

MEADLEY HOLY SPORTING DAYS.

Especially so far as Local Base Ball is Concerned. THE AUTUMNAL SHOOTING SEASON. Whispersing of the Wheel-Davis and Wools-Departure of the Plover and Interesting Questions Answered.

It must be a wise man, indeed, who can foresee the Omaha's base ball possessions for 1902. The dirty work done this year has dealt the game a blow that it will require a long time to recover from.

What Manager Bob Said. The manager went down to Kansas City last Monday, the team, in charge of McGilene, left for Fremont at the same time. The understanding between the manager and the third baseman was that, if the club was to quit, Leadley was to telegraph, "It is rubber boots for the balance of the season?"

Of course this was glorious news to the gang, whose vision had been afflicted with prospective long walks and with snow balls for a winter diet. In fact, some of them were terrified by the apprehension that they would have to go to work, as they hadn't seen a cent of salary in a month, and they feared they never would again.

The Sportsman's Idyl. The upland plover has winged his way farther south, and not until another eight months round will his plaintive whistle be heard on meadow and hillside. Invariably with the arrival of Jack Frost the birds depart, going out in the night, like the feathered species without whom as saying farewell to the respectful sportsman. The birds' migration is nocturnal, and it is seldom that man, however watchful, witnesses either their arrival or departure.

For nick names the clubs of the late lamented Western association certainly took the greater cracker. For instance, the "Cowboys" were known as the "Brewers"; the Omaha's, "Shannon's Lambs"; Sioux City, "Corn Huskers"; Kansas City, "Cowboys"; Lincoln, "Farmers"; Denver, the "Mountaineers"; Minneapolis, the "Millers"; and St. Paul, the "Apostles."

The Davis-Woods Battle. The festive event which is now attracting the attention of San Francisco, the pugilist Mecca, is the battle in the Pacific club September 21, between the Omaha heavy weight, Dick Davis, and Billy Woods, the Denver man. The Chronicle of last Monday says, "Woods is an aspirant for the championship, and the coming fight will help to show his claims to taste distinction. Aside from the ordinary professional rivalry, there is considerable personal feeling between Davis and Woods and their intimate backers."

The Real Standing. The standing of the Western Association clubs since the commencement of the new schedule up to yesterday, is as follows: Played. Won. Lost. Per cent. Omaha..... 10 6 4 .600

End of a Hum Season. Friday's game with Denver closes the hum season of 1901 on the Omaha grounds. Manager Leadley, who has worked hard and industriously in Omaha's interests, saw that his efforts were useless, and during the game informed the team that he would not bring the team back here from Sioux City, and he had to telegraph President Knauthoff, Mr. Leadley's indulgent employer, that he had no base ball experience in Omaha, and proposed that the Rockies be had over head and over heels.
