

streets and in the business marts of another raid on the county jail, the purpose of which was to capture Jake Price, who is now awaiting trial for the murder of Mrs. Fannie Tate, and serve him in the same fashion as they had served Smith. It was also rumored that Dixon, the private soldier who is accused of murdering Corporal Carter at Fort Niobrara and was confined here awaiting trial, might also suffer severe treatment in the excitement of the moment.

Taken to Lincoln.

It was these rumors that induced the offlcials to remove these two prisoners to Lincolo, to guard as far as possible against a repetition of the scenes of Friday night. The knowledge of the change was made public in the evening papers, but an unforeseen and unfortunate occurrence served to furnish a pretext for keeping up the trouble.

A complaint which was filed by County Attorney Mahoney, charging fifteen men with murder in the first degree, was the nature of it. It was virtually a prosecution of ringleaders of the lynchers for murder, in order that the dignity of the law might be maintained.

news of the move spread it was eviden that it was very unpopular, and it was de clared on all sides that it would be in possible to secure a conviction of any of the parties.

"Burn the jail !" "Give us another nigger," and "D-n his statements, they are lies." A man in an obscure corner started in by saying, "I'm a World-Herald reporter and ----

He never got any further with his speech, for cries of "Rats!" "Go tay an egg!" "Is it published in Omaha!" "Come off the perch " "How much is it a week !" "Put him out!" and "Will you get out an extra?" drowned the sound of his voice and carried it far out on the cool breeze of the October night.

"Let us hear from the jailer," demanded P. O. Donnelly,

Horrigan's Formal Statement. A hush fell over the mob and Horrigan said:

"I am the jailor of the Douglas county jail and have all of the keys in my pocket. If you want to go through this jail in search of any particular person you can do so, but 1 want to tell you that you cannot all come inside. You must appoint a committee and I wish you would do so. Appoint five or ten sober, cool headed men and I will show them through every one of the cells.

"I know that many of you men are drunk, and right here I want to tell you that no drunken man can come inside this jail tonight."

'That is fair,' answered a number o parties. Mr. Donnelly urged that they appoint one

Finally when everything was ready Sergesnt Ormsby made a brilliant flank move ment on Seventeenth street and swept the crowd clear out of the way. This was the first substantial proof that the officers were going to control the crowd. Sergeant Sigwart, with a squad of men, made a double quick march upon the crowd on Harney street and that thorough fare was soon cleared. But two men were arrested and sent to the station in the patrol wagon. At 10 o'clock the officers had complete control of the streets in the vicinity of the court house and crowd began to disperse.

Police at th Jail. At 10:10 a line of police under Sergeant Sigwart forced their way up to the steps of the jail. The sergeant lifted his baton and told the crowd to disperse, and then ordered his mon to clear the grounds. The police formed a line and drove the crowd southward and out the stone paved driveway. No resistance was offered by any one and there was no cheering. Police Commissioner Hartman gave the order to Captain Cormack to clear the court house grounds and a detail of men was at once placed at the service of Sigwart. The crowd moved slowly, huddling together like a flock of sheep. In fifteen minutes there was not a man on the court house grounds. As soon as he mob reached the streets a detachment of

of the present day.

Whatever it may bave been in former years the warning cry is now continually uttered, "You are working with too small a reserve," but the directors have earefully surveyed the whole field and as money is abundant outside they do not feel justified in going to per cent. Their resolution has certainly strengthened markets and released the joint stock banks from the necessity of raising the interest on deposits. If the drain of gold continues, the policy will have to be changed but the government bank and colleagues hold that there is no immediate necessity for any alteration hence the disappointment of a small section in the city who hoped to see the rate go up.

Bankers Satisfied with the Rate. Bankers and brokers generally are well satisfied with the existing rate. It had a distinctly good effect upon the American market prices generally, having been fairly maintained coasidering the mass of business done. The steady investors are coming forward and buying stocks, but of course the speculators are too hard at work trying to see small profits by fluctuations which go on from hour to hour; This causes some firmness, especially in railroad tonds, which are generally active. People are disposed to take fivers in Read ing. Wabash and even New York. Pennsyl vania & Ohio, in all of which the British public drop the largest sums of money from ime to time. The favorite stocks for invest ors for many years were Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central. The most conservative of English bankers used to recommend them to their clients. Although the rate of interest at present prices is a fail all round, it was naturally ooked for today, in view of the settle ment beginning next Tuesday, but renewed speculative movements will undoubtedly set n by Thursday, always provided a moderate stability is shown in Widl street.

district, and the Gardon, a tributary of the Rhone, rosa three feet and caused floods greater than those of last year. In many places the railroad embantements were undermined and destroyed by the torrents. One man was found dead under a proken wall and another with his legs broken. Cellars of shops were filled with water, and the platforms at stations were washed away.

Tribute to Miss King.

Parts has never been more full of Amerleans, considering the season of the year. On Wednesday there was a large gathering at the Anglo-American Church of the Holy Frinity to pay a last tribute to the memory of the late Miss Anna Johnston King, daughter of the late Charles King of New York. Deceased, who was a sister to Mine. Waddington and Mrs. Schuyler, had for the last fifteen years held a salon here, where the most prominent members of the American-English colony met, her gatherings having also a arge leaven of diplomats. Her house was 28 Rue de la Tremoille, Miss King's popularity was unlimited, for she was a skilled nostess, a bright talented lady, and a sincere friend. The bier, which was placed in the aisle just below the altar rails, was entirely covered with beautiful flowers, Among the mourners were Mrs. Schuyler, widow of the late Eugene Schuy-

Participants Arrested. The blotter at the central police station bears the following names: Ed. Neuschaeffer, Patrick O'Heine, John Fritz, R. G. Bloom, H. H. Brandles, Ed. Fitzgerald and Captain O'Donohue. After each name is placed the charge of murder in the first degree.

At 5 p. m. the seven prisoners were arraigned in police court and the complaint filed by County Attorney Mahoney read by Assistant Prosecutor Moriarity. The document charged the prisoners with unlawfully, purposely and deliberately making an assault, with premeditated malice, to kill and murder George Smith. The complaint further charges that the prisoners did fix a rope about the neck and choke, strangle and kill George Swith.

Refused Bail.

At the conclusion of the reading of the complaint the prosecuter stated that he could not say when Mr. Mahoney would be ready to try the cases, but probably some time Monday. An effort was at once made by Attorney Ed Crowell on behalf of his clients, Bloom, O'Donohue and Neuschaffer, to get the prisoners released on bail. County Attorney Mahoney was seen, but positively refused to allow bail to any amount to be taken. Mr. S. P. Morse offered $100,000 ball for his manager, R. G. Bloom, but it was positively declined. O'Donohuo also offered a large bond, but Mahoney could not be touched.

At 5:30 the seven prisoners were loaded into the patrol wagon and taken to the county jail.

Admitted to Bail.

Walter Brandes and Ed Cohen were ar rested about 6 o'clock and enarged with murder the same as the others.

Judge Helsley decided to admit all of the nine prisoners to ball, providing good sureties were given. At 6:30 the nine were brought up into court and the judge began turning them loose as fast as the bonds were signed. All were released except Ed Neuschaeffer, the young German, who is a stranger in town, and Ed Fitzgerald, better known as "Rats the Newsboy." These two dign't seem to have any friends, and so they were left to amuse themselves with the tamrats about their cells.

A $5,000 bond was given for all those released except Captain John Donovan, who was compelled to put up $10,000.

Gathering of the Crowd. Quite a crowd gathered outside the police court rooms about 7 o'clock and there was considerable task of going down and taking out the nine men. A statement to the throng that the men had been released had the effect of sending many away, and inside an hour there was not a person lounging near the jail. Inside of the court room on the benches usually used by speciators sat the entire day police force, armed and ready for duty at a moment's notice.

Mayor Cushing and Commissioner Hartman were at the chief's office having a talk, and were soon joined by Messrs. Gilbert and Smith. It was decided to send all the avail able men to the court house.

In Front of Morse's Store. About 9:30 a large crowd gathered in front man from each ward. He said that he understood that it was not the desire of any person to hang another man, that the object was simply to satisfy the mob that Pat O'Herron was not in the jaii. As far as he was concerned he was perfectly satisfied that such was not the case, as he had seen him at Taft's saloon not one hour before.

Demanding Jake Price's Blood. Some one in the mob yelled, "Hang the algger!

"Yes," responded Mr. Donnelly, "You hanged a colored man last night, but are you sure he was guilty? Now you would hang Jake Price and every one of you know that there are grave doubts about him being the man who murdered Fannie Tate.

"Gentlomen, I will assure you that Price is not in the juil. He was taken to Lincoin this afternoon and is now safely confined within the state penitentiary." Another loud yell went up from the throats of the assembled throng, but it was of short iuration. As soon as quiet had settled down over the mob, Mr. Donnelly again spoke and demanded the appointment of the committee.

Committee on Inspection. The following gentlemen were named B. P. Donnelly, F. P. Hall, L. H. Sterht and Ed Pickering.

Tom Harrington yelled that the people would not abide by the report of the commit-

Mr. Donnelly responded, "If this committee enters the jail you will abide by its report. We are taxpayers of Douglas county and propose to protect our property from the hands of a mob. Last night you tried to batter down this jail, and in doing so you vio ated the laws of the state. You de stroyed property that belongs to every tax. payer in Omaha and Douglas county. Your acts should subject every one of you to arrest and punishment. You know that you had to more right to tear a brick from the walls of this building than you would have to go to my house and pull it down. "I now want to ask you if you wish this committee to go on with its work and make a report ?"

"Yes, that's what we want of you," went up from 3,500 throats.

Searching the Cells.

With this assurance the committee went inside. The members visited the cell rooms on the first floor, peering into every grated cage, and then Julier Horrigan led the way to the upper tier of cells. They were carefully examined. Bars were thrown back and doors opened, but not a colored man was found, nor was the man O'Herron visible. The cellar was next visited, but there was no one there with the exception of the engineers and the stoker. The men being satisfled that Jailer Horrigan's statements made to the mob were true and that he had fulfilled every pledge that he had made while he stood upon the jail steps, they repaired to the office for the selection of a chairman. "Who shall we select to make the report?" asked Mr. Hall. A silence followed, when a World-Herald reporter, who had slid in with the committee, said : "If you want me to, I will act as chairman and tell what I saw. I was one of the first men to enter the jail after the window was burst in last night and as the crowd knows that my statements can be relied upon." Mr. Donnelly's Report.

Another silence that was really painful filled the corridors and winding passage ways of the jail, but like the former silence, it was of short duration. Mr. Pickering moved that Mr. Donnelly act as chairman.

The motion prevailed, the committee left the jail and proceeded to the southeast corner of the grounds, where the crowd had assempolice under Chief Seavey and his captain keep them moving. It took some time to clear the street corner at Boyd's opera house, but it was finally done. Commissioner Hartman was well pleased with the work of the men of the line, as a greatmany threats had been made that the police would 'not dare to go upon county ground and drive the people away. But they did it, quietly and nicely, and deserve con siderable credit.

Breaking Up the Crowd. The crowd split up surging down Harney, Seventeenth and Farnam. A good many col ected at the corner of Eighteenth and Farnam and were started east on Farnam down the hill. At Soventeenth and Farnam they flocked about THE BEE and New York Life buildings, completely blocking the street. A couple of patrol wagons came railing along; one carried the chief and Mr. Hartman. Chief Seavey ad iressed the crowd. He told them to move m, to go home, to get away from the corner Mr. Hartman did the same, but the mot only cheered, whistled and hissed. The police did their best, and whenever a hundred or so gathered on the corners they were compelled o move on. When the crowd was the thickest in front of THE BEE building, Odhcers Monroe and Dubois grabbed a couple of friends and rushed them down the street.

Ot course the crowd all followed, yelling all the time. "Let's take them away, called a dozen or so. "All right !" veiled the mob, but just then three or four police rein forced Monroe and Dubois and they lugged their men clear to Fifteenth and Douglas followed by the entire outfit. There th apposed prisoners were released, and the squad of officers had the laugh on the mob. Back Up the Hill.

The ruse didn't have the desired effect, fo as soon as the crowd saw that they were sold they rushed back up the hill to Sixteenth and arnam. Seavey, with his two patrol wagons and about eighty police, were kept busy for the next hour clearing one corner after another. As fast as the crowd was driven from one point they would hurry to another and set up a yell.

Then the chief stood up on a seat of one of the wagons and ordered his men to arrest each and every person found yeiling or howling on the streets. Two or three strong lunged youngsters were thrown into the wagons and taken to the city jail, where they were charged with disturbing the peace. This sort of play went on until about 11:30. when the streets were cleared.

At midnight Farnam, Harney, Sixteent! and Seventeenth streets were deserted with the exception of a half dozen curious, who stood under the trolley wire at Seventeenth and Harney and looked at the spot where the negro was hung. It was a hard night's work for the police but Chief Seavey said he was tired of this foolishness and proposed to clear the street or lock up all those creating a disturbance of any sort. TWO WILD RUMORS.

Argetine Going Up.

Argentine is being pushed up a little by the great houses interested in the recovery, but the public hold steadily aloof. Permanent improvement in this risky quarter cannot be looked for at present. Appearances indicate a period of great uncertainty for Egyptian surities. Had liberals won at the Manchester election there would have been a heavy call for the return of Gladstone to power at the next election would have seemed inevitable. With that would come cessation of British occupation in Egyt.

Parnell's death is held to increase Gladtone's chances of success by reuniting the Irish party. The liberals are more hopeful than ever and their policy is to scuttle out of Egypt as soon as possible. British occupation is they maintain, kept up solely in the interest of bondholders. The confidence in these securities is already a good deal shaken by the mere prospect of Gladstone's success. The decline this week is not very marked, but it is quite sufficient to show that the people are generally taking alarm and desire to clear out before the threated storm actually bursts. Chilian and Brazilian loans are also inclined to steadily fall. There is no hope of permanent improvement in those countries.

South American Securities.

Thousands of English investors have been hit heavily in these securities and are only waiting for a fair chance to wash their hands of them altogether, consequently no revival of prices to the former standard is within range of probability.

The effects of the Mckinley tariff act continue to be severely felt here, especially the great staple manufactures, such as cotton, woolens and other textile fabrics. The purchase of American raw cotton must fall off very considerably if the United States take less of the English manufactures. At present merchants here are looking for an extension of trade in Africa to counterbalance the loss of America. Last month's shipments of yarn matter fell off by over 5,000,000 yards. It is attributable entirely to the operation of the McKinley tariff. Orthodox free traders say that this will merely cause the extention of the English trade in some other direction but the manufacturers cannot stop the mills until this new outlet is found. In the meantime they find it extremely difficult to provide full employment for the machinery and hands. The result of the pending election in Ohio will be watched here with deep interest. McKinley's success would be regarded as giving the last blow to the hopes of the Conden club as to the adoption of their principles in the United States."

Parnell's Last Struggle.

During the terrible conflict, for such it was, in room 15, I had a brief conversation with Mr. Parnell one evening in the smoking room of the house where he was sitting alone in the corner. He generally found some such retired spot in the lower smoking room overlooking the river front and there he would sit reading or musing, paying little attention to what was going on around him. This particular evening had closed a day of great excitement, during which Parnell had been obliged to fight hard for e railroad station at Brighton th funeral party waited an hour, the building being packed with people anxious to get glimpse of the casket.

When the train containing the body of Mr. Parnell arrived at Wilsden, the junction of the London & Northwestern railway with the roads from the east and south, a great crowd rushed toward the carriage in which the remains were deposited. As the doors were opened overyone reverently bared the head and stood with silent expectancy, apparently waiting for some leading Parnellite to speak. It was found, however, that time would not permit of any ceremony.

All that it was possible to do was to uncover the coffin, which was lying in a case in which it had been placed for transit from Brighton, and to form a column of the people who had assembled and allow them to pass in single file through the railway carriage This was successfully carried out. Many persons in the line were observed to be moved to tears. Delegates from several branches of the Londou league placed wreaths upon the bier. Slating a Contemporary.

A good deal of amusement has been caused here by the hysterical attempt of the old fashioned newspaper published here in English, and which has lately been in financial difficulties but still lives precariously, to ressurrect Baimaceda and discredits the Herald's grand dispatches from Chili. A large spread head covers two columns of vague reports from Santiago and Washington; the surmises of an ex-Chilian minister, who owned he had no news since the war began; an account of how a reporter was snubbed at the American legation; and a deal of fake work evidently manufactured in the editorial office. The Chilian minister who represents the unta, when asked what his opinion was laughed heartily, and said it looked to him like an effort of a New York fake newspaper to discredit the splendid honest work done by the Herald, which was the only newspaper which had printed exclusive news. He denounced the article in the following words : "I look upon it as a pure invention, unworthy of serious consideration."

He said the official telegram he had received left no doubt in his mind of the death of Balmaceda. It read: "The government has just been informed by Senor Uriburra that Balmaceda committed suicide at his house." The minister added in reply: "The idea of the article is that suicide might be only a plot to hide the late president. I am personally acquainted with Uriburra, and know him to be a man totally incapable of mventing such a faisehood."

Further, to clinch the matter, when asked whether in case there was any doubt of Balmaceda's death his government would not have apprised him he replied : "Yes, most certainly it would."

No Longer a Beauty.

Queen Nataila of Servia is here at the resiience of Princess Ghika. She says she will pay a visit to President Carnot, but that seems scarcely likely, in view of the political situation. She has lost much of her former beauty and has developed a rather masculine aspect. She leaves shortly for Binreitz. Meanwhile ex-King Milan, notwithstanding the enormous amounts he is credited with winning at baccarrat, has contracted a loan of 2,000,000 fr. on a mortgage on the estate of his young the present king. This news has given the greatest umbrage at Belgrade.
