schools this year will be able and willing to sell the books at quite a discount from the prices which we are to pay. Five years is a long time, especially in the life of a school book, and those that are now selling at par will probably be selling anywhere from 25 to

50 per cent below par inside of three years, on account of the frequent revisions that they are put through. There has been a decrease of about 30 per cent in the last five years, and there is no reason why the same ratio of decrease should no

take place in the next five. As soon as the books depreciate in value so that the stores

A Mrs. Newman, who lives eighteen miles in the country, but is now visiting friends at the corner of Twenty-second street and Avenue C, fainted away last evening while at-tending the Salvation army services. She was carried across the street to the police station, where she was revived. The patrol wagon was then brought into service and she was taken to her stopping place. Her case proved to be not serious, although it was at first feared it would be.

A runaway boy named Nat Jackson was found running about the streets a few days are and was taken by a police officer to the station. His father, N. P. Jackson, who lives a Melrose, was notified by telegraph of the boy's capture, and was asked what should be done with him. A telegram was received reply yesterday morning, ordering that he be sent back to Melrose in charge of the con ductor of the train. He started on his home ward journey yesterday.

Joseph Hall was arrested at a late hour Saturday night, charged with stealing a valise from a passenger who was waiting for the Union Pacific train, which he expected to take for the west. Hall was caught with the value in his possession and the latter was given to its owner, who took the train as he had intended. Hall was taken to the sta-tion, where he stayed all night without an information being filed against him. He will come up for a hearing this morning in police court, but he will be discharged as the pro secuting witness has disappeared.

Manawa's Mineral Water.

The artesian well at Lake Manawa is attracting a good deal of attention and many remarkable cures are reported as having been made by the use of its waters. Last spring the well was sunk to a depth of 185 feet, and a handsome pavilion built around it. The well was originally sunk in 1886, when the hotel was being built. Its strong mineral qualities were at once discovered and quantity of the water was sent to Prof. August Bode of Milwaukee, with the following result:

Sulphate of iron, 6.9. Sulphate of magnesium, 4.5. Phosphate of magnesium, 3.8.

Chalybeate, 3.4. sulphate of sodium, 3.6. Chloride of sodium, a trace. Reaction-Slightly alkaline. In a note accompanying the analysis rof. Bode says: "The mineral proper-Prof. Bode says: ties of the water are remarkable as

AMUSEMENTS.

In this work-a-day world of ours, which the late Mr. Dickens spoke about so feelingly, novelty and originality are sought after with as much zeal as characterized De Leon's search for the fabled fountain of youth, and as often they fail to materialize.

Theatre-goers, satiated, with the many types of character which have been exploited behind the footlights, now and then are permitted to enjoy a distinctively new creation and in consequence ly new creation and in consequence crowd the the theater upon whose stage a character new to the drama is being devel-oped. Such a condition of affairs obtained last night at the Farnam Street theater when "Ole Olson," "just from Oklahoma," applied for a "yob" and before the final cur-tain terminated the play, had secured not only a position but a place in the world, due to a native shrewdness and thorough adapta. to a native shrewdness and thorough adapta-

to a native shrewdness and thorough adapta-bility for whatever was required of him. No field is more fertile for the play-right than the developing of the Scandinavian character, and when Gus Heege last season gave to the stage a play the central figure of which was a Swede, the press and public recognized that a new personage had been added to the countless types of people who inhabit stage-land. Crowded houses every-where payed tribute to the author and actor, who in a season jumped from obscurity into popularity because he had gone out of the popularity because he had gone out of the beaten track for his story and had drawn inspiration from a sturdy, industrious nation

Last evening one of the largest houses ever seen in the old Boyd theater enjoyed to the utmost the complications which surround a Swede, whose name, Ole Olson, would have probably been answered by a hundred other Oles in the house had some one called it

There is some attempt made at a plot in the play, certainly a more ambitious effort than is usual with farce comedies, and the brunt of the story is born by Ole Oleson, which this season is played by Burt Hendricks, a this season is played by Burt Hendricks, a very careful, painstaking comedian, whose work is quite equal to that of his predecessor. In dialect he particulariz excells although he lacks the unctiousness which was a characteristic feature of Mr. Heege's performance. His singing is good, and with a handsome stage presence to send the hearts of the Swedish maidens in the audience to beating faster, be leaves little to be desired.
