

No Important Changes in the Local Money Market.

COLLECTIONS IN THE CITY RATHER SLOW.

Jobbing Trade Fair for the Season With Flattering Prospects for a Large Movement of Goods When Fall Trade Opens.

The situation in the money market so far as the local banking business is concerned does not show much change since a week ago.

There is some complaint of tight money, but it originates principally from the local retail bankers, especially those from smaller concerns and those doing a credit business.

The small firms without very extensive credit at the banks, that have been selling goods on time, find it difficult to collect outstanding accounts or to borrow money to meet their own obligations.

It is generally admitted that collections in the city are slow. Jobbers experience a great deal more trouble in this respect in the city than in the country, where the collections are very fair.

Trade in the country is in better shape than in the city and this is seen from the fact that the country merchants about business come from firms doing a local business, while the jobbers who reach into a wide section of the country find very little fault. Just now of the city is light, but it will compare favorably with other cities when some lines very little is doing so far as the actual sales are concerned, but the jobbers are getting things into shape for the fall export trade.

There is a certain amount of interest in reported prices remain about steady, and while trade is now only fair there are indications that it will be largely the same for the next few weeks or so.

In New York it is said of the hardware trade that the returns have been received from traveling salesmen, but only enough to show that they are getting down to work, without as yet any definite indication that the amount of goods sent to the country is as large as was expected.

THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS.

Talk of Great Crop Causes Much Bearer Excitement. OPERATORS INCLINED TO GO VERY SLOW.

Corn was as dull as wheat until the close. When report of bad weather effected a rise.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Talk of great crops of wheat in the local market caused a revival of interest in the local market, but prices had advanced in the week.

A short speculative holiday in Liverpool predisposed the speculators to go slow.

COUNTING NEBRASKA'S CATTLE

The Live Stock Interest of the State Not Flagging. A SATISFACTORY GAIN ALL AROUND.

A Complete Showing of the Number of Head of Live Stock in Each County of the State.

While the public mind is so largely centered on the growing crops of the state and while all classes of business men are anxiously awaiting the outcome, it may not be placed to call attention to another source of great wealth to the state, the live stock industry.

The assessors have made their reports on a complete showing of the number of head of live stock in each county of the state, as published by the auditor, and the number of horses in the state is 545,175, showing a gain of almost seventy thousand head.

In cattle the total number has been increased by the addition of over eighty-three thousand head.

Sheep show only a slight increase, amounting to a little over three thousand head.

While the figures of the assessors are valuable some doubt is allowed to be made for the stock raisers of the state are fully aware of what to expect the assessor and they naturally make it a point to count all their live stock.

This is always seen in the largely increased receipts at market points during the week or two preceding the time when the assessors follow the stock raisers of the state.

From this it follows that the assessors' returns will represent the number of head of live stock in the state at the time when the number has been brought to the minimum by the sale of everything marketable.

This may be taken as an accounting of agriculture by the assessor. According to this source Nebraska had in 1915, 1,730,441 cattle and 3,000,770 horses.

The following table shows the assessors' returns by counties:

GETTING LOCATED.

Grain Men Moving Into the Chamber of Commerce.

The grain men are preparing to move into the board of trade building as soon after the first of the month as possible.

Already the rooms are being put in shape for conducting a grain business, blackboards are being put up and telegraph connections made.

The up and telegraph connections made. The whole building looks as if it had a severe attack of the house-cleaning fever, and the tenants are all on the move, either in or out.
