Though Prof. Croan Was Offered Abundant Substantial Inducements He Suddenly Declared the Deal Off - Other Capital City Notes of Interest.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 13 .- [Special to THE BRE.]-It transpires today that Omaha or some other city will after all capture the normal university which has been occupying so prominent a place in the Lincoln eye for the past month. Prof. Croan, the Shenandoah, Ia., man who has been flirting with the citizens of the capital city, today kicked over the whole arrangement, and the chances are that he will carry his scheme elsewhere. The history of the movement may be greaned from a perusal of the following agreements which were formally signed and attested:

To F. F. Roose, manager, Lincoln Normal To F. F. Roose, manager, Lincoln Normal university:

We hereby agree to bring the Western Normal school to Lincoln. Neb., and consolidate same with the Lincoln Normal school, and malorain such consolidation for five years from Septemater, 1892, and operate the same for said period of five years from the date aforesaid, and we agree to come to Lincoln. Neb., and devote our whole time and labors in the maintenance and operation of said school.

All of the above is conditioned on your doing the following things: First. To pay salaries of not to exceed six professors to September 1, 1892, not to exceed professors to September I, 1822, not to exceed $1,0.0.

Second. To crect a power house of sufficient capacity for said school, and the cost not to exceed $4,000.

Third. To creet a boarding hall of capacity sufficient to accommodate 500 students, at a cost not to exceed $10,000.

Fourth. To equip the main building now in procress of construction with sufficient equipments for the purposes of said school at a cost not to exceed $10,000.

Fifth. The name of said school to be such as we may agree upon after such consolidation.

We give you thirty days from the date hereof in which to accept or reject this proposition.

It is acreed that in the event of the acceptance of this proposition by you, we are to have a one-half interest in said main building, the campus on which the same will be located, in said power house, boarding half and equipments.

Witness our hands this 9th day of December, 1801. WILLIAM M. CROAN.
W. J. KINSLEY.
Attest: C. A. ATKINSON, January 8, 1802.
To William M. Croan and W. J. Kinsley:
Gentlemen—I hereby accept the shove proposition and agree to the terms and conditions thereof.
F. F. ROOSE. Attest: C. A. ATKINSON.

Today Croan demanded a bond from the Lancoin gentlemen interested in the enter-Lincoin gentlemen interested in the enter-prise to insure their full compliance with the agreement. The bond properly made out was presented to him in two hours, but he then claimed that the bond came too late, as he had received a more favorable offer-amounting to $150,000—from Omaha, this amount to be given him in buildings the first year and an equal amount the second year. It is not believed that he has received any offer from Omaha, but that he is simply any offer from Omaha, but that he is simply playing a game of bluff.

The gentlemen who had subscribed to the stock of the proposed institution held a meet-ing this afternoon and unanimously voted to transfer their subscriptions and support to Prof. Roose of this city, provided he would go ahead with the enterprise. He has agreed to do so. Further developments from Croan are awaited with interest.

Some Political Gossip. The meeting of the republican state central committee Thursday at Omaha will no goubt be very interesting. The question of selecting congressional committees will be one of the topics of discussion.

"This meeting of the central committee," said a prominent wheel horse in the party to a Bee reporter yesterday, "has several airings to it. In the first place it is very largely directed by Brad Slaughter with a will have no trouble in getting the young men of Nebraska into line. What we want to do is to win back the older men who have do is to win oack the older men who have drifted into the alliance. The young men who are available as campaign workers are mostly in the cities. We want to gain strength in the country. The young men are needed and we should give them a liberal recognition, but there would be no sense in turning the whole campaign over to the management of the leagues. John M. Thurston is at the bottom of the scheme with Slaughter, but I think the sentiment of the committee will be in favor of placing the weight of the re sponsibility upon the shoulders of older and more experienced men and at the same time get the assistance of the leagues in the work of enthusing those who are lukewarm and of winning back those who have drifted into the alliance. "The trouble with Brad Slaughter and Thurston is that they don't understand themselves. Thurston is very eloquent and Brad very cunning, but the eloquence of Thurston is liable to repel republican farm-ers and scare away republicans in the alliance who want to come into our lines. Brad has many friends but he has always trained with the railroad machine politiciaus and we can't attract either young or old republicans if be makes himself conspicuous. "It is more than probable that the question of holding two conventions next spring and summer will be discussed. The convention to select delegates to the republican national convention will in all probability have to be held earlier than would be judicious for the holding of the convention to nominate candi-dates for the state offices. Two conventions are looked upon by many leading republicaus as an absolute necessity. There is an incli-nation on the part of many leading men in the party to favor the holding of the first con-vention at Lincoln and the second in Omaha. This matter will probably be carnestly discussed by the party leaders."

The headquarters consists of four good sized rooms all on the second floor of the block opposite the Millard and opening into each other in such a way as to make them very desirable for a political headquarters. The rooms have been neatly furnished and lighted by electricity.

About thirty prominent republicans met at the rooms last night and indulged in a sort of social dedication of the premises. Cards and cigars demanded a good deal of attention from the company and a few pleasant hours wore spent in the new apartments.

"Our intention is to have a convenient headquarters here for republican workers when they come in from over the state," said Mr. Hrad Slaughter last night to a Bes reporter. "We shall keep these headquarters open for a year. A file of all the leading republican papers of the state will be kept here, and a stenographer will be employed to stay right here all the time from now until the close of the campaign next fall. This will be a convenient place to meet the leading republicans who drop in from over the state, and we hope that all earnest republicans will consider these headquarters at their service and avail themselves of the benefit and privileges we efit and privileges we have here provided.

City Engineer Rosewater's Appointment-Other Appointees Go to Work.

The World-Herald yesterday in a very eak effort at a review of Mayor pointees, intimates that the selection of Andrew Rosewater for the office of city engineer was due to a "political puli." This statement is inucfinite, yet contemptible. Those who know what happened in the caucus between the mayor and council say that it was not the intention of Mayor Bemis to immediately depose Mr. Tillson, but that the councilmen made an urgent and unanimous demand for Mr. Rosewater's appointment. Mayor Bemis was asked yesterday whether he had seen the World-Herald's ed itorial comment on his appointments. He had not, and a chipping of the same was shown him. Glancing it over, his honor smiled suavely, and lacoalcally inquired:

well, what is it?" "Why was Andrew Rosewater appointed city engineer?"
"Simply because I thought it a good time for a change, and for many other reasons have no wish to enumerate."

"Did Mr. Rosewater apply for the posi-"No sir, never. I sent for him myself last Friday and has a talk with him, and he posi-tively declined to turn a hand for the posi-tion, so indifferent was he, but instead only had the very best of words for Mr. Tillson. "Were you urged by the editor of THE

"No sir. He never as much as suggested such a thing to me, and knew absolutely nothing of my intentions. In a talk with Mr. Tillson with reference to a change, he himself, as much as recommended Mr. Rosewater. He said he was not only a capable man, but an honest one, among many other kindly expressions." Mr. Tiliey, the new superintendent of buildings, called at the office of Superinten-dent Whitlock yesterday and looked over the workings of the department. He was well pleased with what he saw and expressed an opinion that he would file his bond next Tuesday in order to enter upon the discharge of his duties next Wednesday morning. He did not say what changes would take place in the clerical force of the office, but it is understood that he will discharge one or both of the inspectors, as he considers there is nothing for them to do except draw their salaries during the winter months when there are no new buildings being constructed. An Amateur Detective Who Started Out to Gain Experience - Police Notes. John Hamline is a Shelby, Neb., young map who left home a Tew days ago with the avowed intention of setting the Hudson river afire, but his incendiary ambition met with a frigid set-back in Onisha. According to his story he has a brother, James, who is a bold. bad man, and has served a term in Sing Sing for safe-blowing. He is now in New York city connected with a gang of burglars and cracksmen, and John conceived the idea that he could do a little missionary work in the was of reforming his brother and at the same time make it net him a neat little sum financially. He figured it out that he could show James the error of his ways and get him to tip off his associates so that John could de-liver them into the hands of luspector Byrnes and corral a handsome reward. Instead of arming himself with tracts, old sermons and a jou lot of bibles for his trip of reformation, he straightway forwarded six circular metal dollars to a detective agency at Washington, Ia., and received in return a detec-tive's certificate and star. With these and a big revolver in his pocket, he atarted east-ward in company with Roy Ray and Harry Maylong, and reached Omaha alive without experiencing a more thrilling sensation than that of being away from nome.
