WILL HOLD A POST MORTEM.

The Exact Cause of Parnell's Death to Be Officially Ascertained.

WILL BE BURIED AT HIS BIRTHPLACE.

Hints Thrown Out That the Paris Fund May Be Found Greatly Depleted-Archbishop Walsh's Severe Comment.

LONDON, Oct. 8. -It has been decided to hold a post mortem examination of the body of Parnell, with a view to settling definitely the cause of death. A dispatch from Brighton says the doctor's certificate states that death was caused by rheumatic fever, resulting in excessive temperature and failure of the heart. Dr. Gowers, jr., and Dr. William Richard Gowers, F. R. S., both of whom wers in attendance upon Parnell during his last lilness, say that death was due to acute rheumatism and congestion of the lungs.

It was decided at a family council this afternoon that Parnell's remains should be accorded a public funeral and the body be interred at Avondale, county Wicklow, Ireland, where the dead leader was born. Mrs. Parnell is still prostrated with grief.

and though weak and exhausted from long watching and the terrible shock, positively refuses to partake of food or refreshment and will only see her daughter.

PARNELLISM WIPED OUT.

With the Death of the Leader Fac tional Fighting Ends. New York, Oct. 8 .- Harold Fredericks, It a dispatch from London to the Times, says of Parnell: "He looked always extremely fragile and in earlier days danger of collapse gave much concern to his party. But when they learned how and where his long absences from his post, which he explained on the score of ill health, were really spent, incredulity as to his condition succeeded and all sides ceased thinking of it. Parnell always led an indolent life. He took very littic exercise, shooting over his Avondale preserves only five or six days. in the year. Hence, when the schism came, with the necessary strenuous, constant exertion, he was unable to stand it. He appeared before the audience at Creegs, in Galway, with bis arm in a sling. This trouble developed into pericarditis. Quite in keeping with the habits of his life no one knew he was ill till startled by the announcement of his death.

"Naturally there were stories of suicide. There was of course a possibility that the intensity of the rheumatic pains prompted him to the excessive use of anæsthetics, but there seems to be no other ground for the rumors which were suggested doubtless by the strange Balmaceda and Boulanger parallels of the last month.

Politically the effect will be literally overwhelming. Parnell's death releases the Paris fund, which McCarthy will at once apply to the succor of evicted tenants. I violate no confidence or canon of good taste in saying that the leaders of the Irish party are fully prepared to find this sum smaller than Parnell represented it, and to discover claims against it which were hitherto unheard of. He had been lavish in his promises to devise means to divide the in his promises to devise means to divide the bulk of this fund among his adherents. They find themselves now in a most deplorable state, without a leader, without a party, without money, and bitterly hated by every respectable element in Irish life. Only a few of them will be allowed to return to the national foid. The others may desperately strive to raily the dregs of Fenianism, but the utmost they can do is to keep ireland disturbed during the winter. Perhaps they will not even try to do that. I doubt if they will try to make a contest in either the Cork or Kilkenny vacancies. In fact, the factional fight in Ireland which yesterday was a pitiful yet exasperating affair, is today dead as Julus Cæsar."

ATTACKING PARNELL'S MEMORY.

Archbishop Walsh Can Find No Place for Charity.

New York, Oct. 8 .- A cable states that the Dublin Catholic, an official organ of the Catholic hierarchy, prints today a leader written by Archbishop Walsh. The prelate boldly follows Parnell into the grave with the denunciations of the church. He says: Mr. Parnell's death is one of those events which remind the world of God. So far as known, Mr. Parnell died unrepentant of the offense against his God and his country. He died plotting fresh discord, while the champion or tool of faction, steeped in traitorism to the very lips. By the grave now open charity can scarcely find a place. Such tears as are shed must be for the memory of what he had once been. once been.
The name of Parnell and the story of Ire-

The name of Parnell and the story of Ireland's destinies are forever linked. The record of his services must always live. The pity is that it must be read through the tangled veil woven in his latter days of pride, sinfulness and faisity. Parnell's name may still be used as a rallying cry for treachery. The weeds which grow on the grave of a dead cause are noxious and rank. But there is no cause to fear that those which spring from the tomb of Parnellism will'be able to thwart the freedom of Ireland. Her feet are strong enough to tread down the unholy growth.

The close of Parnell's career is one of terrible significance. Death has come in the home of sin, his last glimpse of the world unhallowed by the consolation of religion, his last memory linked forever with hers whose presence seems to forbid the thought of repentance. He has passed into eternity without a sign of sorrow for the insuit offered to morality, for his effense against the law resting at the base of society, for his revolt against his native land and against the annointed prelates and ministers of God's church.

IRELAND STILL LIVES.

The Death of a Leader Does Not Seal Her Doom.

DUBLIN, Oct. 8 .- The Evening Press, the McCarthylte organ, says: "The death of Parnell is a terrible lesson to those who thought the Irish nation should take his life the lease of Ireland's safety. They almost pretended that he was god-like and undying. We cannot forget, even at this moment, how they calculated ously that the death of McCarthy would place Parnell is possession of the Paris fund. God bless the faithful people who did not fail to see that the nation's cause did not depend on the mortality of man. Parnell is dead and freland lives. If all the leaders of Ireland passed away with him, Ireland's cause will yet be fulfilled."

Will Maintain a Truce. LONDON, Oct. 8.-Mr. Timothy M. Healy, member of parliament for North Lougford, and probably Mr. Parnell's most bitter onponent, was asked today for an expression of epinion upon the political situation. He de-clined to say anything regarding politics, remarking: "As Mr. Harrington has declined to make a statement concerning the intention of his party, we, for our part, are de termined to maintain a truce for the present." #### HE WAS SAVED.

Two smooth bunco men visited Hawthorne Ia., a few days ago and after locating a few wealthy men picked out Ben Reynolds for a victim.

It was the old time gold brick swindle and worked. A gold brick was shown to Reynolds by the sharpers and tested. It was found to be pure gold, and the confidence men told their victim that they had two more of the gold bricks planted with an Injun near Pueblo and that they would sell the three for $10,000 cash. Out of the goodness of their hearts the swindlers agreed to pay Reynolds' railroad fare to Colorado if he would buy the gold. This was agreed to and Reynolds drew the money from the bank and started for the west in company with the sharpers.
Some relatives of Reynolds caught onto the rame after he had left and telegraphed to Omaha to have the old man arrested on the charge of insanity.

The message arrived too late, but was for-warded to Lincoln, where Reynolds was taken into custody, thus saving him from the sharpers, who were allowed to escape, Friends of the old man started yesterday for Lincoln to explain matters to the authorities and to take Reynolds home.

Speech at the Banquet of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee at Chicago Last Night.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 8,-The Society of the Army of the Tennessee resumed its session this morning. It is reported that $67,000 has been raised for a monument to General Logan, and the artist is now at work upon the design. St. Louis has been fixed upon as the place for holding the next annual meet-

General G. N. Dodge of Iowa was chosen president for the ensuing year. The committee on monument to General Sherman recommended it be erected at Washington, and the recommendation was adopted and a committee appointed to solicit funds and ask congress to make an appropriation and aid in the work.

A banquet was given this evening at the Palmer house. It was the crowning social event of the convention. Covers were laid for 650 guests. The dining hall was deco-rated with flags and martial bands played the songs soldiers love to hear.

A more distinguished and gallant company than gathered guished and gallant company than gathered under the sparkling chandellers at the Palmer house is seidom witnessed around the festive board and the oratory was simply superb. The War is Over-Let Us Have Peace. In response to the toast, "The War is Over —Let Us Have Peace," Mr. Henry Watter-son spoke substantially as follows:

son spoke substantially as follows:

I believe that at this moment the people of the United States are nearer together, in all that constitutes kindred feeling and interest, than they have been at any time since the adoption of the federal constitution. If it were not so I should hardly venture to come here and talk to you as I am going to talk tonight. As it is, surrounded though I be by union soldiers, my bridges burned and every avenue of escape cut off. I am not in the least discouraged or alarmed. On the contrary, I never felt safer or happier or more at home. Indeed I think that, supported by your presence and sustained by these commissary stores, I could stand a seige of several months and hold out against incredible odds. It is wonderful how circumstances alter cases; for it was not always so.

I am one of many witnesses who live to tell It was not always so.
I am one of many witnesses who live to tell

It was not always so.

I am one of many witnesses who live to tell the story of a journey to the moon and back! It may not be that I have any marvers of personal adventure or any prodigles of individual valor to relate, but I do not owe my survival to the precaution taken by a member of the confederate battery commanded by the brave Capthin Howells of Georgia. It was the nabit of this person to go to the rear whenever the battery got well under fire. At last Captain Howells called him up and admonished him that, if the breach of duty was repeated, her would shoot him down as he went, without a word. The reply came on the instant: "That's all right, one in that's all right, one in that's all right, one in the dadburned if I'm going to let them darn'd Yankees do it!" I at least gave you the opportunity to try, and I am much your debtor that, in my case, your marksmanship was so defective.

You have been told that the war is over. I think that I, myself, have heard that observation. I am glad of it. Roses smell sweeter than gunpowder; for every-day uses the carving knifels preferable to the bayonet or the sabre, and, in a coptest for first choice between cannon balls and wine corks, I have a decided prejudice in favor of the latter.

Better Acquainted Now.

Better Acquainted Now.

Better Acquainted Now.

The war is over; and it is well over. God reigns, and the government at Washington still lives. I am glad of that. I can conceive nothing worse for our children, than what might have been if the war had ended otherwise, leaving two exhausted combatants to become the prey of foreirn intervention and diplomacy, setting the clock of civilization back a century, and splitting the noblest of the continents into five or six weak and warring republics, like those of South America, to repeat in the new world the mistakes of the oid.

The war is over, truly; and, let me repeat. It is well over. If anything was wanting to prociaim its termination from every house-top and door-post in the land, that little brush we had last spring with Signor Macaroni furnished it. As to the touch of an electric beil, the whole people railied to the brave words of the secretary of state, and, for the moment, sections and parties sunk out of sight and thought in one over-mastering sentiment of razehood, manhood and nationality.

I shall not stop to inquire whether the war thought in one over-mastering sentiment of razehood, manhood and nationality.

I shall not stop to inquire whether the war made us better than we were. It certainly made us better acquainted, and, on the whole, it seems to me that we are mone the worse for that better acquaintance. The truth is, the trouble between us was never more than skin deen; and the curious thing about it is that it was not our skin, anyhow! It was a black skin that brought it about.

As I see it, our great sectional controversy was, from first to last, the gradual evolution of a people from dirkness to light, with no charts or maps to guide them, and no experience to lead the way.

The framers of our constitution found themselves unable to fix decisively and to define accurately the exact relation of the states to the federal government. On that point they left what may be described as an "open clause," and through that open clause, as through an open door, the grim spectre of disunion stalked. It was attended on one hand by African slavery; on the other hand by sectional jeniousy, and between this trio of evil spirits, the household flower of peace was torn from the lintel and tossed into the flames of war.

the information of the British minister.

Good Came from It.

In the beginning all of us were guilty, and equality guilty, for African slavery. It was the good fortune of the north dirst to flad out that slave labor was not profitable. So, very sousibly, it sold lis slaves to the south, which very disastrously pursued the delusion. Time at last has done its perfect work; the south which week it now as the north saw before it: that the system of slavery, all twiss maintained by us, was the clumsiest and coatlest labor system on earth, and that when we took the field to fight for it we set out upon a fool's errand. Under slave labor the yield of cotton never reached 5,000,000 hales. Under free labor it has never fallen below that figure, gradually ascending to 6,000,000 and 7,000,000. Unit into your it is about to reach nearly 0,000,000 hales. This tells the whole story. I am not here to take politics, of course. But I put it to you whether that is not a pretty good showing for free black labor and whether with such a showing the southern whites can afford any other than just and kind treatment to the blacks without whom, indeed, the south would be a briar patch and half our national gold income a gabing hole-in-the-ground.

Gentlemen. I beg that you will not be apprehensive. I know full well that this is neither a time, nor place, for abstract economics; and I am not going to afflict you with a dissertation upon free trade, or free silver. I same, primarily, to bow my head and to pay my measure of homage to the statue that was unveiled today. The career and the name which that statue concentorates belong to me no less than to you. When I followed him to the grave—proud to appear in his obsequies, though as the obscurist of those who bore any official part therein—i felt that I was neiping to bury, not only a great man, but a true friend. From that day to this the story of the life and death of General Grant has more and more impressed and southed me. Watterson on Grant.

Interest and southed me.

Watterson on Grant.

I never allowed myself to make his acquaintance until he had quitted the white house. The period of his political activity was fail of uncouth and unsouring partisan contention. It was a kind of civit war. I had my duty to do, and I did not there trust myself to the subduing influence of what I was sure must follow friendly relations botween such a one as he was and such a man as I knew myself to be. In this I was not mistaken, as the sequel proved. I mat him for the first time beneath my own vine and fig tree, and a happy series of accidents. Hereafter, gave me the opportunity to meet him often and to know him well. He was the cubodiment of simplicity, integrity and courage: every inch a general, a soldier and a man, but in the circumstances of his last likess, a figure of heroic proportions for the contemplation of the ages. I recall nothing in history so sublime as the spectacle of that brave spirit, broken in fortune and in health, with the dread hand of the dark annel cluthed about his throat, struggling with every breath to hold the clumsy, unfamiliar weapon with which he sought to wrest from the laws of death a little something for the support of wife and children when he was gone? If he had done nothing else, that would have made his exit from the world an immortal epic.

A little while after I came home from the last scene of all, I found that a woman's hand had collected the insignial had worn in the magnificent, melancholy pageant—the orders assigning me to duty and the funeral scarfs and badress—and had grouped and framed them; unbidden, silently, tenderly; and when I reflected that the hands that dad this were those of a loving southern woman. Whose father had fallen on the confederate side in the battle, I said: "The war indeed is over; let us have peace!" Gentlemen, solders, comrades; the silken folds that twine about us here, for all their soft and careless grace, are yet as strong as hooks of steel! They hold together a united people and a great na Val Greasy, who was suspended from the minis-terial functions by Bishop Bowman. The report went all over the evidence and decided without dissent that the suspension was unlawful, unjust and opposed to the dis-cipline of the church. The adoption of this report is considered by some to be an indica-tion of what the verdict will be in reference to the cases of Bishops Bowman and Esher. Rev. B. DID NOT VIOLATE THE AGREEMENT. Information for the Benefit of the British Minister.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 .- Treasury Agent Williams made a special report to the secretary in regard to the allegation that this government had violated the provisions of the Behring sea modus vivendi in allowing the North American Commercial company to catch seals in excess of the limit fixed by that instrument, viz: 7,500 seals. Mr. Wil-liams' report shows that nearly 9,000 seals were taken by the company since the season pened, but since the date of the agreement riz: June 15, the catch has been less than 4,000 skins. The report will be sent to the State department and a copy will be made for the information of the British minister.

Rival Railway Conductors' Organizations Finally Consolidated.

THEY FAVOR GENERAL FEDERATION.

Employes of Specific Branches of the Train Service Admonished to Come Into the Fold and Avoid Discord.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. S .- [Special Tolegram to THE BEE. |-The commission appointed by the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors at their last convention, met the board of directors and officers of the Order of Railway Conductors here today and a consolidation of the two bodies was effected. The brotherhood gave up its charter and the new association will continue under the title of the Order of Railway Conductors until the matter can be finally passed upon by the grand division of the order, the latter to accept the membership of the former and to be continued as at present organized. It was unanimously agreed that the organization as consolidated should use its influence in favor of a general federation between all organizations in the train service and to bring it about as soon as possible.

Members of the brotherhood are to surren der the insurance certificates held by them and to receive in exchange certificates issued by the consolidated order and all members are required to carry at least $1,000 insurance in the association. It was unanimously agreed that it was for the best interests of all concerned that railway employes should connect themselves with the organizations representing the specific branch of train service in which they are engaged, and that an organization whose membership is composed of those engaged in different branche of the service is liable to provoke discord and dissention among all.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

Present Year's Extensions Less Than Five Thousand Miles CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 8.-The Railway Age, in its edition tomorrow, will say that during the first nine mouths of the present year there were constructed in the United States 2,892 miles of main line on 186 different roads. It is estimated that the total number of miles constructed during the entire year will fall below 5,000. Last year the total construction was 5,738. Chairman Goddard, Commissioner Farmer, Chairman Blanchard and Vice Chairman Donald, composing the Board of Rulings, met here today to consider routine matters. Tomorrow they meet to consider the attitude some of the eastern roads relative to the recent order affecting divisions on through traffic via the Indians, Illinois & Iowa road The Western Passenger association has adjourned without taking action on the report of the committee having in charge the revision of the agreement. A special meet-ing of general managers is to be called to dider this matter. The special east bound freight committee met today to inquire into certain alleged manipulations of rates. Consideration was given to the continued diversion of traffic to the routes north and south of Chicago, with a view of ascertaining, if possible, the real cause of such diversion, in order that some remedy may be applied. FAVORED THE BURLINGTON.

Atchison & Nebraska Company's Charter Will Not Be Forfeited. LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 8 .- [Special to THE BEE. |-John H. Ames, the referee in the case of the State of Nebraska versus the Atchison & Nebraska Railway company, now owned by the Burlington has filed his report on the case with the supreme court. This is the case that was instituted to declare forfeited the charter of the Atchison & Nebraska Railway company from the alleged fact that it was illegally consolidated with the B. & M. to the corresponding injury of the communit s through which the Atchison & Nebraska operated its lines.

Mr. Ames' findings are for the defendant railroad companies. He gives a detailed review of the evidence adduced and upon the facts so elicited renders his findings. It was the argument of the state and the testimony of some witnesses that the competitive rates for Lincoln and points between Atchison and Lincoin were destroyed by the consolidation. The referce in his findings of fact in this charge says that from the evidence there was no showing that points on the Atchison & Nebraska were especially favored over points on the B. & M. before consolidation. He finds that rebates existed on both roads and his conclusion is that from the evidence, re-bates continued to exist after the consolidation and that the evidence shows that rates were not increased after the consolidation was effected.

As a further fact the referee finds that other companies have since invaded the Atchison & Nebraska territory, and that now to segregate that road from the Burlington system, with which it is consolidated. would be practically to utterly annihilate it as a commercial agent. Upon the law point in the case, the question of the illegal consolidation of the road with the Burlington, Mr. Ames finds that from the evidence that the consolidation was not in violation of section 3, article X, of the constitution, but was a walld lease under the provisions of chapter 16 of the compiled statutes. The conclusion of the referee's report is that owing to the building of the new competing lines and from the fact that the Atchison & Nebraska, if operated independently, would be utterly de-stroyed as an instrument of commerce, the court, in the exercise of its discretion and for the promotion of the public welfare, ought to refuse judgment of ouster.

Held to Court.

Sam Monacus, charged with abducting ulia Lagomasino and taking her to Chicago on September 4, had his case called in police court yesterday afternoon and waived examination. Monacus was held to the district court in $1,000 bail. AMUSEMENTS

As long as such plays as "Shenandoan" continue to be written by American dramatists, the great mass of theater goers have little cause to sigh for a truly American drama.

Bronson Howard, who has given to the amusement world so many brilliant stage pictures, could not have gone to a more fertile field for his motif than the valley of the Shenandoah, which was the key to many a trying situation during the memorable campaign of 1864. Located almost in the heart of the Blue Raige mountains, rich in picturesqueness, and memorable in the annals of the war for many sanguinary conflicts, the beau-tiful valley of Virginia gave unlimited op-portunity for the skilled playwright. And the master hand appreciating the limitless possibilities for local color and effect, has written a story which is the pio of war plays now commencing to demand at tention of theater goers.

Last night "Shenandoah" was produced for the third or fourth time in Omaha before a very large audience of interested people, who followed the fortunes of the men who honored the blue and gray, and the women who were their devoted sympathizers, with all the enthusiasm of a first performance.

The company producing the comedy was in the main satisfactory, although one longed for a little more snap and vigor among the ladies of the organization. Frank Dayton made a manly Colonel West, his scenes with his sweetheart Gertrude, being delightfully natural. Hardee Kirkland played General Haverill with nice discrimination.

Louis Hendricks as General Buckthorn lacked the gruffness essential to the character, nor did he seemingly appreciate the pos-sibilities which make the role one of the very best in the cast. Captain Heartsease was in the competent hands of N. De Mann, while William L. Gleason made a decided hit as the Irish sergeant, Barket, a delicious bit of comedy

Miss Mina Gleason played Gertrude Elling amiss Mina Gleason played Gertride Ellingham very daintilly, making much of the character, which is a gem in the way of stage heroines. Miss Grace Atwell was pleasing in the small part of Madeline. Miss Jessie Stewart as Constance Haverill, was womanly, although in the stronger drammtic scenes she although in the stronger dramatic scenes she lacked the sustained intensity necessary.

The play is particularly well mounted, a detachment from the Omaha guards giving an air of realism to the scenes in the valle in the garb of union soldiers. HE IS IN JAIL

George Smith, Who Assaulted Little Lizzie Yates Captured. George Smith, the negre charged with criminal assault upon little Lizzie Yates. waived examination in police court and was bound over to the district court. The bail was fixed at $2,000. The negro was arrested at noon verterday by Detectives Haze and Ellis at Twentieth and Lake streets, where he was concealed in a nay loft. He proved to be George Smith, who was taken to Council Bluffs a few weeks ago to answer for a similar crime, committed on Cutoff island, but managed to get clear.

He had on a different suit of clothes, but was identified by the little girl and by a woman who had seen him in the vicinity of the house. It is understood that he pawned the clothes that he wore Wednes day, and the police are now looking for them as a link in the chain of evidence against him.

Defeated the Liberals. Loynov, Oct. 8.-In the election to fill the vacancy in the house of commons for northeast Manchester caused by the appointment of Rt. Hon. Sir James Ferguson, the present member of that division, to the post-master generalship, Sir James Ferguson (conservative) received 4.058 votes to 3,908 for Mr. C. P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian, the liberal candidate.
