A REGULAR HUMMER.

Yesterday One of the Biggest Days Ever Had on Our Second Floor. The wild prices mentioned in the Friday papers had the desired effect and our second floor was a regular bee hive all day Saturday. But as heavy as was the demand for the goods, they're not all gone yet and you can secure the same bargains Monday. See that full size hard wood bedstead we're closing at $1.50. It's a well finished piece of furniture and the biggest bargain in that line that's ever been offered here or elsewhere.

That lot of center tables went like hot cakes, and no wonder. They're a regular $5.00 table. We put them in at $1.98 and when people saw them they snapped them up in a hurry. We've a few left for Monday. Do you want one? Only a few of the $11.75, 3 piece suits left, so we've concluded to put in an $18.00 cherry suit for Monday to keep the line of bargains complete. They won't last long at $11.75,

A few more of those elegant sewing tables at 85c, and full-sized bed comforters at 69c. Kitchen chairs at 35c and a high back, solid oak, cane seat

Gossipy Interview With an Omaha Modiste Whom They Employed. When the dispatch in THE BEE about Edwin Booth's feeble condition caught the eye of Madame Perkins, the modiste at Sherwood's, she remarked, "no wonder." A reporter who called in search of information learned that the madam while living in New York had made the gowns of a number of celebrated actresses. In response to inquiries, she said:

"I generally went to the theater to see the dresses when first put on. In that way I saw Mr. Booth a number of times in his dressing room. He smoked incessantly, filling the room with clouds, and when he came from the stage he was always in a tremble, so I say it is no wonder his steps are now tottering. When I delivered a dress to Mrs. Booth, who was always at the the-ater to attend to her husband's makeup, she danced a jig for glee.
Among those whom I have served are Fanny Davenport, Clara Morris, Mrs. George Knight and Kate Bartlett, Miss Davenport was punctual to the minute in meeting en-gagements, and while waiting she would sit down at the piano and hum lively airs. She had one peculiarity. She al-ways wanted her skirts as long as she could have them without tripping her. Miss Morris was very languid but nice, and had no hobbies, Mr. Knight said his wife had 250 dressmakers on her list and the gown I made was the prettiest of all she had. If made a beautiful white brocade for Miss Bartlett to attend the Old Guards' ball. She afterwards were it at the theater, and the first time she came on Lester Wallack forgot his lines. He admitted that he was fairly dazzled. You may remember J. M. Hill's company in "All the Rage." I made the dresses of all the ladies in the company, and Mr. Hill pronounced them perfect.
