Brown County.

Brown county, a few years ago, was known as Sioux or unorganized territory. The prairie that was but a few years ago inhabited by the wolf and deer, is today dotted with farm houses and a few scattered homesteads. It is bounded on the east by Rock, on the north by Keya Paha, on the south by Loup and on the west by Cherry. The Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley road runs through the county from east to west.

The fore-runners of civilization have given way to a better class of husbandmen, who are now building upon foundations furnished by early pioneers, and who will in a short time make Brown county one of the most productive and attractive counties in the state.

Brown county is well supplied with flouring mills, there being two on the Pine creek, which are doing a lucrative business, and are located in the eastern portion of the county. They are driven by water power.

At present, the county seat, is the population of 1,200, a number of fine brick buildings, the city of Brown, is the seat of the county. It is a fine city, and is the seat of the county. It is a fine city, and is the seat of the county.

The prospects of Brown county were never brighter than at the present time.

Deuel County.

Deuel contains an area of about twenty-one hundred and thirty square miles, seventy miles north and south and thirty miles east and west.

The county is drained on the south by the Lodge Pole and South Platte, along the valley of which runs the Union Pacific railroad. The two principal cities of the county are located on said road. Big Springs, a beautiful town, is situated in the southern corner of the county and is surrounded by a splendid agricultural country in the valley of the South Platte.

Chappell, the county seat, is located near the south center in the beautiful valley of the Lodge Pole, contains two banks—the Deuel County State bank, organized some two years ago, with J. E. Peterson, J. W. Macedonia, J. A. at its head, and the Commercial bank, with first class business men as its managers, both of which are doing a good business. It also contains the Deuel County Agricultural Society, and three civic societies, all in flourishing condition. All lines of business are represented, as is also the press in the Chappell Register, under the able management of S. P. Morgan.

Through the center of the county from the north west to the south east, runs the North Platte river, which will soon be bridged in two places, the bridge having been voted and the contract let. Blue, Rush and Lost creeks, wind their way from north to south, and are mottled silver, upon the margins and in the large valleys of which there is a most luxuriant growth of alfalfa, timothy and other crops, which will be harvested during the season. Those streams wind their way across the wide valley into the North Platte, which empties into the north part of Deuel county, around the numerous lakes of which feed large herds of which are now ready for the butcher's block.

There is no resort in the west where sportsmen can have a better time and where game is so plenty as in the rich prairie. A short excursion can go with such confidence as in north Deuel county.

The North Platte valley running diagonally through the county from five to seven miles wide is a perfect paradise.

The past two years has been a little dry for the cereals and other crops, but the season has been the object of attention and a source of satisfactory revenue.

This season has been remarkably good for the farmer. There will be hundreds of tons of hay cut on the divides upon the North Platte and Lodge Pole this season, where the "creek" of the mower was never before.

Greeting the eye from every direction are fields of golden grain consisting of wheat, oats, rye and barley of immense growth, the yield per acre of these cereals is variously estimated at from fifteen to thirty bushels per acre, and the corn crop looks equally well where it has been planted.

Fully fifty-five per cent of this region is first-class farm land, and the day is not far distant when it will be one of the richest parts of Nebraska.

In case of dry weather nearly the entire county is susceptible of irrigation and while water has not been needed this season, it may not be in the future. In years to come, the various ditch companies have completed arrangements by which they can flood the county.

The Union Pacific railroad company has completed a survey from North Platte up this valley on to Fort Totten, and the B. & M. running parallel with the county on the north for a distance of thirty miles and on to the Black Hills, and the main line of the Union Pacific, sweeping through the south and to Denver, gives the county the best shipping facilities possible.

Frontier county, seems to have been overlooked, in the general report of the state and some may have formed the idea that there is no frontier county in this state; but there is, and a big one, which has been here since we had a state, almost. It was organized many years ago, when we yet had the Indians among us, in an Indian tepee down on the famous Medicine river, famous for its being the home of Dr. Carver, the great gunshot, its tall the grasses, heavy timber, wood ticks and mosquitoes.

Frontier county is forty-two miles long and twenty-four miles wide, and contains within its bounds 82,000 acres of land, 75 per cent of which is stock raising land, and all is good grass land. The soil is a black loam of four to seven foot depth. No better producing soil in the state. Only about 35 per cent of the tillable land is under cultivation today.

The inhabitants of the county are mostly of American birth, a few Germans and Scandinavians are scattered over the county. As a class the inhabitants of the county are industrious and thrifty and, as we see near the western portion of the great land belt of the state the industries are diversified. Crops of all kinds grow in abundance and stock of all kinds are raised in good pasturage on the natural grasses of the region. This gives double advantage to the man who locates here for agricultural pursuits, as he can grow his stock and during the summer and feed his grain products at home.

It is true that this portion of the state was in distress last year on account of the drouth but the experiences of last year was so much apart from what the people were used to that it was very hard on them. For seven or eight years the farmers had cropped their lands and every year harvested good crops and no one believed that the great land belt of the state was so rich in resources.

The crops in Frontier county this year are simply immense. The average yield, exceeds any former year by at least 10 per cent and the yield per acre is one-fifth better than ever before. Samples of oats 6 to 5.5 bushels in height is a very common thing, and the wheat is a fine crop, and the corn is a fine crop. No threshing has been done yet, but experienced farmers talk of twenty-two to thirty bushels of wheat to the acre and all other cereals in proportion. Corn is a little behind as the rains in June kept it back and were so frequent that farmers could not properly cultivate it, but as a rule the corn is good—better than the average.

The county has many stock feeders. There are perhaps 4,000 steers to be prepared for the market, within the county, as corn was so high last year, and fat cattle so cheap, that the most of our stockmen carried their cattle over the mountains and have an extra lot of cattle to put on the market as soon as they can get them. Frontier county has three fine flouring mills, one at Curtis of 100 barrels capacity, one at Curtis of 100 barrels capacity and one on the Medicine two miles north of St. Louisville of fifty barrels capacity, all roller process and operated by water power. The mill and power at Curtis is the best in the western half of the state; having a twenty-two foot water wheel, and water from the lake which covers over 125 acres of ground and cannot be surpassed.

The county has many living streams of water, and the best opportunity for stock and guarantee at all times a good rain fall. Among the streams is the Medicine, which runs from the north-west to the south-east, the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south, and the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south, and the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south.

Standing together on the Red, white and blue, they are a goodly company. The county has many living streams of water, and the best opportunity for stock and guarantee at all times a good rain fall. Among the streams is the Medicine, which runs from the north-west to the south-east, the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south, and the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south.

There are six banks in the county, about eighteen general stores, eight hardware stores, six drug stores, and many other stores, there are many places to be filled by lively, energetic persons who would be glad to see that they do it. The county has many living streams of water, and the best opportunity for stock and guarantee at all times a good rain fall. Among the streams is the Medicine, which runs from the north-west to the south-east, the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south, and the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south.

The assessed valuation of the county (at 4 per cent of the actual value) is about $50,000,000.

THE ROCK-BOUND REPUBLIC.

Where Freedom's Starlight Pierced Through Centuries of Gloom.

SIX HUNDRED YEARS OF LIBERTY.

Thrones Topped and Dynasties Disappeared, Yet Switzerland's Independence Remained Unshaken—Anniversary of the Event.

Six hundred years of self-government!

In this brief measure the life of the oldest living republic of the world—Switzerland.

Today, August 1, is reckoned the anniversary of the independence peacefully achieved in 1291.

A century and a half before Columbus was born the republic of Switzerland was, and it shed its feeble light over the old world 484 years before the American Declaration of Independence set tidings of great joy to truth and ideal truth with a new life.

The parents of the Swiss republic were Walter Furst, Von Attinghausen, Werner Stauffer and Arnold Von Melchthal.

Standing together on the Red, white and blue, they are a goodly company. The county has many living streams of water, and the best opportunity for stock and guarantee at all times a good rain fall. Among the streams is the Medicine, which runs from the north-west to the south-east, the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south, and the Spirit, which runs from the north to the south.

Although the story of Switzerland's push for freedom is a long and hard one, it is so good a story, and in so many respects resembles our own, that it is an important part of our history. It may well be called the story of the Swiss republic.

Today is not the time to question the truth of the story of William Tell. Truth or fiction, it is a glorious story, and one of the most famous of the world's history. King of the Swiss, he was a hero of the Swiss, and he was a hero of the Swiss.
