SEVEN HEATS IN ONE PACING RACE.

Great Time for a Two-Year-Old-Louisville and Denver and Jerome Park Races-General Sporting Notes.

TABLE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 9.- The week's Paces ended with darknesss and with the best events of the week. The great event of the day was the free-for-all pace carried over from yesterday, in which the fastest seven heats ever gone in a race were made. Grant's Abdallah, that yesterday showed phenominal speed, was a hot favorite, but Roy Wilkes took the first heat today and Guy a 16 to 2 shot horse won the three last heats and the race, making a phenominal finish in the first heat he won.

There was a surprise in the 2:24 trot in which Ben Davis was a not favorite selling in the pools for $25, field $15. Altie Mayes showed that she had in her the staying qual-Aties of her grand sire Hobert McGregor.

After the second heat of the 2:24 trot, Delmarch by Mambrino went against his record of 2:12, made last week in the third heat of a race. Bud Doble was up behind the handrated mile. The quarter was done in 33 seconds, the half in 1:06, three-quarters in 1:33¼ and the mile in 2:11⅓.

The Wizard Still Favors the Western

Traffic Association. NEW YORK, Oct. 9 .- Jay Gould this morning said there was no truth in the report tetegraphed from Chicago that he had refused to attend a meeting of the Western Traffic association advisory board or to send a representative to it. The meeting of the board which was to have been held in Chicago has been adjourned, Mr. Gould said, for lack of a quorum. Sub sequently Mr. Gould said: "Of course l could not take so long a trip just now and Mr. Clarke was detained in New York by important unexpected engagements. The association is running smoothly so far as 1 know and the commissioners are giving satisfaction in the bandling of the business of the association."

Samuel Spencer, the delegate of the St. Paul road, said today: "The adjournment was simply due to inability to obtain a quorem. There are fifteen members of the board and twelve are necessary to make a quorum. Several members had business engagements which prevented their attendance, and it would have been useless for the others to attempt to sit, so a notice of adjournment was sent out. There was no special subject of importance for the meeting to discuss, although ace is session many matters of an interesting character might have been brought up. The joint agency plan might have been in-troduced for discussion, but would not have been decisively acted on or some notice would have been given so that the matter could be fully considered by the various roads before

REPRESENTATIVE METHODISTS.

Yesterday's Proceedings of the Ecumenical Council at Washington. WASHINGTON, D. CL. Oct. 9 .- The morning ession of the Methodist ecumenical council was a most interesting one. Prominent clergymen of the faith made short addresses on various subjects. Among them were Rev. Dr. A. S. Hunt of New York, Rev. Thomas Mitchell of Hull, England. Rev. C. F. Reod of Florence, Ky., told of the birth of the Methodist union of China, Rev. Mr. Selby made a strong plea for the reuniting of Methodism. A number of others spoke on the same subject, and at the conclusion of the debate, recess was taken.

After recess, Bishop Warren of Colorado took the chair. Devotional services were held, Dr. Jewell of California reading the scriptures and delivering prayer.

Rev. D. A. Smith of the Methodist Episcopal church south of Nashville read the first paper of the afternoon session. His subject was "Christian Co-Operation." Mr. Smith was "Christian Co-Operation." Mr. Smith said:

The church of God is essentially one in all ages and places. This might consist with nuch variety in the non-essentials of creed and practice in the individual and the denomination. Unity was not uniformity, and the highest unity required the greatest variety of encowment work and mobility in a form that could adapt itself to its ever chauzing environment and speak in word and deed to each age ami nation in its own tongue. Nevertheless, much that was consistent with the spirit of unity and catholicity had appeared in the history of the church, and much still remained and gave great occasion for the enemies of the church to biasphene. The reform of the sixteenth century was the protest of individual right against the usurpation and tyranny of an ecclesinstical hierarchy, which chained authority of thought and conscience and conduct, making the church everything and the individual nothing. Enough of the old leaven came with the first Protestants to cause the church again to tend toward massing and ignore individual rights. But the right to protest, once taught, would be exercised, and division went once, frequently on trilling issues, until Protestantisms and divided in the numerous went once, frequently on trilling issues, until Protestantism was divided in the numerous denominations. The truth underlying all these divisions is this right of the individual to interpret for himself the word of God. It is a truth which God has taken long to impress. out which is worth the time and pains of teaching it. Continuing the speaker said:

The call for closer unity and co-operation among the churches comes up from all directions. We seem now to be at the day of organization and combination. It is a time of gigantic enterprises and rapid movement. In the industrial world today's needs are the measures of tomorrow's work. Shall the church be behind? No; the fullness of the time has come and the church of Christ—the one in heart and purpose—must move. In order to effect co-operation the spirit of intoicrance which has been the cause of divisions in the past must be set aside, and the equal rights and privileges of all God's people recognized. This recognition must be real and not formal. We have long been accustomed to the latter. It has found expression in gushing resolutions and splendid orations, which have been negativeted by our behavior toward each other. We should either do more or talk less. Consultation and adoption of plans for co-operative work will follow the recognition of equality among the Christians and natural respect for each others gifts and labors. Without respect for each other attempts at co-operation must fall; without consultation there will be confusion and conflict. The co-operative union desiderated may follow the process usual in nature—bringing into closer relations those located near each other, massing those nearest alike into larger bodies and the intercorrelation of these into an eclesiastical cosmo, one in purpose and effort. Continuing the speaker said: and the intercorrelation of these into clesiastical cosmos, one in purpose and effor but differing as members of the body in for and function.

Union is necessary in order to effectually christianize the benighted people of Christenchristanize the benighted people of Christendom.

Salvation is an individual work, but the benefits accruing are shared by the family and state. The church is not a political organization, but if it does not affect for good the state in which it exists, nor influence legislation toward righteousness, it has failed of its mission. There are stupendious evils for the gospel to destroy. The desceration of the Christian Sabbath, the loose divorce laws, the unholy passion for gain which tramples on right and virtue and gambles with the bread of the poor, and, above all, that blackest in the catalogue of evils, cruci and remorseless as hell—the leabove all, that blackest in the catalogue of evils, cruel and remorseless as hell—the legalized traffic in intoxicating liquors—all these and their accompanying evils must be destroyed. And for this work the world must look to the church. Cooperation is needed in philanthropic and educational work. Combination here means strength; division weakness. In the work of foreign missions there should be Christian comity and hearty helpfulness, When there is this union of sentiment and co-operation in work there will be in the church such enthusiastic devotion and personal conservatism as shall bear on wings of light the gospel of saivation to every creature. Rev. W. Redford of the United Methodis Free church, Bristol, England, the next speaker, treated of Christian co-operation in the old country. He said that in England the time was ripe for the final movement. Already there had been a number of religiou demonstrations there looking to that end. Unified the religious people could, before the twentieth century, close every drinking and sweater's shop, stop wars, and make it im-possible for the immoral to sit in high politi-

COMING TO AN UNDERSTANDING NOW.

Indications That the Irish Politicians Have Settled Their Differences-General Political News from Great Britain.

(Copyright, 1891, by New York: Associated Press London, Oct. 9 .- At no time since the break up of the liberal party or Mr. Gladstone's introduction of the home rule bill, have political circles been in such a state of ferment as now. The question of the succession to the house of commons leadership, made vacant by the death of William Harry Smith, excites the hopes and fears of conservatives and liberais alike. The former are agitated over the prospect of the accession of Mr. Gosnen, whom they detest, per sisting that his claims are past. The latter are exulting in the probability of a breach in the ranks of their opponents on the eve of the general elections,

Smith's Successor. Mr. Paraell's disappearance from the field of politics adds to the perplexity and heightens the interest of the situation. The political clubs of this city, usually deserted at this period of the year, have become within the last two days the foci for excited groups of politicians, grawn from the repose of the parliamentary recess toward the best center of information. The members of the Carlton club refuse to pelieve that Lord Salisbury will appoint Mr. Goschen to the position held by the late William Henry Smith, despite the open declaration made by the friends of Mr. Go.,chen that if he is passed over he will resign his place in the government. The liberals earnestly desire to see Mr. Gosenen succeed Mr. Smith, knowing that he would soon be at loggers with the house, and that tney could rely on his conduct as a leader to precipitate a dissolution of parliament.

Private representations have been made to Lord Salisbury by an important group of conservative members, who insist that Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, alone can command the united support of the party but are willing to accept the leadership of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, president of the Board of Trade, if the existing cabinet arrange of Trade, if the existing capital arrangements render the appointment of Mr. Balfour inopportune. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach led the house with marked ability and recognitions. nized the acceptance of both sides after Sir Stafford Northcote's elevation to the peer age, until he was compelled to retire, men-aced by the loss of his eyesight.

From a minister not in the cabinent but thoroughly versed in the situation I learn that the whole official circle concurs in the desire that Sir Michael Hick-Beach succeed to the leadership. Mr. Balfour himself advocates the appointment and says that his own hands are too full with the Irish govern-Lord Salisbury keeps silent on the ultimate lecision, dreading a breach with Mr. Goschen and the unionists, and he equally fears the exasperation of the conservatives if be places Mr. Goschen.

Attitude of the Irish Factions. The attitude of the leading Parnellites outs beyond a doubt their determination to maintain the conflict with the followers of Mr. Justin McCarthy. The vacant seats of Cork and Kilkenny (made so by the death of Mr. Parnell and Sir John Pope Hennessy) are expected to be contested again by rival nationalists. The talk of the Irish group in the National Liberal club indicates the existence of a proposal to avoid a contest by giv-ing the Cork seat to a Parnellite and that of Kilkenny to an adherent of McCarthy. The temper of the Parnellites is against any com-promise, for they believe that the reaction in Ireland toward Parnellism is so strong that they may succeed even where their dead

In relation to the Paris fund, there are queer rumors that it will be found to be so depleted that there is almost nothing left. Mr. Parnell's personal finances, as is known were seriously reduced during the past two years. A few weeks before his death he came to London seeking an extension of time on several bills. He explained that it was to enable him to pay up some outstanding calls on his shares of the Freeman's Journal, in order that he might maintain his right to vote at the board. His long delay in paying the costs of the divorce proceedings was similarly due to a want of ready money. He ought to have had a large income from his estates, his stone quarries and the $30,000 testimonial received several years ago. He was not extravagant personally, but he beggared himself in his secret expenditures in the cause of home rule.

The mention of the name of John Redmond as sectional leader arises from Mr. Parnell's recent confiding to him the conduct of the campaign in Great Britain. The growing sense of his physical weakness caused Mr. Parnell, when too late, to begin to arrange for a temporary period of rest. He inti-mated to his colleagues that he must remain a while in the background; that John Red mond would not as his lieutenant—he him-self continuing to direct the movement. The dilemma causes the name of William Shaw to be again heard. Mr. Shaw is the parliamentary leader whom Mr. Parnell supplanted. If the Parnellites resort to his ad vice he will simply urge the instant cessa-tion of sectional strife and the revenou of the party on a basis of the policy of the majority
