WAR ON AGAIN.

Mr. Megcath and the Commissioners Will Lock Horns Again. For a month or more, white winged peace has hovered over Jeff Megeath, the register of deeds, and the county commissioners.

This hovering process has come to an end, and another cruel war is about to be declared. Already the mutterings can be heard by any person who cares to listen. The trouble all came about on account of the manner in which Megeath conducts his office and his quarterly report, which was handed to the commissioners yester any after-noon and referred to the committee on finance. The report shows the following: Receipts Expenditures $3,649.08. Surplus To all appearances the report is correct, but this will not be known to a certainty until Auditor Evans checks it with the vouchers of the office. The commissioners find no fault with the clerical part of the work, but aver that Megeath is too anxious to reduce the surplus by giving it to members of his family. They state that geath has his son Willie in office and that he is allowed allowed $50 per month for performing the laborious duties of carrying books from the vault to the desk.

The report shows that Willie, who is a school boy, fifteen years of age, is spending his vacation in the office. It also shows that This is what the commissioners declare is irregular, as it simply adds $50 per mouth to Pere Megeath's income. The pay roll of the office is as follows: Horner, $100 per month; Webber, $75; Mahoney, $60; Brown, $60; Miss Oliver, $65; McDonagh, $60; Read, $60; Lowrey, $60, and Willie Megcath $50 per month.

This pay roll, the commissioners say, is much larger than it need be, and it is charged that many of the clerks are kept simply for the purpose of fattening them at the county crib. To prove this the commissioners cite the fact that two men are employed at a salary of $60 per month each, in comparing, while Needham's term of office, one man performed this work, though the work is now only about one-fourth as great as then In those days the papers for record ran from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fifty per day, while now they only average from forty to fifty. It is also claimed that another clerk is receiving more pay than allowed by law, which is $60 per menth. This clerk draws $15 per week, or $65 per Many other irregularities are pointed out and the report will be thoroughly sifted before it passes out of the hands of the finance committee.

BEATING THE BOARD.

County Commissioners Oppose the Board of Public Works. The county commissioners have a horse on the city council and the board of public works. Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the council the board of public works let the contract for filling some pools, on county ground, near the hospital. The contract price was fifteen cents per cubic foot for the earth that was to have been used. While the board was letting the contract the commissioners were bunting a contract the commissioners were numbing a man of their own. They made a deal with him and vesterday at daylight the man commenced dumping earth into the offensive hole. This contractor is doing the work for twelve cents per cubic yard.

The action of the city council and the board of public works will have a tendency to somewhat strain the pleasant relations that have heretofore existed between county and city officials, as the county officials claim they have not been given a square deal.

The cesspool at the county hospital causes all of the trouble. This is nothing more than a hole in the ground. Its capacity is 26,000 gallons, and daily the hospital sewer discharges 10,000 gailous of filth into this hole. When it becomes full, it overflows, and the When it becomes full, it overflows, and the contents runs off into the pools along the Beit line. Some time ago the county employed the garbage master to cleanse the pool, but he charged before-the-war prices and the prospect was that the county would be bank-

The council then declared the whole business a rank and foul smelling nuisance. The commissioners pleaded guilty and offered to meet the city council half way. They asked the council to create a sewer district and agreed to lay their own mains for nearly a mile, make all connections and give the city all benefits. An ordinance was introduced and read a first and second time, after which it went into the pocket of the chairman of the council committee and there it has remained until this day. The commissioners claim that they cannot build a sewer alone the line of private property without the council creating a sewer district. This the council has re-fused to do. After leaving the hos-pital grounds the sewer would pital grounds the several bundred feet along the line of private property, which would make the county liable for heavy damages if the sewer district was not created.

Time and again the commissioners claim they have come to the relief of the city when it was in a tight box, and by advancing funds have inconvenienced themselves in their of forts to help out the council. This will not occur again as long as the council insists on maintaining the dog in the manger policy. The county will now build its own sewer and will not ask any odds of the council.

NEW MINING EXCHANGE.

Saratoga Booming an Important Enterprise for This City.

The Saratoga (Wyo.) Sun of the 28th inst. says: It was the intention to formally organize and elect new officers for the Omaha Miners' and Ora Millers' exchange last night. The success of the exchange is assured.

The committee having the matter in charge was more than pleased with the support with which the plan has been received. With a solitary exception every banking institution in Omaha has taken stock in the association. Some of the most influential area in the city have been interested in it and a large membership was secured from among that class. Practical miners and mine owners have also been enlisted in the movement.

It has gone beyond that stage when it is possible for any clique or set of men to use it to their own advantage. This will eliminate many objectionable features. By no possi-bility can the exchange be degraded to the bucket-shop level. It will be maintained as an exchange in the true sense of the word. The primary object for which it has been formed is the promotion of the mining indexten. dustry.

It will likewise be the purpose of those into whose hands the management is entrusted to find a market for any and all ores of value of its members, and at the very best prices anywhere obtainable. To aid in the furtherance of these aims use will be made of all known processes for treating every kind of ore so that a profit can be left to the owner.

Great confidence is placed in a new furnace now constructing in Omaha which is expected to cut down by fully one-half the cost of milling many ores. This is only one of the many enterprises in which the exchange has nterested itself. If the hopes of its founders are realized in this one direction it is certainly a move in the right direction.

The Sun will keep its readers fully in ormed as to the plans and methods adouted by the exchange. Every man who has any mining interest, be it great or small, cannot fail of wishing that the plans of the promoers of the exchange are carried to a success-

TRIED TO REALIZE ON WAR DOCUMENTS.

Explosive.

Not Satisfied With the Price Paid for His Invention By France, Turpin Opens Negotiations With Other Governments.

Panis, Aug. 9 .- The fact that disclosures of a startling nature have been made in regard to the sale of quantities of France's secret explosive (melinite) and that a number of persons have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment for participation in the conspiracy, has already been cabled to America. But, the true history of this dangerous conspiracy has only just been made public. All the testimony in the case, it will be remembered, was taken in secret and Mm. Turpin, Tripone and Fassler were sentenced to five years' imprisonment and M. Feuvrier was condemned to two years' confinement in prison. The court also confiscated all the arms and machinery found at the residences of Turpin and Tripone and ordered every copy of the pamphlet "How the Melinite was Sold" to be destroyed. The prisoners appealed against the verdicts, but the court of appeals affirmed the decision of the lower court. This much is known. The truth about this extraordinary affair is as follows:

Tried to Sell Private Documents. Turpin and Tripone, in addition to selling the secret melinite to agents of foreign governments, also tried to sell, not only to English houses, but to Englishmen representing the governments of Germany and Italy, some more important documents belonging to the French ministry of war, and particularly some valuable documents relating to the management of the French artillery. But these documents, a most inaccurate and incomplete list of which was published in Turpin's pamphlet, according to the military authorities, had no longer, when Tripone tried to sell them, the same value as they had some time previously. They consisted, roughly speaking, in a resume of the experiments made with melinite at Malmais and of the effects produced by a shell loaded with melinite. There was also a document on analysing melinite and giving a description of a patent detonator invented by Turpin, but which, as the items afterwards show, was rejected by the artillery board, as it was not a description of the famous detonator of Bourges. There were other and more important documents, it is admitted, for sale by the two chief conspirators.

Claimed to be the Inventor. Turpin is not, as has been previously stated, the inventor of melinite, he is simply the inventor of the method of manufacturing the inventor of the method of manufacturing the acid which is the main factor in the composition of melinite. For years back, however, Turpin has been experimenting with high explosives and confident that his invention would sooner or later come to the front in spite of the fact that he had repeatedly failed both in Franch and in foreign countries to obtain recognition, he wanted the sum of 2,000,000 francs as the price of his new acid, but the French government at first refused to listen to him. In 1884 and in 1885 Turpin was begging the French govern-1885 Turpin was begging the French govern-ment to believe that he had invented the most powerful explosive in existence or dreamed of. At this period Tripone, Turpin's future acomplice, was a secret agent of the ministry f war and the trial has revealed the fact that the French government has a great many of these secret agents circulating and operating in various parts of the world.

Seemed to Own the War Department. Tripone, who was also connected with an English gunboat, had managed to make himself useful to the French ministry of war and it was in this capacity as a secret agent of the government that he managed to obtain was that Tripone managed to get into places where even his rank in the territorial army (he was a captain in the Seventh regiment of artillery) would not have optained him admission. Consequently Tripone circulated at will about the office and became acquainted with all the clerks and chiefs of the bureau. Turpin, the inventor, on the other hand had never been able to penetrate into the war office any further than the ante-rooms but while waiting therein the hope of getting an interview with different officials he had seen Tripone going in and out of the ministry of war in a manner which seemed to indicate that he owned the entire building. Consequently Turpin resolved to become ac-quainted with this apparently all-powerful person in order to get the latter interested in his explosive inventions. The two men soon became friends and associates and finally fell out with the result already known. Sold the Secret for 200,000 Francs. In the meantime Turpin had entered into negotiations with the general advocate who represented the ministry of war and after a great deal of dickering sold the use of his acid invention to the French government for the sum of 200,000 francs, cash down, which sum was eventually paid into his hands, but this was not the fortune that Turpin had ireamed of, and hoping to make money he his attention towards foreign tries. He was not aware, however, that since 1888 five secret agents of the government of England and Germany had been con stantly shadowed by the French police and that five men had finally been drawn into the trap. To two of these "agents" the French minister of war caused to be sold for an enormous price a product which, while it was supposed to be melinite, had in reality no analogy to that secret explosive.

The three agents who were in the habit of taking their meals in the restaurants of the Rue de Bourgogne and of the Boulevard Saint Germain, which are frequented by officers of the general staff, were purely an simply expelled from France, and their re-spective governments never protested and not a word was heard about it in the public press, but their expulsion placed European governments and others upon their guard and Tripone was unable to sell Turpiu's se-cret acid to English houses. When Rogues Fall Out. Hence the disputes between the two, and inally Turpin's denunciation of his former friend Tripone, charging him with the sale of the war office documents and the latter's retort that Turpin had attempted to sell the secret of melinite. The whole affair disclosed a most curious state of affairs among the governments of Europe; it showed that hosts of spies are at work on all sides and that Germany is not alone in having her bureau of secret information.

Of course, there is much of this story which is a secret kept with the greatest care by the secret tribunal which tried the men now undergoing their sentences; but, the above is about as near the truth concerning this great military secret trial as anything which will ever be known outside of the ecret records of the French war office.

The fact that the accused men were sentenced and that the court of appeals has confirmed their sentences, shows that the charges made by each man against the other were, in the main, correct.

Nebraska's Northern Boundary. NIGHBARA, Neb., Aug. 1 .- To the Editor of THE BEE: I think Draughtsman Schlagel is mistaken in regard to the transfer of the strip of land north of the Niobrara and Keya Pana rivers from Dakota to Nebraska. The transfer was made on the passage of the bill in 1882, subject to the extinguishment of the Indian title, which did not take place until the latter part of last October. Knox count n 1883 took advantage of this subject to tha provision and voted upon the same at a late election. The Ponca Indians were not voters at the time of the county seat fight in 1887, but voted last fall for the first time. They voted for the division of the county, would have given Creighton the county for the south half, but did not vote for Rep resentative Kruse, which was Mr. Kruse excuse for working against the passa; e of the Boyd county bill in its present shape

S. F. GILMAN. Wholesale Dealer in Flour in Their New Building.

The man about town, if he keeps his eyes open, will see some very substantial evidences of individual thrift and municipal prosperity. On the east side of North Sixteenth street, near Nichoas, a fine brick block has just been completed. This substantial structure was built to accommodate the rapidly increasing exclusive wholesale flour trade of S. F. Gilman, who is now located in his new quarters. He occupies the three large storerooms 1013, 1015 and 1017 North Sixteenth, and basements, have a fine freight elevator, are right on track and now have one of the most commodious and accessible locations for the handling of flour, corn meal, etc., in the city. This firm is scarcely four years old as a member of the wholesale circles of this city, yet it ranks among the foremost institutions of its kind. Much credit is due to the efficient manager, Mr. C. E. Black, who, conscious of the merit of his wares, has by personal and unwearied effort secured the confidence of the public and has built up a trade which is the envy of his competitors. This firm make a specialty of strictly hard wheat flours, among their favorites are "Gold. Medal" and "Snow White" brands. They are also agents for the celebrated "Queen of the pantry" flour, made at Independence, Mo. They handle buckwheat, rye and graham flour and corn meal. With their advantage of location, facilities for handling business and the unexcelled quality of flour which they carry, the future must hold even greater possibilities than the past.
