maul because he declined to give up the body of Géorge Bradbury. The doctor was informed that as he was a county official was informed that as he was a county official he would have to apply to the county author-itles for help in the fight. Judge Helsley positively declined to issue the warraut.

If nothing is heard from relatives soon the Order of En-gineers will bury the body Sunday afternoon, Interment will be at Forest Lawn cemetery. Interment will be at Forest Lawn cemetery. There was considerable talk at the lodge meeting about the treatment the coroner had given the case, and that offi-cial was soundly scored and vig-prously reasted. If the body is taken from Maul's it will have to be by process of iaw, as those now in possession have no in-tention of giving up the remains unless com-pelled to do so by legal marces.
