It's a Profitable Change.

As the days go by the fact is being made prominent that Judge Brewer's decision requiring the fulfillment of the Union Pacific contract with the Rock Island and Milwankee railreads is not such a bad thing for Council Bluffs after all. Attention was called to an increase of the working force of the Rock Island by THE BLE a few days ago. Only a very small portion of the facts were then stated. Besides the location of Division Su perintendent Burligh and his clerical force in this city there will be five passenger train crews, five freight crews and two bridge crews besides two full passenger dining car crews. This makes in all fourteen crews with an average of eight men each, or 112 men. The extra engine men, wipers and assistants will swell the number to nearly 150. The majority of these men are high-priced employes, and some of them will be required to live here. A dozen or more fami-lies have already been located, and real estate men will have many applicants for houses in the section of the section of the section. the next few days from others. at the present time. There is a new and important question to solved in the immediate future that promises some trouble. It is intimated in Rock Island official circles that that company will soon insist on delivering its Union Pacific freight at South Omaha justend of the transfer, and will demand the 5 cent bridge deferential. It is said that the Rock bridge deferential. It is said that the Rock Island people will claim this privilege under their contract and will struggle to maintain it as the important and desirable feature of the agreement. If it should be granted it would cut off all the earnings of the bridge on Rock Island business except the $5,000 annual rental, which would be but a small mathematical the agreements. portion of the earnings. It is quite possible that this question may put an entire new face on the present situation.

Horse Thieves at Manawa.

J. H. Bulla and J. H. Van Dusen of South Omaha lost a horse and buggy last Saturday night at Manawa. They came to this side of the river for a general time, and among other places, they visited the lake. They left their horse and buggy hitched near the hotel while they went across the lake to the beach to take a bath. They returned about 11 o'cleck, but when they looked around for their rig it was nowhere to be found. Some one had evidently been there during their absence and had been so taken with the rig that he borrowed it. The horse is a bay weighing about nine hundred pounds. There is no clue to the thief, although it is supposed that the deed was committed by a crowd of lawiess young fellows who have made life miscrable for the patrons of the lake for some time past by their numerous netty thefts. petty thefts.

Sunday at the Lake.

Manawa was visited by hundreds of people vesterday, as the result of the very warm weather, combined with the presence of such an attraction as Joseph Lavenmark, the noted Swedish diver. A tower sixty feet high had been crected near the toboggan slide on the south shore of the lake, with a projection of twenty feet extending over the water. From this the daring Swede leaped into the water below, headfirst, coming to the surface within ten feet of where he went down. The feat was watched- with the greatest interest by the spectators. Two exhibitions were given, one at 5 o'clock and the ther at 7. There were also other attractions. The bathing was the most popular, hundreds availing themselves of the opportunity of finding relief from the burning rays of the sun in the water. The boats were entirely inadequate to the traffic. Some of the people were even rash enough to try to fish, with but little success, however. The motor line comed money all day, and the estimates has right indicated that 8,000 people were carried to the lake during the day. Lemeumark will leave this morning for Lake Minnetonka, where he fills a fourteen-day engagement. He expects to make a drop indred and fifty feet to beat Steve Brodie's Brooklyn bridge record.

A Mrs. Besley of Omaha was in the city esterday looking for her fifteen-year-eld daughter, Rose, who wandered away from home last Tuesday and has not been seen since. She is supposed to have come to this city and the mother accordingly took the same direction. Mrs. Mesley is of the opinion that her daughter has fallen into the clutches of some designing rascal who lured her to this side of the river in order to carry out his designs against her. The woman went to a number of houses of questionable repute, in company with a police officer, but falled to find any trace of her daughter. The however, are satisfied that the has been in one of the houses, and that she was spirited away to provent her triends from finding her.

A Coming Comet.

Encke's comet was seen by Prof. E. E. Barnard at Lick observatory, Mount Hamilton, Cal., early Sunday morning. This wanderer has been journeying in space out of the sight of all star-gazers for three years and three months. In that time it has traveled more than 700,-000,000 miles:

Prof. Pons of Marseilles. France, dis-covered this comet in 1818. Prof. Eacke of Berlin made it the subject of special Encke predicted its return in study. 1822 and it wus seen in t at year by Sir Thomas Brisbane in New South Wates. Encke predicted that it would return again in 1825 and 1828. The comet did so, and the comet thus came to be known as Encke's.

Encke's comet is a very staid and repectable home body. It is very different from Biela's comet. This tramp of the heavens reported as usual in 1852 and winked one eye at the earth, but failed to show up at the appointed time n 1859 and again in 1865. Nothing has since been heard or seen of it. But Biela's comet was hardly responsible fo: what it did, because in 1846 it split into two parts, each a complete comet in it-cal Field. The decision of the United States distriet court, at New York, holding that the Brush company have the sole rights as patentees and manufacturers of electric storage batteries for the next ten years, is chiefly of interest to the public, ays the Philadelphia Press, because it deprives them of the advantages of competition in a most important direction of the development of electricity as a motive power. While the Brush comelectricity as a pany, is, by the decision, given the whole ield of the storage battery system in the United States, it is quite well known among experts that that corporahas paid little attention of tion

late years to the use of the elec-tric accumulator, and that its early and tentative experiments were founded upon the devices of Faure and Selous in France and Volkmar in Germany, The Brush company merely took up thei inventions, improved them somewhat by the employment of American ingenuity, and there halted. Since that time other electrical engineers and inventors have been hard at work to simplify the two leading objec-tions to the use of the storage battery as a motive power-its cost and its weight. Scientifically, it has long ago been proved a success, but in the commercial of value it is still a sense failure. That is to say that it costs more to drive street cars and railway cars by it than it does to operate them by horses or by steam. It has been found as a rule, by experiments made in this city, in New York, in Boston, in Paris, in London, and in Berlin, that although storage batteries would perfeetly fulfil all the requirements of a motor for disiances of twenty-five miles or more, they were still more expensive than any other common form of power that could be applied. The efforts of experts and inventors have lately been in the line of economizing the weight of the accumulators and prolonging their force, in both of which directions they have been measurably successful. They have brought the weight of the cells down from forty to lifteen pounds each, and they have extended the life of a battery of 100 cells, when actively employed as, a motor, from three to five hours. These were great and valuable advances upon the former systems, but their developers must now either sell out to the Brush company or await the expiration of its patents, fen years hence, to make their devices availabte to the public. Meanwhile the world, especially the North American quatter of it, is looking to electricity as the coming motor. There is a general expectation thatit will supplant horses and steam; that it will soon whirl passengers from city to city, and from point to point in the same city at a less cost than that of the steam engine or horse power, and that its future is full of promise and potency. These anticipa-tions are certain to be realized at a not distant date. It is becoming every day cheaper to manufacture electricity-that subtle and mysterious force, with the origin and nature of which the most profound scientists do not yet profess themselves to be thoroughly acquainted. With the reduction of the expense of production will come its application as an ordinary motor: but to secure that de sirable end the electrical experts must be permitted to exploit their inventions

The latter is, of course, cheaper, but is only to be had under exceptional circumstances. It is a fact well known to all well versed men that but from 15 to 20 per cent of the potential energy of the coal burned under a boiler reaches the engine, and there is a further loss in the transmission of power between the engine and the dynamo. Just here is where the principal item of expense of storage batteries occurs. But if their weight can be largely reduced without an accompanying loss of energy, it will be easily understood that their commercial use becomes proportionately possible. That is the problem which the experts have to solve, and we believe that they are in a fair way to success.

Here he notices that people accustomed to great regularity in eating and other physical habits during the week, make a practice of eating a late and unusually large dinner ou Sunday and lounging lazily around the house a great portion of the day instead of taking necessary exercise. This, of course, leads to temporary dyspepsia on Monday. The theory is ingenious.
