OFFICE: - NO. 12 PEARL STREET. | Burglars Raid Hart's Jewslry Store with Great Succ. ss.

MANY VALUABLE WATCHES SECURED.

While the Room Was Brightly Illuminated and an Officer Patrolled the Sidewalk, the Work

Was Done.

A. A. Hart, who keeps a jewelry store at 537 Broadway, was visited by burglars yesterday morning, for the third time within a year and a half. When he opened his store about a o'clock in the morning, be received. the first intimation that all had not gone right during the night. The outer doors of his safe stood wide open, while the inner doors lay scattered on the floor, together with a ch set and sledge hammer, which had evidently been used by the thieves in effectng an entrance. On the show case near the ruins of the safe lay all the watch cases and ewelry trays which he had put in the safe jeweiry trays which he had put in the safe before locking up Monday night, entirely stripped of their contents. Not a thing was left in the store in the way of watches and jeweiry, but the stock was otherwise untouched, so far as is now known. Mr. Hart places his loss at about $1,000, which was considerably over half of all he had.

The burglars had entered through the back door. They had first attempted to force their way through a window, and had bored a dozen holes in a wooden shutter in such a way as to enable them to break it off. They had also cut away some of the putty on one had also cut away some of the putty on one of the panes of glass, but had then for some reason or other abandoned that part of the performance. After obtaining entrance to the shed on the rear of the building they cut ut one of the panels of the inside door and ocked the door from the inside. 'A light was burning on the show case no three feet from the safe, and it was still burning when Mr. Hart opened up yesterday norning, so that the thieves must have done their work with surprising boldness. They succeeded in some way in getting the outer doors of the safe open. Mr. Hart, is certain be shut them and locked them when he went nome at night, and the one mystery con nected with the case is how any safe blower who manifested so much greenness in some of his other transactions could master the combination and get into the safe in the pro-fessional style. After the outer doors were opened a hole was drilled in the inner door and the com-bination blown to pieces with powder, and the thieves then had everything their own way.

The tools which were found on the floor in the morning were identified by G. H. Brown as being the ones stolen from his blacks with shop on upper Broadway, and consequently the same ones that were used in cracking the safe at the Consolidated Tank line office last Friday night. There is no clue to the perpetraters of the deed, but public opinion puts it down to the credit of a gang of well known toughs who have been permitted by the authorities to lie around the city for months past without molestation.

Lwing has Skipped. An information has been filed in Justice Hammer's court by Mable Ward, an Omaha young lady, charging Charles C. Ewing of Omaha with seduction. A warrant has been issued for his arrest and has been placed in the hands of an officer, but in some way Ewing has been enabled to clude the man with the star. Ewing was the recipitent of considerable notoriety some time ago by reason of certain acts of his in Omaha while he was connected with the Commercial college of that city, but ever since his escapade became publiche has been biding from the officers. Monday afteroon he was seen on the street with a young lady, and a warrant was immediately put in the hands of a constable, but he postponed making the arrest until after he had gone on a fishing excursion, so Ewing made his es-cape. He has not been seen since.

How the Missouri Changed. The taking of evidence in the Cut-Off sland case was resumed yesterday morning in the office of Attorney General Stone. Nebraska was represented bp C. J. Greene of Omaha and Iowa by Attorney General Stone; City Attorney Stewart and Smith McPherson of Red Oak. The first witness was the city surveyor, Thomas Tostevin, who had on hand all of maps which had been drafted for the purpose of showing the movements of the river in the vicinity of Cut-Off. A large part of the morning session was occupied in taking Mr. Tostevin's testimony.

In the afternoon a number of old settlers were present and their testimony was taken, most of it consisting of recitals of incidents which were calculated to show the uncertain character of the river, and the sudden and great changes it has made in its channel. The most interesting was Martin Hughes, in a delicious nanner. His methods the contractor, who has been a resident of Council Bluffs for twenty-five years. He and peculiar intenation he assumes in check-ing off the things which will shorten his days, if they are indulged, are irresistably side of the river in a single acasen, pleasing. and he had to exercise the greatest watchfulness in moving his machinery well away from the river in the night for fear it would be in the water before morning. He also testified that the St. Joseph Railroad company had been compelled to move its tracks between Coun-cil Bluffs and Pacific Junction, which ran along his property, six or seven times and a total distance of two miles on account of suc-cessive encroachments of the river. The testimony will be resumed this morn-ing, and about a dozen witnesses are still to be examined. It is probable the work will be completed today.

The afternoon session of court was given up entirely to a memorial service in honor of Judge Love. The members of the bar from this city, together with those who have come from a distance to attend court, assembled in the court room. As the clock struck 3 Dep uty Clerk Hunter entered the room, followed by Judge Shiras of the circuit court, Judga I. R. Reed of the court of private land claims and Judge Woolson. Court was opened, and the exercises begun with the reading of resolutions by Judge James W. McDill of Alton, one of the prominent attorneys of the state and formerly a member of the district bench. John N. Baldwin of Council Bluffs followed the reading of the resolution with a speech, in which he eulogized Judge Love as excelled by none in strength of thought, plainness of speech, and judicial firmness and integrity. He was followed by Assistant District Attorney W. C. Howell of Keokus, who read a set of resolutions prepared by the members of the Keckuk bar. Judge Woolson then read a paper in which he called at-tention to the financial disasters in the midst of which Judge Love took the bench, and the problems growing out of the close of the war, the development of the great west and all the other questions with which his decisions dealt. He paid an eloquent tribute to the personal worth and the professional integ-rity of the deceased.

Struck by a Motor The Fairmount park motor got in its work again last night, and this time Joseph Campbell, an engineer on the Wabash, whose home is at Sanberry, Mo., was the victim. He was crossing Broadway about 8 o'clock, ust above Bryant street, and the motor was coming down street in charge of Conductor Thorne and Motorman Eastman. Campbell was watching the Salvation army, which was stationed at the corner. A friend who was with him saw the motor coming and called to him to get out of the way, but the noise prevented his hearing the warning, and the motor caught him just as he was

He was thrown fifteen feet and fell on his head on the pavement. He was picked up and carried, unconscious, into Atkins' drug store, where Dr. Lacey attended him. His niuries were confined to a terrible gash in the back of his head from which the blood flowed in a stream, and some bruises about the back. It was thought possible that he might have sustained internal injuries, but that can not be decided positively until later. Campbell was taken to the Wabash round louse where he spent the night.
