Mayor Cushing said that it was the most deplorable thing that had ever occurred in the history of the county. He ordered out the entire police force but cautioned the members not to fire into the crowd, as he fully realized that if a shot was fired it would have resulted in the kill-ing of scores of innocent men who were simply spectators. The mayor ordered out the fire department as he thought the throwing of water would cause the crowd to disperse. The mayor did not think the city would take a hand in bringing about the arrest and conviction of the men. The matter was wholly in the hands of the county, and the commissioners should make the Nelson and Williams Telling What Their Stallions Will Do Next.

RICK STAKES WON AT MORRIS PARK.

Bookmakers Hit Hard at Churchill Downs-Uncle Bob Ruined at Garfield-Denver's Closing Day -Sporting Notes.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 10.-C. H. Nelson is not entirely satisfied with the result of Thursday's race, and attributes the defeat of his borse to lameness last week at Cambridge City, Ind., which interfered with training. He expressed unbounded confidence in Nelson's speed, and declared that he had $10,000 which said that Nelson could beat Allerton or any other stallion in the world, four weeks hence, on the track in this city or anywhere else. He would back Nelson with his last dollar if in perfect condition against Allerton. He says he will be "in it" next season.

C. W. Williams smiled when Mr. Nelson's remarks were repeated to him, and said that Allerton was not pushed at all, but was jogged along at an easy and ordinary training pace which he could keep up indefinitely Allerton would, he said, have won the first beat but for an unfortunate break at the distance pole, and but for fear of straining him he would have finished any of the heats sev-eral seconds short of the actual time made.

COLLAPSE OF A MOB.

[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE.] of truthfulness to the statements contained in the telegram, A medical student last evening, while slightly under the influence of liquor, told parties that he and a certain physician intended to visit the cemetery and remove Neal's body at an early bour this morning. The remains, he said, would be brought to this city and placed in the pickling yat at the Omaha Medical college.

The physician when seen denied truthfulness of the report, and stated that the exhuming of the remains would not take place, as they were of no value for scientific purposes, and besides, subjects equally as good could be secured at much less trouble and expense.

AS IT LOOKED YESTERDAY.

Incidents of the Tragedy Overlooked in the First Rush. The county jail and the grounds in the imnediate vicinity of Friday night's lynching were the points of interest about which the crowds gathered vesterday. At 30'clock yesterday morning perfect quiet prevailed in the neighborhood, and from that time until daylight the grounds were deserted. An hour later the early arrivals were on hand and as the sun peeped over the astern hills people began to gather to view the surroundings where the tragedy was enacted. Hundreds attracted out of sheer curiosity, visited the spot. Pieces of wood for relies, were cut from the pole which sup-ported the wire from which the unfortunate man was supported.

Keep Off the Grass. Around the jail the signs "Keep Off the Grass," had no effect and the space in from of the jail door was almost as densely packed as at any time during the lynching. Jailor Horrigan and his deputies, although they did not close their eyes in sleep Friday night were good natured and answered the thousands of questions that were should thousands there. Both the exterior and the interior of the jail presented a disapidated appearance and gave one the idea that the building had been beseiged and captured by a war like enemy.

Damage to the Jail Property.

The heavy iron rail and the telegraph pole used at battering rams to force the grating from the east window of the jail office were in position as left by the moo. Cold chisels, crowbars and sledges were scattered abou the grounds where they had been dropped when Coe, at the end of the rope, was pulled through the window. In the office every-thing was in disorder. The telephone and police alarm wires had been cut, the chairs, desks and folding bed made an interestin mass of ruins. About the only thing that was intact was the box in which the keys to the cells were secreted. This was overlooked by the leaders of the mob. Even had these keys passed into the possession of the lyncher they would have been of but little use of expediting the work of going through the doors as now two keys are allke and as there are nearly 150 it would have been an almost end less task to have opened the doors.

Beyond the jail office the work of destruc-tion is complete. The heavy door leading from the office to the visitors corridor is a mass of ruins. It was constructed of boiler iron and was soon wrenched from its hinges under the blows dealt from sledge hammer and iron bars. The next door, the one open ing into the reception room, shows but little damage from violence. While it is of cnilled steel, it hangs in the iron grating, and by applying a crowbar in the space near the lock, it was sprung out and swung back upon it hinges. The way was then clear to the second floor, as only a wicket gate at the foot of the stairs impeded the progress of the determined men. This obstruction was soon out of the way and the attack was made upon the heavy iron separating the solitary cells from the recep-tion rooms on the second floor. It was at that door that the workingmen in the mob displayed their mechanical ability. Instead of forcing the door the men went to work in a business like manner. They brought forth cold chisels and hammers from their pockets, and in a short space of time had the lock cut loose, This door opened into a room that connected with all of the cages on the upper floor of the cast wing, beyond which was the heavy iron goor that separated the cell room from Ed Neal's old cell, into which Coe had been placed during the early part of the evening. Jailer Horrigan saw that resistance was useless, and fearing that the cells, which con tained nearly thirty prisoners, among whom were a number of colored men, would be opened, unlocked the door and informed the eaders that the object of their search was in the cell known as "Solitary No. 2," at the east end of the wing. The keys of that cell were demanded, but refused, and the wild work of destruction went on with a vengeance,

The solitary is known as the "Pauley vauit cell," and is constructed of bars two inches wide and one-half inch thick. formation is in alternate layers of chilled steel and wrought iron. The resistance is wonderful, as the hardest coid chisel will have no effect upon the steel, while the layers of iron makes it impossible to break the bars by blows. The door is secured by a heavy foot bar, held in place by a combination Norwegian lock, while at the top and middle, bars two inches in thickness shoot out over the door. The lock is in a chilled steel box, doubly locked. Jailer Horrigan stated that at the door the mob haited, but only for an instant. The man who directed the movements of the workers pointed out the weak spot and the ringing blows of hammers were heard. Soon the lower lock gave way and the bolt was slipped back. This gave the men an opportunity to pry open the lower part of the and the work of demolishing the main lock was an easy task. When this door opened the men were still some distance from the object of vengeance as another door with similar locks had to be forced. be forced. The experience with the outer door had nerved the men for the work and in a remarkably short space of time the last opstacle was removed and the poor, cowering black brute was within their grasp, in the cell occupied by Ed Neal for so many months.

There was but hitle ado. A yell went up The rope was put around the neck of the un fortunate man and without allowing him the benefit of clergy, he was dragged down the stairs and into the jail office. The public knows the rest and all of the horrible details connected with the case.

Killed in Transit. Jailer Horrigan in speaking of the case said that Coe was alive when he was pulled through the window and into the open air, but before he was ten feet from the jail he was dead. Every spark of life had left his carcass, as he was tramped upon by hundreds of men while others at the end of the rope pulled the body almost hmb from limb.

When asked why he did not telephone for sistance. Jailor Horrigan replied that he had no intimation of the coming of the mol until the courtvard was filed with people. He then turned in a police alarm and also attempted to call up the police station by telephone, but all of the wires had been cut. Mr. Horrigan regrets the occurrence very much, but states that he used every effort ower to prevent the lyuching. He that if twenty determined men had been upon the ground when the mob first ar-rived it could have been held at bay until as-istance could have arrived. Sheriff Boyd Talks

Sheriff Boyd when seen yesterday was very downcast over what had taken place. He had heard wild rumers that a mob intended to raid the jail, but regarded them as canards. He had taken precautions and had canaris. He had taken precautions and had ordered the man placed in the strongest ceil. Had he expected an attack he would have sworn in fifty deputies and had them on duty. In speaking of his abduction, the sheriff stated that he went to the north door of the jail for the purpose of quelling the mob, but as soon as the door was opened, he was seized by the runs and legs, overpowered and hustled to the High school grounds, where he was kept until the man grounds, where he was kept until the man had been hung high in the air. His capture and detention was complete, as after reach-ing the quiet of the High school grounds the men placed him upon his back and sat upon his arms and legs. The sheriff pleaded for his liberty, but was told to keep quiet at the peril of his lite. That it was a preconcerted plan the sheriff has but little doubt, as after his capture, messengers arrived after his capture, messengers arrived every minute during the weary hours, keeping his captors informed of the progress being made at the jail. He thinks that if a shot had been from into the mob while excitement was at its height it would have preeipitated the blodlest riot on record. No pains will be spared to discover the principal participants goll every effort will be made to secure their arrest and conviction. Horrible Story of a Bloody Crime at Shanistowe, Jamaica. Mayor Custing's Expression.

AWFUL CRIME OF A FEROCIOUS QUARTETTE

Four Victims of Their Fury Put to Death in a Terrible Manner-A Woman Who Revels in Gore.

HALIPAX, N. S. Oct. 10 .- Particulars have been received here of the banging at Shanistown, Jamaica, last month of three men and a woman for the murder of John Aller, his wife, his mother and a man named Gofaden. The executed criminals were two coolies named Panhansing and Hibllic, the latter's wife and a creole named Robert Johnston. The last named, according to the story told by libine's, wife to a man named Richard Bennett, in the hearing of a detective, who was employed to commit the murder and was to be paid £6 for the deed. The crime was caused by John Alter having given information upon which a bailiff made a levy on some of libilies's property.

Some Horrible Details.

the county and city officers, but thought that if a squad of police had been detailed when the men first gathered all John Aller was decoyed from his house by Johnson to a lonely spot on a rood where the trouble could have been averted. Omaha and Douglas county would be compelled to libilies rushed from a hiding place and struck take hold of the matter and ferret out the perpetrators of what he called a cowardly him a terrible blow on the back of the head with a large stone, felling him to the ground. As he fell Panhausing dealt him another blow upon the head with a stick and then dragged nim from the spot where he fell a short tance and then they finished him. Joh At this time it is difficult to estimate the damage to property, but it is thought that it will not exceed $1,500. A number of lengths kuelt upon his stomach, Panhausing stood upon his feet and libilic cut his throat. Iibilic's wife and of hose were rendered worthless, having been chopped to pieces, but $500 will cover the damage sustained by the fire department. Johnson were then sent to call Gofaden, who was doing business in that locality. At the county jail $1,000 will put the cells, locks and cages in as good condition as new

The woman left Johnson with Gofaden and rejoined the other two, and all hid them-selves as Johnson and Gofaden came up to where they were. They pounced upon him, felled him to the ground and then dragged him into Jibilic's rum shop, where Panban-sing cut his throat. They then went into John Aller's house and slaughtered Kunzile, his wife and Patarus, his mother, whose body Johnson cut up in a frightful man-ner. The bodies were left lying on the floor, where they were subsequently discovered with the little girl of Aller's sitting between them, covered with the blood of her mother and grandmother. The lives of the two women were forfeited simply because they recognized Johnson when he called John Aller out of his house, and the murderers thought they would testify to this fact. The reason why the baby was not included in the daughter seems to have been because it could not talk, although the woman distinctly said it, too, should be disposed of with its mother. Johnson said that the pickaning could not talk and must not die Night Before the Hanging. The accused spent the night before the execution fairly well. At 6:30 Robert Johnson emerged from his cell, chatted cheerfully for a few seconds and then walked up and down in front of the cells apparently praying. Then Panhansing came out of his cell and sitting down by the side of the wall rested his head in his hands. At 6:40 the woman, Agnes Hire, commonced to wall and cry and did not cease until the arrival of the clergy. Iibilic suffered first. Agnes called upon Gbd to witness that she knew nothing of the crime and her husband had scarcely finished a similar declaration when the drop fell. Agnes died instantly but libilic struggled terribly for two minutes. After libilic had been cut down, Panhansing and Johnson mounted the scaffold and fell together. Not a muscle of either of the men moved.

MADE A SENSATIONAL MISTAKE.

A Chicago Woman Arrests a Man

Whom She Thought a Thief. CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 10 .- Considerable of a sensation was caused last evening by the spectacle of a very large woman dragging an andersized man along Van Buren street from Wabash avenue towards the office of the Auditorium notel. The woman, who is Mrs. Sobre, living at 2021 Michigan avenue, told the police some days ago that a young man came to her house and rected a room, paying for a week in advance. He stayed but one night, but after he left she found she had been robbed of several hundred dollars worth of jewelry.

Last evening she saw, sitting opposite he in a car, a young man answering the descrip tion. When she got off the car she grabbed him and finally, through her superi succeeded in dragging him to the Auditorium hotel, where he was placed under arrest and taken to the Harrison street station.

The young man gave the name as J. B. Sewman, 522 South Fourth street, Spring-eid, Ill., and said he is a bookkeper in the First National bank, also assistant treasure f the State Fair association, and only arrived here Sonday from Peoria, where he had been spending the previous week at the state fair, and produced papers to that effect. The poice refused to accept the credentials and locked him up on a state warrant sworn out by Mrs. Sobra charging robbery. Nowman asserted his ability to prove his unocence when the trial came off today.

At the hearing this morning Newman was discharged after the testimony of the offi-cers of the Chicago police force who swore that the prisoner was in Peorla at the state fair at the time the complainant asserted the robbery was committed. In discharging the defendant Justice Lyon said: 'It was the strongest alibi I ever saw proven.' Half a dozen witnesses swore they have

While the bandits were making their escape from the cashier's office John Gritt, an employe of the barn, attempted to interfere. Refugees from Ichang Reach a Place of Safety in China.

DANGEROUS SITUATIONS OF FOREIGNERS.

Soldiers and Citizens Unite to Drive

the Europeans from the Province-Some Narrow Escapes.

HANKOW, China, Oct. 10.—The steamer Pao Hua arrived here today with Ichang refugees, twenty in all, all of whom lost everything except the clothes they were at the beginning of the outbreak. Several bore marks of serious violence. The riot took place at broad noonday without warning or provocation. It was carried out by a handful of men, evidently under orders, in the presence of a number of Chinese officials, who knew every one of the rioters. Their mission of destruction was carried out with the utmost speed.

A crowd had collected, and suddenly a rush was made for a house belonging to the American Episcopal mission. The gate was smashed in and a man heading the mob cried : 'Slay the foreigners." The rioters came in with a rush and one aimed a murderous blow with a shackle at Mr. Sowerby. Mr. Sowerby disarmed this assailant and avoided another; them ran for his life, reaching the consulate, from where he was transferred on board the Pao Hua. The American mission louse was set on fire and the Yamen and oldlers fell back, neither civil nor military mandarins making an effort to protect the property. The Roman Catholic convent was next fired and the sisters, seven in number, barely escaped to the river, where they were thrown headlong down the steep bank by soldiers. They were taken in a boat on board the Pao Hua and were stoned by the mob on shore. Several sisters were badly injured by mis-siles. It was thought a number of children n the convent were burned to death.

A mob armed with knives and axes rushed to the consulate, but did not attack it. The houses of Dr. Pierce and Rev. Mr. Dean together with other buildings were burned. Mr. Rockburn's house was ruined and the new British consulate in course of construction was torn down. Houses were coted and although no one was killed sev eral attempts were made to murder and threats were frequent. At the old consulate the foreigners kent the rioters back with bayonets. The leaders of the mob carried guipowder and kerosene with which to fire the building. Those having stolen property from the ruined buildings were arrested next day, but no attempt was made to capture the real leaders. Many of the rioters were soldiers who had taken off their coats to disguise themselves. During the whole time mandarins were present and made no attempt to prevent the people from carrying away

That no lives were lost is almost entirely a matter of luck. The Scotch missionaries owed their escape to the fact that they had gone boating on the river at the time the outbreak occurred. They harried back and were just in time to rescue several missionaries and infant children and escape when the mob being massacred en masse, several being severely injured. As in former cases telegraph clerks re-fused to send in news. A full dispatch to the Daily News at Shanghai was refused without excuse, on the day of the riot and all foreign messages the day after. On the third day when all possible damage had been done the military mounted guard over the blackened ruins. In Hankow things are stirring again. Yesterday there was a gathering of the anti-foreign element here, including a large number of magistrates and officials. They resolved that foreigners must go immediately from the central portions. The missions at Wuchang at once or they will be exterminated. They inspected the numery today, making a search for bones of children said to have been murdered by the sisters. SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 10.—The North China Daily News says: There are points about the Ichang riot of serious importance. It is in no sense the work of a mob. There was indeed a pretext in the shape of a child said to have been kidnapped on the day of this riot, but this evidently is merely a sub-terfuge in order to give the studow of an excuse for the outbreak. Evidences that the riot was directed and carried out by soldiers are only too numerous.

Where no gunboat can go the position of foreigners, unless in numbers is very inseforeigners, unless in numbers is very insecure. When soldiers get orders from their secret leaders as at Ichang, they care nothing for their officers. The central government is powerless for it has Hunan officials everywhere and the troops everywhere are Hunan men, except Li Hung Chang's disciplined force. To order him to suppress Hunan with these men is to start a civil war. The situations these men is to start a civil war. The situaion is very critical and the only solution is for a foreign force to overawe Hunan with the tacit counivance of the Chinese govern-
