HOW SOME TREATIES ARE MADE

Mr. Wordruff of Wyoming Gives His Experience as a Commissioner.

GIVING THE INDIANS THE BEST OF IT.

Sentiments Which Usually Control the Average Appointee on a Commission-The Story of a Western Man,

When Hon, J. S. Woodruff, who is in the city on his way to Washington, reaches the national capital there will be few in the camp of the commission which put in nearly three months last summer in framing a treaty with Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians.

Mr. Woodruff was chairman of the commission, but was not able to agree with the two other members on the terms of the treaty, and has a minority report to make, which will probably cause trouble, and will, at least, throw some light upon the manner in which government commissions sometimes sacrifice the interests of the people the sake of a chance the government appropriation. Mr. Woodruff simply charges that the treaty framed by the majority of the commission means the giving of $600,000 to the Indians for about a million acres of as poor land as ever laid out of doors; land, that he says, would be absolutely worthless for settlers for whose benefit the treaty was sought to be made.

"The entire work of the commission," said Mr. Woodruff, "was simply an illustration of the foolishness of appointing for such duties men who are totally unqualified for the work. When the matter of appointing the commis sion first came up the people of Fremont county, Wyoming, endorsed me for a place on the commission. You see the object of the commission was to make a treaty with the Shoshone and Arapance Indians, by which about half of their reservation, which comprises about 1,500,000 acres of land in Fremont county, should be thrown open for settlement. I did not want the place, although no man in Wyoming has the interests of the state more at heart than I have; but the people insisted upon recommending me, and their wishes were made known to Senator Carey, who endorsed me to Secretary Noble for the place. The secretary refused to name any man in Wyoming, saying that disinterested parties should constitute the commission parties should constitute the commission.

"This was just what I was afraid of, so I wrote Senator Carey a letter. I never went to senool a day in my life, so it was a very difficult job for me to write much of a letter, but I put in an entire night on this one, and I guess I did pretty well. I told Senator Carey that Wyoming had too much at stake to allow such an important matter to go into the hands of men who knew nothing about Wyoming and still less about nothing about Wyoming and still less about Indians. I showed the foolishness and danger of such a step, and put it in pretty strong language. Senator Carey turned the letter over to Secretary Noble, and in a few days came my appointment as chairman of the compriseion.

Ignorant of Indian Affairs.

"The other members of the commission were C. H. Merrillat, a young Washington newspaper man, and J. H. Brigham of Ohio, and no two ever lived who knew less about Indians than they. Mr. Brigham, I wilt say, however, didn't pretend to know anything of them, but Merrillat knew enough for the two. He was one of those fellows who have romantic ideas about the noble red men and wanted to treat them as trusting children and all that. Weil, I have lived among Indians all my life, have fought them and met them under all conditions, and I soon found out that the Merrillat end of the commission make a muss of the business if "At first Merillat and Brigham did not appear to take much interest in the matter. They played lawn tennis and read thrilling stories of border life, while I was arranging for a council between the two tribes. I went at the work in earnest, and explained to the other members my pian for a treaty and they concurred in it after we had talked it all over. I proposed to buy about 800,000 acres of the reservation, the purchase to Include about a haif million acres of good tillable land and the rest very fine grazing country. This would leave the Indians about 800,000 acres.

800,000 acres more than the government es timated they would need. For this I pro posed the government should pay the In dians $700,000 and in this payment I had a plan for the benefit of both the Indians and the state, I proposed to have the money divided into funds, a school fund, a road fund, an irrigation fund and other development funds. The money was not to go to the Indians for eight years, the interest on the funds to be used in the meantime for the de velopment of that portion of the reservation still belonging to the Indians.

Satisfied the Indians.

"My plan was endorsed by Messrs. Mer-rillat and Brigham, and a council was called at Shoshone agency on August 2, after the commission had been on the ground only a little more than a week. I explained to the Indians what we proposed to do. I talked to them for four hours, going into the minutest details as to the manner in which the money from their lands was to be used in developing the part still reserved by them. When I was through talking old Chief Washkee, the braniest Indian in Wyoning, got up and shook my hand and said the treaty was good and that he would sign it. I have known him for years and he had confidence in what Well, it looked then as though the commission's work was accomplished, but young Mr. Merrillat kicked the fat into the fire. He accused me of having taken an undue advantage of him and of having incorporated a lot of things in the treaty that he did not understand. I am not much of a diplomat and I went after him and abused him like a pickpocket. I had simply laid before the Indians a treaty which the members of the commission had discussed in all its bearings and had agreed upon. I told him in pretty vigorous English what I thought of his action in the matter, and then he let the cat out of the bag.

Wanted to Use Up the Appropriation. "The young fellow had the gall to confess that his chief reason for opposing my plan of treaty was that the appropriation had not been used up, and he couldn't think of going home as long as the government paid his bills. You see the commissioners were al-lowed $10 a day each and other expenses, which made it quite an object for the young man to prolong his job. He said it was the usual thing for congressional commissions to stay in the field as long as th. appropia-tion held out, and he did: propose to estab-lish a bad precedent by going home with a balance in the fund appropriated for the work of the commission. He said, too, that he would not go back without a treaty—that would be another had precedent to establish but he didn't want to sign one in such a hurry, and Mr. Brigham tacitly agreed with

Why that young diplomat, Merrillat, used to spend hours telling me how he would invest the money he was going to get from the government as his share of the commission's work. He paid much more attention to building air castles than he did to the work of the commission. He had nerve enough too to tell me that he knew he had the best of men as he was a representative of the Associated Press and could fill the newspectors of the contract of the castless of the castless and could fill the newspectors of the castless and could fill the newspectors. papers of the country with matter endorsing the work of the commission and he has since done it to the queen's tuste.

Those old Indians out there are pretty shrewd citizens and had good advisors among the white men who were opposed to opening the reservation. The Arapahoes very generally signed the proposed treaty without much hesitancy, but the Shoshones soon found out that they could get any kind of a treaty they wanted by simply delaying the game, and they proceeded to do it.

After the commission had been in the field about sixty days it was found that the appropriation for the expense of the work was priation for the expense of the work was about exhausted and something had to be done, and that promptly. That was where Mr. Merrillat shone. His anxiety for a treaty convinced the Indians that they could dictate the terms of the agreement and they

Giving the Indians the Best of It. "The upshot of the whole business was that Merrilist and Brigham were finally com-pelled to sign a treaty which gives the In-dians all the best of it. They agreed to pay the Shoshones and Arapahoes $600,000 for about 1,000,000 acres of land that is abso-l show. Mr. Merrillat has sept his promise about supplying the papers of the country with good reports of the commission's work. He has pictured a land flowing with milk and honey which will be open to settlers as a re-sult of the splendid treaty framed by the ommission. "I am going to Washington to present a minority report on that work for several reasons. One is that I am not going to sanction the squandering of $600,000, even if i does belong to the government; and another is to protect settlers who would otherwise rush to that country on the strength of the reports of Mr. Merrilat in case his one-sided treaty is adopted, and the sagebrush and cactus tract opened for settlement. Wyomng is one of the grandest states in the union and only wants a fair show to become one of the greatest. I will use every means in my power to provent giving the states black-eye by ratifying such a treaty and asking set-lers to make their homes in such as underable part of the state."

Mr. Woodruff was a member of the last Wyoming senate, and is one of the big sheep ruisers of the state. He is on his way east to sell some bonds voted recently by Fremost county, and will reach Washington about the first of the year with his protest against the proposed treaty.

They had lots of wedding presents, but the nost precious was a box of Haller's Aus-ralian salve. She said thoughtfully, it's so nice for the ittle chaps on my hands. He said, we haven, t got any 'little chaps' yet. She said, Why! John, and John was squeiched.

"SLUMMING."

Dr. Harsha Talks of a Fad and Ite Possibly Harmful Results.

On account of the hard rain which set in bout 7 o'clock last evening there was a very small audience at the First Presbyterian hurch to listen to Rev. Dr. Harsha's sernon on "Slumming."

The particular kind of slumming the doctor talked about was the fad of a large number of society and church people who visit the poor and lowly out of mere curiosity and not with the thought or desire to benefit them either financialty or religiously. "I think,"

said the speaker, "that every young woman should have a practical education in kitchen work and nursing. There is nothing more valuable in real charitable work than good nursing for the sick. During the recent ill-ness of Captain Hattle Smith of the Salvation army I noticed with pleasure the daily attendance at her bedside of a wealthy and estimable young lady, who helped nurse the poor woman back to life. "I don't believe in this fad of thrusting one's self into the lowly home of an unfortu-nate and then going back to a handsome drawing room and relating experiences. Such work can hardly be called charity. It should be called curiosity. Such action on the part of the rich only increases the hatred of the debased and wretched against the wealthy, and does no good, but rather harm. When you go into a poor person's home and look around out of nere curiosity, even if your visit is dis-guised by the cloak of charity, it only ntensifies the hatred of the fallen for the aristocrats. The way to approach such peo ple is in a true gentlemanly and womanly way, and give them to understand that you realize their wants and recognize their rights, "True charity is often interfered with by those who have this slumming fad and wish to pose before their church and the world as very charitable people. There is nothing more beautiful than the visit of the rich to the poor in the right manner, when the heart of the visitor is sincere and the intention to do good is manifest. 'In my opinion the pest way to reach the lower class of people is to go right down and live among them. Make yourselves a standard for their guidance, give them a beacon to steer their ship by."

Dr. Harsha then spoke of the good the Salvation army sisters had done by living right amongst the lowly, and said that the lowest could be raised gradually by a con# tinued good example.

NOT YET OUT OF POLITICS.

Iowa's Prohibition Question Again Being Thoroughly Discussed.

DEMOCRATS CANNOT AGREE ON A BILL.

They Prefer to keep the Issue in Its Present Condition to Secure the Support of Some Republicans.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 13-[Special to THE BEE. |-Public interest in the prohibition question has been revived a number of times the past week by meetings of various organizations concerned in its settlement in Iowa. On Tuesday a number of leading democrats of the state held a conference at the Savery hotel. Among them were Senator Bolter of Harrison county, Dodge of Des Moines county, Dent of Plymouth, Schmidt of Scott, Editor Ham of Dubuque, Colonel Clark of Cedar Rapids, Chairman Fuilea of the State Central committee, Boss Ed. Hunter, and last but not least Governor Boics. The conference lasted from noon till nearly midnight. It was called for the purpose of decluing if possible upon some plan of procedure on the temperance question in the legislature. As the discussion waxed warm it was developed that these great leaders were not a unit upon the question. The governor and Colonel Clark were in tayor of passing any sort of licence measure which could be forced through both houses, using Senator Schmidt's bill of nast session as a basis, which provides for a fee of not less tnan $500 per annum, with such additional sums as the municipality may fix. Other features are that two-fifths of the electors may petition the city council and they shall submit to the voters whether or not iquors shall be sold, no other question being voted on, and such election not to be held offener than once in two years. If heense carries it will require the petition of at least ten resident freeholders to the district court, showing the applicant to be of respectable character, before a license shall

Five hundred dollars must go into the county treasury, and the additional, it any, county treasury, and the additional, it any, into the municipality. No person shall be licensed to sell liquor unless he gives a bond of $5,000, payable to the county, with at least two sureties, conditioned that he will not violate any of the provisions of the law, and be subject to suit by any person who may be injured by reason of the licensed person violating any of the provisions of this act. No license shall be granted for more than one year, and the place where the inquor is to be sold and the license itself are iquor is to be sold and the license itself are

May Be Revoked.

The court can revoke a license upon proof that the person holding the license has been convicted of a second violation of the law. Any person violating the law by selling liquors to minors, intoxicated persons, babitual drunkards or insane or idiotic persons shall be punished by a fine of not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or by both fine and imprisonment. A minor who falsely represents his age shall be subject to like punishment.

The district court may grant permits to druggists to sell liquor for medicinal. mechanical and chemical purposes exclusively upon payment of all expenses and costs relating to the issuance of such permit and upon the compliance of all the provisions contained in this act, except that no license fee or bond shall be required, and such druggists shall be subject to all the requirements and all the penalties contained in this act.

If any law is enacted at this legislature, it will be upon this basis, except that the fee may be raised to $750 or $1,000. Senator Schmidt was not willing to go beyond his measure, saving that was as far as his constituents would permit him to go. Other members of the conclave were not willing nor anxious for any change in the ampaigns on the basis of the past two, using anti-prohibition republicans as a lever by which to holst democrats into power, so nothing was accomplished, and it was decided to wait awhile and see what move the republicans were likely to make.

Prohibitionists Active.

On the same day the third party probl-biliouists held a meeting, decided to establish permanent headquarters here and invited all prohibitionists regardless of politics on other questions to join them in a crusade against the saloon. Leaders of the State Temperance alliance also held a meeting last week and issued an address to the people urging the formation of prohibition clubs and a general movement all along the line. So the prohibition question in Iowa is not yet out of politics, but bids fair to be-come more prominent than ever. The republeans however have about come to the conclusion that the democrats, having senate and the governor, should take the initiative in the matter and bear the brant of any legislation that may ensue.

Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

The biennial report of Superintendent Rothert of the institution for the deaf and dumb of Council Bluffs has just been issued. It chronicles good health and a low rate of mortality, only one death naving occurred the cause of which had its origin at the child's own home. "The erection of our hos-pital, the establishment of our new sewer system, the in-provement in drainage, the attention paid to vert ation and cleanliness, have all tended to raise the sanitary condi-tion of our institution to a high standard, and we carnestly hope the future may be as free from serious sickness as the past." The superintendent advocates compulsory education of the deaf and devotes the major part of his report to showing the necessity for certain repairs. In conclusion he uses convicing arguments why no minor branch or divi-sion should be located elsewhere, and be-lieves such action would be suicidal in part to the institution and costly to the state. He hopes to be able to exhibit at the World's fair, the beginning, progress and ending of mental and practical training of the isolated children under his meharge. The report asks for an appropriation of $28,500. Improvement Delegates.

No Insurance Trust.

President Howell of the Hawkeye Insur-ance company of this city, referring to the dispatch sent out regarding the recent meet-ing of insurance men in this city said the whole matter was sensational. "The meeting of insurance men in this city last week was a meeting of the Iowa Union of Insurance Companies, which has been in existence for twelve years and is made up of the special agents or 'field' men of insurance companies. These men are without power to contract for or hind the companies they rep-resent to anything. Their meetings are merely advisory in their nature. They in-vestigate the facilities for fighting fire and compare notes generally as to causes of fires, recommend rewards for fire bugs and confer upon matters of that kind solely. It is absord to say that such a body is meeting for the purpose of formulating a trust."

will begin on first floor our regular annual sale of winter suits for men. The thousands who have taken advantage of these sales as they have occurred yearly almost to the very day, will read this announcement with interest. They know what it means. They'll all be here. The simple announcement that the sale was to begin would bring 'em. To the newcomer since our memorable sale of a year ago, as well as to the few old-timers who have'nt taken pains to investigate former sales, we will say this: Every year since we began business we have held a special suit sale at about this time of the year. Each succeeding sale has seen the crowds grow larger, until last year we were hardly able to wait upon the goodnatured mob around the special tables. We have always offered extraordinary values at these sales; this one will be no exception. If you've never attended one of these sales this will be a good one to begin on.

Gives you your choice of about three hundred strictly all wool fancy plaid cassimere suits, and two hundred and fifty very desirable fancy striped cheviot suits. These suits are lined with a fine twilled lining, well trimmed throughout, and were made by tailors who knew their business. The regular price is just eight-fifty.

Is the price of a splendid all wool cassimere suit, without any exception the best value we have ever offered at a moderate price. The goods were made in a mill where they have never been introduced to cotton. The pattern is a neat plaid; the linings, trimmings and making are all substantial, and the man who has laid aside twelve dollars for a suit of clothes will get twelve dollars worth of suit for seven-ninety in cash.

Gives you your choice of three styles of suits worth thirteen-fifty to fifteen dollars. They come in fine cassimere and fancy striped and plaid cheviots. They are cut, lined, trimmed and made by workmen who can "hold their job." They've got the style to them. They've got the wear in them. They've got the shape that you'd get with fifteen dollars anywhere but here.
