Something About William Palmer's Peculiar Business Transactions.

HE DISAPPEARS IN A MYSTERIOUS WAY.

At the Same Time a Valuable Watch of a Priend is Missing and He is Suspicioned of Larceny.

William Paimer, a well known young man who has been painting signs around the city for several years past, has disappeared, and Mrs. Lenox, a cook at the Pacific house, is considerably interested to know of his whereabouts. The two have been exceelingly good friends for some time, and Palmer has been allowed a good many liberties about her house. Day before yesterday he was in her room, and after he had left she missed a fine gold watch and chain which had been lying

When Palmer left the city she came to the conclusion that he had stolen the watch, and she put a detective on his trail. He is supposed to have gone to Lincoln. Some time ago Palmer got possession of the same watch, and a short time after it turned up in a pawn-broker's shop. Mrs. Lennox redeemed the time piece and forgave all, but the chances are now that if she finds that she has again been made the victim of Palmer's peculiar business transactions, something will be to pay

Strange Actions of a Woman at the Warden Home.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 30.—At 9 o'clock Monday night the door beil of Farmer Warden's house (the home of Almy's victim) was rung by a woman who said as the door "Here is a lady who wants to stay all night,

The visitor had on a stylish hat with a veil drawn over her face and wore a long circular reaching to the floor. The stepped forward at once into the house and without any preliminary said: "I came up here to stay tonight. I want to see Christle's room and sleep in her bed. I come as a friend." The family was startled but requested her o sit down. They asked the object of her visit, but she said she was very tired and would explain all in the morning. Oscar Warden of Monroe, N. H., brother of A. H. Warden, noticed that the visitor had a somewhat masculine appearance and his suspicions were aroused. While sitting on the sofa he suddenly seized her hand and after a struggle in which the intruder de-veloped muscular power unusual for a woman, the circular was removed disclosing person dressed in a Prince Albert coat

est and trousers, with a white bosom shirt. The intruder then declared that she was a oman and her name was Dr. Mary Walker The woman, who had become much excited refused to talk, further than to say that she had come to save Andrew Warden's life, and would make further statements in the Neighbors were called and sat up with the woman until morning. The family this morning could not be convinced that the person was not a man. Mr. Warden said that no woman of her size could possess her strength and besides the large neck, hands, feet and the voice was masculine. He felt so confident of this, and that there were confederates about, that he and a neighbor stood guard all night armed with shotguns, nembers of the family were so excited that they also sat up all night. About 2 a. m. steps were heard by the outside watchers, but the bark of Warden's dog frightened away whoever made them.

The alleged Mary Walker is about five feet five inches tall, 40 years old, with very dark hair, rather long, with traces of gray, has a short face with no sign of a beard, and wears steel corsets and spectacles. She has written Mr. Warden several letters, To identify herself, she showed two receipts for regis tered letters dated Boston, September 18, bearing the name of Dr. Mary Walker and some baggage checks from a Boston hotel, also $75 in money. Two or three persons who claim to know Dr. Mary Walker claim that this person is not she. Solicitor Mitchel telegraphed to have ner held until his arrival The intruder later volunteered the information that "This Almy they have arrested is not the man who killed Christie Warden." She arrived from the north on the 8 o'clock train Monday night and was taken to Warden's house by a local liveryman. Mitchell came to Hanover last night and has positive assurance that the person is a woman. Solicitor Mitchell made his preparations for the arrest and arraignment of the woman, but after a long interview with her he decided to await the results of efforts which are being made to establish her identity. DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Bestlittle Gaulois says: pill ever made. Cure constipation every time. None equal. Use them now.

GEN, BOULANGER'S LAST COUP

CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE. his suicide was the stoppage a few days ago of his political subsidies from supporters, indicating that his career was finished. It is rumored that archbishop of Mailines has refused to authorize a religious service on the occasion of the funeral of General

Boulanger.

Boulanger.

Boulanger visited the cemetery at 8 o'clock in the morning. He then returned home and arranged some papers.

The property left by Mmc. Honnemain had been judiciously tied up in order to prevent her bequeating it to General Boulanger. The first sojourn of the pair in Brussels and in London cost $200,000. Another $200,000 was fritted away over his papers and election funds. Beyond needless extravagance the general never tried to feather his own next, as did many of his pretended adherents.

M. Constans, minister of the interior, on RSM. Constans, minister of the interior, on hearing of the suicide, said he genuinely grieved the general's death. He was conscious that he was responsible for the upsetting of the popular ido by a packed though illegally constituted tribunal. In other political quarters it is remembered to the general's credit that he practically

His son-in-law, Major Driant, was virtually barished on his account to Tunis, where the climate was unsuited to Mme. Driant, whose two children died recently. made the foundation of the entente with langer was a bombshell in the Boulangist camp. The absent leaders were forthwith requested by telegraph to return to Paris for a party meeting to decide upon the issue of a manifesto to the public. The manifesto will probably announce the continuation of the revisionist policy.

Rome, Sept. 30.—The news of the suicide of General Boulanger has caused considerable excitement in Italy, where he was regarded as a natural enemy. Signor Crispi treated him with contempt, out military men looked upon him as a fore-unner of war between Italy and France.

Prayed for Him Silently.

When Cardinal Bampolla, the panil secre-try of state, informed the pope of the generit's sulcide the pope uttered an exciamation of sadness and prayed silently.

The general's private life piaced him on the black books of the vatican, yet his career was watched with feverish vigilance there. The French pilgrims now here were much ex-cited on hearing of the general's suicide.

Comments of the French Press. The suicide of General Boulanger caused a sensation in Paris. All the evening papers contained obituary articles, but none, with with the exception of LeJour, reflects upon he political aspects of the general's life LeJour says:

Boulanger knew the intoxication of the wildest and noisest popularity. It was he who said to politicians that the weakness of one too often influenced the decision of another. His own end fully justifies that dictum. He had not the courage to survive her who sacrificed herself for him. LeJours' article concludes with a scathing omparison between the manner of his death and his imperialistic pretenses. Des Debats, in commenting upon the career of General Boulanger, says: Perhaps he thought to be a Casar or Napoleon, though he had none of their genius. Harsh words are needless. His eventful life ended in death, which, although miserable, was dramatic. In all likelihood the suicide was prompted by sincere feeling.

Le Solell remarks: It was a strange destiny, after living like itelius, to die like Werther. Yet, what a plendid career Boulanger might have had as simple soldier.

Boulanger,s death was his last blunder. M. Rochefort, in a communication pub ished today, says:

If anything could overcome my deep grief t is the excess of indignation I feel at the foul abuse poured out on my dear worthy friend by his persecutors. La Liberte says:

The life of a man who could have upset the republic, had be chosen to agitate France to an enormous degree, has ended like that of a hero of romance or of a novel. He died as far away from home.

La Patri says: and not like that of a herole soldier. LONDON, Sept. 30 .- The Berlin correspondent of the news telegraphs: Germany has lost one of her greatest foes, for he knew that the possibility of recovering his power lay in a war with Germany.

THE OLD RELIABLE RADIANT HOME STOVES.

Reware of cheap initations. If you don't want to pay the price of a first grade stoves we have stoves a whole lot cheaper, but it is the quality of from the perfect fitting of doore and loints that makes a good stove cost mor, than a cheap one. A stove made of $17 from weighing $50 pounds, don't cost as much as a stove made of $20 from; a stove with joints put together just as the castings come from the sand don't cost as much as where they are all ground to an air-tight fit, yet the one stove costs less, wastes fuel and lasts only a few years, gives poor satisfaction, and in the end costs three times as much as a genuine Radiant Home or P. P. Stewart Heater. We sell both cheap stoves and good stoves. Honest representation. Will sell on installments.
