Annual Report of the Treasurer of the United States.

FACTS AND FIGURES FOR FINANCIERS.

Every Candidate for the Speakership Still Sure of His Election—Miscellaneous Gossip from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—Hon. E. H. Nebecker, treasurer of the United States, has submitted his annual report in regard to the operations and conditions of the treasury to Secretary Foster.

The net ordinary revenues of the government for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1891, were $10,463,355 less than those of the year before. The net ordinary expenditures, exclusive of the amounts paid in premiums on bonds purchased, were $55,377,854, an increase of $57,036,198. The surplus revenues were thus out down from $105,344,406 to $37,237,762, which last sum was applied to the reduction of the public debt.

Postal Revenues. The postal revenues amounted to $65,702,908 and the expenditures to $67,340,180, an increase of about $5,000,000 of both sides.

On June 30, 1890, there stood charged to the treasurer on the books of the department a balance of $99,537,403, representing the excess of previous decrease over expenditures. To this was added the receipts of the year from all sources, amounting to $75,821,305, which made an aggregate of $1,457,348,708 to be accounted for by the department.

Authorized by the warrants of the department, including those on account of the public debt, were $1,292,727,000, which was the amount of $2,585,474,308 for which the treasury was required to be able to produce cash or other assets.

Desires being the bank of the general government the treasury is also the depository of the Postoffice department, of the bank note redemption fund, and of the disbursement officers of the various departments.

Of these accounts, together with certain sums which had been paid in, but not yet covered by warrant, made the treasury's liabilities $1,457,348,708 at the close of the year, and $77,554,584 at the close, for which he held cash and other assets of the exact equivalent.

IT MAY EMBROIL ALL EUROPE.

Chi's Rebellion is Significant from a Diplomatic Point of View.

ENGLAND SEEKING A POWERFUL ALLY.

Understanding Between Great Britain and the Chinese Government—France and Russia May Intercede Anyhow.

[Copyrighted 1891 by James Gordon Bennett.] PARIS, Dec. 2.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to THE BEE.]—The Chinese legation persists in denying the importance of the insurrection in China, but the advice received by the French government do not bear out this estimate.

The British government is negotiating with China, with a view to lending her assistance in men and money against the rebels. In exchange for these good services China seems disposed to sign a treaty of alliance with England, ceding Yangtze and pledging herself to oppose Russia in the event of an Anglo-Russian war.

England's plan in case of conflict would be to organize an invasion of Siberia by the Tartar hordes, and to make sure of the co-operation of China in the Pamir country.

It is worthy of remark that England is the only European country which has thrown difficulties in the way of joint action against China. The English have invented pretext after pretext to prevent this action.

France and Russia are determined on intervention, with or without the support of the other powers. This course would be most harmful to the general interests of Europeans in the far east. Meanwhile the French government has sent telegraphic instructions to the commanders of the French ships in the east to hold themselves in readiness to sail for Chinese waters.

Missionaries and diplomats familiar with the insurrection will soon spread to the southern provinces. It is the work of the secret societies, which extend throughout China.

At this point court adjourned. A motion surrounded the new courts in the case, and as the earl left he was looked at and attempts were made to strike him. The police intervened to prevent him from being overpowered and the earl was obliged to seek refuge in the Temple. Being still followed, however, he jumped into a cab and was seen driving away, among the jeers and hisses of the mob.

RELIGIOUS DISPUTES REVEALED.

French People Find Themselves Again in a Peculiar Predicament.

[Copyrighted 1891 by James Gordon Bennett.] PARIS, Dec. 2.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to THE BEE.]—The ill-judged proposition of the archbishop of Aix has revived old religious quarrels in France which it was hoped had been settled. Today the radicals in the chamber of deputies asked leave to interpellate the government on the action which it proposed to take against the bishops.

The episcopate has lost no time in taking up the challenge. Several of them have signed a virulent letter attacking the republic, and although several of the bishops are at heart shamed-faced republicans.

In the face of this attitude of his colleagues the bishop of Bayonne has felt it incumbent on him to withdraw his recent liberal declaration and his injunction to the Jesuits of his diocese to abstain from anti-republican allusions in their sermons.

Another symptom of this conflict is the case of 600 francs fine passed today on the Figaro for organizing a public subscription to pay the archbishop of Aix's fine of 5,000 francs.

Unfortunately at this time, it is clear that the feeling of mutual toleration till lately noticeable in the intercourse of the republicans and the clericals is vanishing. The question is complicated by the relations of the Vatican with the French government and the members of the triple alliance. While political France remains anti-Catholic, the allies are making advances to the pope. It is, perhaps, to be regretted that things should not have taken a contrary course. The men in power here are deeply imbued with Voltairian and "anti-clerical" ideas, and when the young generation is not in sympathy, and so far as our rulers are concerned there is small hope of things changing.

The pope, however, may make concessions. He may advise the French prelates to avoid stirring up disputes and scandals. Dom Pedro is lying very ill at the Hotel Beffroy. His family is anxiously assembled about his bedside. Dr. Charcot and Dr. Houehard, who have been called in, take a very grave view of the ex-empereur's case.

HEADS WERE BROKEN.

Limerick the Scene of Another Row Between Political Factions.

DUBLIN, Dec. 2.—A disgraceful scene occurred today at the railway station in Limerick growing out of the antipathy entertained by the two factions of the Irish party for each other.

The McCarthys had been holding a convention at Limerick, and among the prominent speakers present were Mr. William O'Brien and Mr. John Dillon. After the business of the convention had been concluded a large number of those present escorted Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien to the station. A large crowd of the friends of Charles Stewart Parnell, who were naturally highly indignant at the treatment. Most of them carried heavy walking sticks, and before the Parnellites realized their intentions they swooped down on a body upon the shoulders of their leaders. The latter resisted as best they could, and for a time the scuffle was a hot one. The latter swore vengeance against those who had despoiled him of his wife, and, calling his followers to follow, started in pursuit of her. He determined to make himself suffer with the guilty, and, as he swept through the crowd,

HE IS PENNILESS AND DYING.

Cyrus W. Field's Burden of Sorrow Too Great for Him to Bear.

SAD ENDING OF A NOBLE, HELPFUL LIFE.

Robbed and Deceived by an Unnatural Son—Edward Field in an Insane Asylum—A Sorely Afflicted Family.

New York, Dec. 2.—Fifty-one years ago today a New England youth, known as Cyrus West Field, stood at the marriage altar full of vigor, hope and sturdy ambition. His strength made its impress upon the century; his hope bore him up in his work and his ambition has been rewarded with medals, with knighthood and with the thanks of the United States congress. Hand in hand the New England youth and his helpful wife came honorably down through half a century of time, almost to the present day. A little more than one week ago, however, the woman he wedded on the day of his majority left him. Her path, for the first time in all these years, parted from his, and the wife went away from the side along the roadway which leads into the beyond. Tonight, bereft of wife and wrecked in fortune, and penniless by the hand of an ingrate and disgraced son, Cyrus W. Field lies dying at 72 years of age in a handsome home that he inherited from his father.

Edward M. Field, the son who wrecked the firm of Field, Lindley, Weicesters & Co., is an inmate of Vernon house, a private insane asylum near the village of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Edward M. Field lies dangerously ill at the home of her brother, Dr. Lindley, 55 Madison avenue.

Miss D. Lindley, daughter of Cyrus W. Field, is believed to be on her death bed. This expresses in a few words the pitiful condition of the family which a few days ago was envied for its wealth, happiness and social eminence. And the fact that today is the fifty-first anniversary of Cyrus W. Field's marriage adds a new sadness to the story of the day.

A member of the Field family tonight came from the bedside of Cyrus W. Field and said: "He is completely broken in body and spirit. The unfortunate old man feels that death would be a welcome release to him. He has no desire to live. He feels that his name has been tarnished, notwithstanding the fact that he has sacrificed his all in order to keep his son from bankruptcy."

A little later Dr. Fuller, the family physician, said: "I have been attending for a few days, and he may die in a few hours. He has received so many shocks during the past few days that he is in a state of nervous excitement likely to result in dissolution."

"I am sorry I ever came into the world," said Cyrus W. Field to an old friend, to whom he spoke of his son's deceit and ingratitude.

Edward M. Field appealed to his father, Cyrus W. Field, recently for assistance in the management of the firm, all of his resources having been used up. His father consented to assist him and authorized him to take certain securities from his strong box for that purpose.

Robbed by His Son. The son, however, took every negotiable security there was in the box, but even that did not prevent the firm's downfall. It is believed that the firm's remaining assets once more fortune before this fresh trouble did not exceed $100,000. How much of that sum is a dollar is now left. And how much Edward M. Field's share of the firm's remaining assets in the manner described is not known, but it is said to have been $300,000. The balance was real estate, of which his house, which he sold this week, formed part. All of it is said to be gone in the meantime.

It is now charged that the firm's assets were voluntarily and lawfully, and now much of it the son took without authority and lost there, no one seems able or willing to say. Cyrus W. Field, who is now penniless, recalls the fact that he was supposed to have been a special partner in the firm of Field, Lindley & Co. for a number of years. On the date the firm was reorganized and the senior Mr. Field was supposed to have withdrawn his $300,000, it is believed that he received $500,000 if it existed at all in that way, was ever withdrawn by Mr. Field, but was lost, and its loss brought about the reorganization and the destruction of the firm. It is believed that Edward M. Field's speculative course continued, with the result that the money of all the partners was as well as the $500,000 belonging to his father.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S SPEECH.

Words Which Have Caused Considerable Comment.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 2.—The magazine Zeitung asserts that Emperor William's speech, made a week ago, on the occasion of the administration of the oath of allegiance to recruits of the guards, really contained the following: "Recruits, you have before you a man who has sworn to me, that he will give you his life for me, and you must give yourselves to me, body and soul. In the present socialist agitation I may order you, which God forbid, to give up your lives for me, and you must obey without a murmur."

Death of a Belgian Journalist. BRUSSELS, Dec. 2.—[New York Herald Cable—Special to THE BEE.]—Mme. Caroline Popp, the only Belgian female journalist, and senior member of the Belgian press, died at Bruges today. Since 1855 she has been editor of the Journal de Bruges. She also wrote largely for the Brussels papers. In 1856 while the Belgian press languished on the occasion of her golden wedding, with journalism the king made her a knight of the Order of Leopold, an unprecedented honor for a woman, an titling her to a military funeral.

The senior Belgian journalist now is Edouard Petit Muscat, art critic of the independence Belge, on which paper he has been for fifty-three years. At the age of 79 he is still hale, and tonight is in a stall at the Theater de la Monnaie, reporting the revival of "Don Juan" for tomorrow.

Seal to the London Times. LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Times today prints a dispatch from Santiago de Chile, which says that during the hearing before Judge of Crimes Foster, the British consul in that city, the sailors from the American cruiser Baltimore, a witness from the Baltimore crew appeared in court in such a state of excitement that it was necessary to remove him forcibly. Captain Schley, commander of the Baltimore, apologized to the court for the condition of the witness.

THE WEATHER FORECAST.

OFFICE OF WEATHER BUREAU, OMAHA, Dec. 1. The storm mentioned in yesterday's paper as developing west of us is now central over eastern Nebraska. As there is much colder air descending from the British Isles, the storm will increase in intensity as it moves toward and over the lakes. Warmer weather, threatening weather prevailed over the lower and colder weather with rain and snow over the upper Missouri valley. The temperature today is about the same as yesterday, but the disturbances in Mongolia are grossly exaggerated. The movement, the dispatches say, is purely a local one, and entirely devoid of danger to our territory. The storm will increase in intensity as it moves toward and over the lakes. RAILROAD MEN IN CHICAGO.

Chauncey Depew on Presidential Possibilities.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 2.—The Vanderbilt party arrived by a special train from New York tonight and registered at the Auditorium. It consisted of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Chauncey M. Depew, Charles E. Cox, Samuel Harton, John Hone, H. McK. Twombly and H. Walter Wood. The trip is one of inspection, and they will probably leave Chicago on the return trip Friday morning.

In an interview Mr. Depew said: "There is no division of sentiment among the republicans as to whether it is better to have a candidate for the nomination. Nothing on earth can prevent his nomination if he desires it. If he does not, President Harrison will be the nominee. There will be no contest in the convention on that question. As to the present relations between the two, I am told of each of them that they perfectly understand one another."
