

WITH SCIENTIFIC TRICKS.

Father Rigge Emphasizes the Craghton College Display at the Art Show.

BEAUTIFUL ARRAY OF TREASURES.

Etchings, Drawings and Photographs That Delight Portraits That Please and Paintings That Charm the Visitor.

The Craghton college display of geological specimens, curios and a great variety of modern laboratory apparatus attracts the eye of the visitor as he steps into the exhibition of the Western Art association in Exposition hall.

The college exhibit is a credit to the enterprise of those who have charge of Omaha's principal institution of learning, and it is attracting merited attention. Father Rigge, who has charge of the exhibit, is an expert electrician and a thorough student in natural science. He entertained the people last night for several hours by means of the electrical apparatus he had in the hall. His experiments and illustrations were very interesting and scientific. He made lightning, illuminated numerous glass vacuums and performed other interesting experiments. The college display of hydraulic, pneumatic and electrical machinery is very complete and interesting.

The first floor is entirely occupied by the borrowed paintings, photographs, etchings and drawings, the Craghton college display and the decorated china exhibit.

Among the Beauties. Turning to the left from the college exhibit one looks upon a superb display of artistic work. Beginning in the first wing of the cases that run across the room, come the photographic pieces, the etchings and architectural drawings. Following these come the pastels. The work in oil is found toward the west and south sides of the hall.

One of the nearest etchings found in this department is a clever piece called "After the Ball." It is the property of Mrs. D. H. Wheeler, jr., and represents a fashionable lady reading a newspaper while yet in bed. She is evidently very much interested in the "write-up" of the costumes, the personal triumphs and impressions of the lay society in which she has mingled the evening before, and the newspaper is eagerly scanned even before the toilet is begun or the cup of coffee quaffed.

"The Choir Boys," loaned by Dr. Duray, is attractive and clever. "The Arch of Constantine," owned by Judge Wakeley, is one of the most magnificent pieces in this department. A very large photograph of Shoshone Falls, loaned by the Union Pacific, attracts considerable favorable attention. "The Madonna de San Sisto," the property of Rev. John Williams, is a piece that would be noticed anywhere.

Mr. E. M. Ellis, the architect, shows several very fine pieces in drawing. Some of the finest steel engravings in this department were loaned by Mrs. George W. Doane and Thomas L. Kimball. The pillars and gallery rail along the north side are made very attractive by a superb display of heads and horns of deer, elk, buffalo and moose. These beautiful things belong to Mr. Keenech, Mr. H. H. Medley, Mr. James Chambers and the Union Pacific railroad company.

Emma Abbott's Picture. One of the most attractive pieces in the entire exhibition is a pastel portrait, life size, of Emma Abbott. It is the property of the L. E. Burr Portrait company of Minneapolis. Some but not all attempt to criticize this superb piece of work. Toward the southwest corner of the main hall, just at the entrance to the room containing the painting, stands a masterpiece, the property of Mr. P. D. Armour of Chicago. It is called "After the Ball," but the subject has been treated in a very different manner from that of the etching spoken of in this article. It is a winter night scene, the guests are departing from the palace of the host in their furs and greatcoats.

Opposite this superb painting hang some very fine portraits done by Elliott and other famous portrait artists. The subjects are well known citizens of Omaha, Dr. George L. Miller, Mr. Willard, Mr. Chapman Clark and Judge Savage. There is also a portrait of Charles Sumner, the property of Thomas L. Kimball, that is said to be very fine. Another piece of great merit in the portrait line is one of Mr. W. V. Morse's son, painted by Moschles.

Some Landscapes. Passing toward the southeast corner of the main hall, one comes upon several magnificent pieces. An evening scene, a landscape owned by Mr. P. D. Armour of Chicago, is a superb piece and fascinates all who look at it. A small landscape by Corot, owned by Mrs. J. M. Woolworth, attracts merited notice. Mr. Linsinger's beautiful painting, "The Russian Beauty," occupies a place in the southeast wing and is admired more by those who have seen it upon several occasions. This is the finest piece of work of the kind owned in the west.

Charles Sprague Pearce's masterpiece, "The Belvedere," is a beautiful drawing card. The light upon the picture is not so good as might be, but the visitors find it a very attractive picture, notwithstanding the fact that the position of the two figures suggests the horrible death of that wonderful forerunner of the Christ.

In the same corner of the hall there are some superb pieces by Dupre, the property of Mrs. Metcalf of Omaha, a fine portrait of Mr. Linsinger, by Mr. Wallace, and many other valuable works of art.

Growing in Interest. The interest is growing and the attendance is increasing. There was a large delegation up from Lincoln yesterday. Efforts will be made by the Hayden club of Lincoln to borrow many of the pieces now on exhibition here and open in the capital city when the Omaha exhibition is closed.

Mr. Linsinger is anxious to encourage the holding of these exhibitions in the larger towns and cities of the state, but he thinks the local artists should place their own work upon exhibition as much as possible and help to build up a home interest in art all over the state. He says that exhibitions of a few masterpieces will not stimulate home art so much as the practice of exhibiting home productions at the same time. This missionary work is absolutely necessary for the incalculable of general appreciation of, and love for, art.

Tom Miller, a farmer living in Nemaha

He was found by a neighbor lying beside the road unconscious. Medical aid was summoned and all possible is being done for the injured man.

The Gering Courier says: The work on the farmers' canal is going on now at full blast. The ditch at the head is sixty feet wide on the bottom, with a slope of a foot to the foot of the banks, and as it looks more like a river than anything else. The day work is being done at the head, while contract work is going on along down the line for several miles. It is a big undertaking, but they are pushing it along with vigor and energy.

The case of J. J. Hartnett vs John A. STOPPED UNWRAPPING. Cold Weather Puts an Embargo on Missouri River Work. The recent cold snap seems to have caught the Missouri river riprap brigade in deep water. An effort was made last Saturday to get all the boats unloaded and safely hauled into dry dock at the government boathouse across the river from East Omaha. But the effort was unsuccessful and eleven of the boats were frozen in the river. The superintendent is hoping to get the boats out and properly cared for as soon as the ice thaws out. Work will be shut down for the winter. This will throw about sixty men out of employment.

CONTINENTAL CLOTHING HOUSE

Miner, Beal & Co.

Boston, Nov. 10, 1891

We have this day sold to the Freeland Loan Co. Proprietors of the Continental Clothing House, Boston, our Fall & winter stock of Fine Tailor made Suits, manufactured in our best manner, from well known selected fabrics, of both foreign and domestic manufacture.

Miner, Beal & Co.

Referring to the above fac simile letter of the well-known Boston firm of Miner, Beal & Co., it gives us great pleasure to state that after a protracted negotiation we have purchased their Wholesale stock of manufactured for the present season's trade; all new, fresh, desirable fabrics, cut in the very latest style and manufactured in the very best manner of this well-known Boston firm.

Messrs. Miner, Beal & Co. are known all over the United States as among the best, if not excelling, all other manufacturers in Boston of fine, high grade, stylish clothing for gentlemen's use. Their business record, extending over a period of more than 25 years, during which time they have been considered pre-eminently the leading manufacturing firm of New England of fine clothing, is a sufficient guarantee that their wholesale stock of Men's Business and Dress Suits, which we now offer in the "Continental," is worthy the attention of every gentleman in Omaha. This is no ordinary class of merchandise and should receive the just and careful attention which the merits of the work demand.

After several days and nights of incessant labor, we have received from their manufactory this stock, and have arranged it on separate counters, apart from our regular stock in the "Continental," and shall commence the sale on Thursday morning, the 19th, at 8 o'clock.

Our limited space will not permit us to give a detailed description of each lot offered. There are nearly 100 different styles of these fine business suits, and for the purpose of enabling buyers to determine the value of each lot as compared with usual prices in the ordinary course of trade, we have arranged all the lots in three parallel columns. The first column gives the actual guaranteed wholesale price of Miner, Beal & Co., together with the stock lots representing the garments mentioned. The second column gives what would usually be the lowest retail price. The third column gives the price at which we are offering them in the Continental Clothing House, showing the actual saving that each customer is guaranteed when purchasing from this wholesale stock.

The prices marked on these goods are not fictitious values. The wholesale prices named in the first column are guaranteed by the well-known firm of Miner, Beal & Co. to be their wholesale figures. The figures in the second column we believe represent the lowest prices that these could be ordinarily bought for in retail houses throughout the United States, and the difference between the prices in this column and the third column will show the actual reductions made.

Table with 4 columns: Lot number, Description, Wholesale Price, Retail Price. Includes items like 'Fine Silk Stripe Cassimere Suit', 'All Wool Velour finish Business Suit', etc.

Further comment is unnecessary. Please call at the store and examine these goods, and we are willing to abide by your decision in regard to their value. Come early and avoid the great rush.
