Good Work of the Manufacturers and Consumers Association.

SCHEME TO EXTEND THE MOVEMENT

Nebraska to Be Encouraged in the Home Industry Idea - President Page's Interesting Comments Concerning the Plan.

The Manufacturers and Consumers Association of Nebraska held a business meeting yesterday afternoon of much importance to the association and of general interest to the

The attendance was very large, the great majority of all the members of the association being present. Great interest was manifested in the work. After the regular routine of calling the roll and reading the minutes had been gone through with President Page made the following remarks:

Mr. Page's Encouraging Remarks.

I am pleased beyond expression to see so many new members with us today and note how we have added strength and numbers since we last met. We kaye abundant reason many new members with us today and note how we have added strength and numbers since we last met. We have abundant reason for congraturinting ourselves upon our progress. We may reasonably feel that we are of some importance, as financially, we have the strongest backing of any association in the state of Nebraska. As will be reported by our secretary, we now have 08 members, all bona fide manufacturers. They have a capital of over $7.000.08 of money invested, with over 5.000 employes and pay out over $70,000 in winges alone per month. We have one of the largest organizations, more money back of us, more men in our employ than any other organization in the state.

Why should we not ask the people of Nebraska to patronize home industry? What else have we done? With the assistance of The Bee and other papers, we have set the people of Nebraska thinking, and talking for Nebraska did not know what was manufactured among them. You all will agree with me in saying that we have made some of the people and with the some of the people of Nebraska did not know what was manufactured among them. You all will agree with me in saying that we have made some of the people are with us. What they need is information—and here comes our part. Let every member of this association talk "home patronage" whenever an apportunity presents itself—talk it to your employes, see to it that they buy Nebraska goods, quality and price being equal. Here is a chance for us all if we but inaprove it. Make vour goods up to standard; take palos with them.

There are people asking for home made goods today who never have before—do not disappoint them by giving them poorly made goods. Alvertise your best brands, put your goods. To show you how the people are wateling us, a citizen bought a package of Omaha goods that had the imprint of an eastern city on the intel. He inquired how that was, I told him that It was an old stock of labe s. That went for that time but the old stock will not last always. We as manufacturers have got to show by our example

Report of the Secretary.

Secretary Bradley's report was as follows:
Total membership, 103, with five applications to be acted upon,
Cash received from membership, dues and labels, $500.33.
Cash paid out: Furniture, $91; expense account, $241.38; labels, $30.
Balance of eash on hand, $37.92.
Amount due the association from memberlaip fees, etc., $124.80.

Improving the Association.

The question of making some changes in the by-laws so as to facilitate the growth of and discussed at considerable length. As it now stands no provision has been made for the forming of branch associations in other cities of the state, and manufacturers outwide of Omaha would be deprived of the advantages of having a working body at home. It is proposed to so change the articles as to allow of local branches being formed at any point in the state, and the local branches shall form a state organization, whose board of directors shall consist of representatives from the different local branches. If this is carried out it will reduce the present asso-ciation to the position of a local branch of the state association.

Those who favor this idea then propose that as many Omaha manufacturers as can be got together go down to Lincoln some evening and meet the manufacturors of that city and help form a local branch. Then Omana and Lincoln manufacturers can arrange to meet the manufacturers of some other city in the state and form another branch. In this way campaigns for home pat-ronage could be started in all the towns of the state and at the same time an oppor tunity be given the manufacturers of different cities to become personally acquainted. The matter was referred to the executive committee to be placed in proper shape to be acted upon.

Effect of the New Movement.

A member stated that he had been away from home and on his return almost the first thing he saw was a large banner over the new Wells-Fargo Express company's building, on Farnam street, announcing that the interior furnishings were being made by an eastern house. On the opposite side of the street there was a similar banner, over the American Express company's offices. announcing that their furnishings are being made by Cady & Gray of Omaha.

"Now then," continued the speaker, "I move that the members of the association take notice of these facts, and govern themselves accordingly."

The number of seconds which the resolution brought forth showed the feeling of the members present. Some one suggested that perhaps the Wells-Fargo Express company was under the impression that it was still popular in Omaha to buy eastern goods, and that they were not aware that there had been a change of sentiment in Omaha favorable to home made goods. Several others spoke on the subject, some of them displaying considerable feeling in the matter. President Page reviewed briefly the work of the association as to renting of rooms, printing labels, employing a secretary, etc. Of the labels 3,200 have been disposed of.

Use Association Labels.

Members were urged to use these labels and examples were given showing their value. Attention was also called to the blanks to be used for the general membership, and manufacturers were urged to do all that they could to obtain the signatures of people who would agree to use Nebraska made goods. The president also announced that the executive committee had made arrangements for an entertainment to be given at the Grand opera house on the evening of December 2. The Apollo club has been en-December 2. The Apollo club has been en-gaced for the occasion and there will be short addresses by prominent speakers on topics of general interest. AS VIEWED BY A VETERAN.

New York's Recent Election Was a Democratic Carnival.

John M. Francis of Troy, N. Y., is at the Paxton. Mr. Francis is an old newspaper man, having established the Troy Daily Times some forty years ago, which protonged experience certainly entitles him to the honor of being a veteran in the editorial ranks. With his son he still conducts this old and well known journal and has been in the haress actively all this time with the exception of an interval of ten years in the diplomatic service. He was appointed by President Grant as minister to Greece, by President Arthur to Portugal, thence, through promo tion, to the Austro-Hungary ministry, which position he held until some months after the meoning of the Cleveland administration, when his resignation was tendered and ac-

Just now he is making a trip of pleasure and business combined through the west. He was in Omaha some three years ago, and is loud in his praise of the numerous and substantial improvements noticeable here since that time.

In speaking on the recent gubernatorial contest in New York state to a Bee reporter yesterday morning, Mr. Francis said:

"The late election in New York was a disappointment to the republicans in this, that instead of being an election in the usual acceptation of the term, it was a democratic carnival. A carnival, I say, because it was a performance stimulated by money, which perfectly overwhelmed everything in the nature of sentiment and conviction in respect of what should have been considered the legitimate issues of the campaign. It was, in fact, a Tammany performance, and that means all the appliances and enginery of Tammany's methods. The salaries of offi-cials under the control of Tammany in New York, bear in mind, aggregate about $17,-000,000 annually. These salaries were assessed to secure a productious fund as a basis, or, it may be said, a inbricator for the ma chinery. It is alleged, and I believe with truth, that, including the amount controlled by the millionaire candidate for governor, Roswell P. Flower, at least $1,500,000 was raised to secure the success of the Tammany performance on November 4, that day being the appointed election day of the state. "A week or ten days prior to that time hundreds of agents had been sent out into the country with the necessary funds for working the Tammany machine, and probably not less than $500,000 was expended in a sort of still bunt to find and purhase republicans in every district of the state. By purchasing, I mean, to persuade them for material consideration, ranging anywhere from $5 to $25 to remain at home on this so-called election day, in other words, not to vote. This influence was potential. It certainly prevailed with a great many thousand voters, who but for the influence brought to bear upon them would, as usual, have attended the polls and deposited their votes. Then there was left of the Tammany fund $1,009,000 to be used on election day, as he occasion was characterized. This sufficed to do the work of thoroughly sweeping up the floating and purchasable material which is always in the market on such occasions and prepared to sell their votes. "Now you have some idea of the influence that secured the success of the democratic state ticket by a majority so large in the face of what seemed to be a united and earnest and spirited campaign on the part of the re-publicans in behalf of their excellent and popular ticket, headed by the able, eloquent, and in the sense of righteous advocacy, agressive ex-Senator Fassett for governor. Now you ask in view of such a presentation what of the future as respects political results in the empire state! To this question the answer may be made that the popular vote of New York, the past twelve or fourvote of New York, the past tweive or four-teen years, has, as a rule, awarded success to the democratic party by majorities some-times very large except in presidential years, when the republicans, as a rule, have been successful. I believe now that with any acceptable nominee, we can carry New York in spite of Tammany and Tammany's methods. So you see we are not without hope; there is solid ground for encourage-ment and we may adopt the Napoleonic utterance as respects the republican party of the Empire state, 'the old guard never sur-renders.' But you here at the west, with prosperity coming and with you now, largely as a result of republican policy, must put in and do your whole duty to sustain the republican party, to solidify its ranks, and to assure, as in times past, a march on to victory next year."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"The Devil's Auction," which has been remodeled, and which is almost an entirely new production, is the Thanksgiving attraction at Boyd's New theater. This attraction five and six years ago was one of the most popular that came to Omaha, and this season Mr. W. J. Gilmore has made it more attractive than over. "The Devil's Auction" opens its Omaha engagement on Thursday afternoon and continues it during the bal-ance of the week. The sale of seats for the entire engagement opens at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Bright music, merry dances, lively songs and a unique plot are the elements in J. J. McNaily's musical farce comedy, "Boys and Girls," which commences an engagement at the Farnam Street theater on Sunday with matinee, in which Rich & Harris' Comedy company appear. Mr. McNally, the author of "A Straight Tip," one of the most suc-cessful comedies of the day, has written a play which gives the greatest opportunity for the display of the undoubted ability of the east which Messrs. Rich & Harris have selected to interpret it. "Boys and Girls" furnishes, it is said, no end of fun and merri-ment, and foremost among the fun-makers will be found flagged by Maries Otis Harling will be found George F. Marion, Otis Harlan, Joseph Mitchell, James A. Sturgis, Wood and Shepherd and Ignatio Martinet; then come the very clever Irwin Sisters, Blanche Howard, Laura Russell, Sadie Kirby and Nellie V. There will be one more performance of the musical farce comedy, "Natural Gas," by Donnelly and Girard and their clover company at Boya's new theater this evening. People who admire this style of amusement will have an opportunity of witnessing the best that will be here this season.

REWARD FOR DEVOTED ENERGIES

Advancement in Medical Science Hampered-Mr. North Expresses Views of Interest to Every Fair Minded Citizen.

To the Editor of THE BEE: This question has suggested itself to my mind after reading of the medicolegal controversy now being conducted in the state of Nebraska, in regard to the enforcement of recent medical legis-Not being engaged in the practice of medicine, it cannot be charged against me that I am seeking to vent spite, or that I have any personal interest in a modification of the rules established in that state for the practice of

I am a close reader of the current medical literature of the day, and consider myself fairly well read upon all matters pertaining to the general practice of medicine. The more I read and observe of the efforts to enforce medical legislation, the more firmly am I convinced that such legislation is not alone antagonistic to the interests of the peoat large, but is also detrimental to the advancement of medicine as a science. The present trouble within the profession is not a new one. I have witnessed such controversies innumerable; and in the early years my sympathies were naturally with those who professedly sought to elevate the moral and intellectual stand-ard of the profession, believing at the time that any act by an individual member, not endorsed by a majority of his colleagues, was unprofessional conduct, and should be punished by legal meth-ods, where such existed; or, in the absence of these, the penalty of social and professional ostracism should be meted out to the guilty party.

In the later years, however, I have concluded that the largest latitude of thought and action should be extended to everyone, who, by his professional attainments, as proved by the success with which he has pursued his calling profession in the community is which he resides, has shown himself competent to advise, or whose re searches have resulted in good to the profession, or to the community at

But not alone does a sense of justice to the practitioner prompt me to this con-clusion. The profession owes it as much to the community as to themselves that every possible means of advancement shall be exhausted. And when they attempt to adopt and enforce a code of ethics which says to Peter "Thou shalt," and to Paul "Thou shalt not," they have stepped beyond the bounds—not only of permissive right, but have exhibited a bigoted tyranay in conflict with our institutions, and by so doing have inflicted upon the communi ties in which they live an injustice, by robbing them of the results for good which might be achieved by the more thinking minds embraced within the pro-For under the narrow minded. illiberal code of ethics adopted by the profession, there is no reward offered for men to devote their time and their energies to the discovery of new remedies and new methods of treatment. The student of today graduates under olessors who have been trained in the strict observance of this code, and in subsequent years these students become the professors, imparting the same instruction to their pupils, and the same all the way down through time, making of our schools, their professors and the theory of practice an apostolic succession—the training being the same today that it was 100 years back and that it will be 100 years in the future, so far as the general line of teaching and practice is concerned. not the same, possibly. In rare in-stances some men of mental calber too great to be dictated to have defied the ethical requirements of the profession, and in a course of study and experience based upon common sense, coupled with extraordinary ability, have given to the world some important remedies and some important methods of treatment.

But I assert, and it is susceptible of proof, that no great medical discovery has been made within the past 100 years by any practitioner who adheres to the strict rules of the medical code. Discoveries have been made, and valuable ones, but they have all been made by persons pursuing special lines of practice. Keeley of Dwight was the first to recognize alcoholism as a disease. Recognizing it as such, his active mind sought an antidote, and the pro fession now is almost forced to acknowl-ledge that he has found it. Other specialists have brought out cures for diseases which the profession either refused to recognize or had pronounced incurable. For instance, the Cook Remedy company of Omaha, Neb., has introduced a true specific for syphilitic blood poison-a disease before which the whole medical faculty stands utterly and hopelessly appalled-and I am informed that many physicians who have not the moral or professional courage to acknowledge it openly. some of them even regulars, not only admit the virtues of their remedy, but have actually sought permission from the company to use it secretly in their practice, and some have gone so far as to claim to their patients that they are using it. But let us ask, how much more good could they accomplish if they would investigate and indorse Keeley, or even the Cook Remedy company, both of whom are doing quit as much for the community at large. especially for future generations, as very much larger number of the regular profession will ever accomplish.

I know this article will have no influence with the profession generally, but confidently predict that within a very tew years public sentiment, outside of the profession, will compel them to admit that these two discoveries are the longest strides medical science has taken within a century. Other advances have been made in other directions, but possibly of less consequence than these, Some of them have been made by pharmacists who never studied medicine for the purpose of practice. Others have been stumbled upon by chemists in their experiments, and not in a few instances really valu able remedies have been discovered by persons with no knowledge of medicine whatever. I am not decrying medical education, for these only prove that the medical profession, mentally disciplined and pro-fessionally qualified for thorough research, if untrammeled by any code of ethics, could and would become the brightest constellation in the galaxy of intellectual splendor, so richly adorning the civilization of this nineteenth con

Under the present code there is no incentive to labor in the field of discovery.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY WORK

Numerous Cases to Be Disposed of During Two Weeks. The federal grand jury was empaneled yesterday afternoon and a motley array of criminals came marching into court to be scrutinized by the jury and Judge Dundy before the work of investigating the evidence in their cases was begun. There were sevenprisoners brought down from the county jail. They had been placed in the custody of Sheriff Boyd for safe keeping during the months that had intervened between the spring and fall terms of court. Their crimes were various, and their physical appearance that Judge Dundy instructed the jury to proceed with the investigation of the evidence against the parties who were confined in jail first, so that no injustice might be done any of them or their families by keeping them in jail longer than the offense for which they had been arrested would justify.

The jury then selected a foreman, and retired to begin work upon the case of Trumpeter Dixon of the Sixth cavalry, charged with shooting Captain Carter of the

The trial of Cee Ching Lee, charged with the lilegal practice of medicine, came up in police court yesterday afternoon. In a conversation with a BEE reporter Dr. Allen said: "In regard to the physicians who have been refused certificates, it is not a matter of advertising, for nearly every supreme court in the country has decided that a doctor has a right to advertise his business. The old core of ethics is not considered at al in the rulings of the court, neither do we objects to is physicians advertising to cure where it is a well known fact that they cannot, thus obtaining money by false pretenses. Many regular graduates advertise that they can effect a cure in cases which we know are utterly impossible. We want to break up this kind of advertising. It is the quack we are after. Why, I remember a case of a regular physician who came up before the board for examination. He had been circulating a poster which stated that he was a graduate of St. Petersburg. When asked for his foreign certificate the doctor admitted that he was a graduate of a college not far from Omaha, but said that stating he was a foreign physician was a big thing and brough him lots of business. ACHING SIDES AND BACK.

Our advertising department will pay Twenty-five Dollars in Gold for Cabinet Photographs of the five handsomest boys, ages 4 to 18, received by us up to January 1st, 1892. The Twenty-five Dollars to be divided as follows: $10 to the first, $5 to the second, $5 to the third, $3 to the fourth and $2 to the fifth. In order that you may not confound this offer with a certain style of sensational advertising frequently indulged in, we will plainly state our reasons for it. Twice each year we issue a number of thousand catalogues which we mail to our out-of-town customers. It is necessary that we illustrate these catalogues to a certain extent. We can, and so far have, used what are known as 'stock cuts," that is, ready-made cuts. Aside from the fact that these cuts never look like "real boys," anybody can buy them, and we frequently run across catalogues containing cuts exactly like ours. As our advertising department aims, in a certain degree, at originality, we desire for our next cataogue a set of cuts of typical "western boys."

THE ONLY CONDITIONS

attached to this offer are these: The Photos are to be displayed in our show windows New Years Eve. We to have the privilege of using cuts made from these five Photos in our next catalogue.
