For the Suppression of Vice.

The Bundesrath has finally approved the suppression of immorality bill with its sweeping clauses dealing with souteneurs, prostitutes procurers and others in immoral works. Procurers are liable to a month's imprisonment and to fines ranging from 150 marks to 6,000 marks. Those found guilty of winter. The duke has prepared a residence aggravated offenses are subject to terms of imprisonment of from one year to five years. The heaviest punishment that can be in flicted on maaried souteneurs is the minimum prescribed for person of that class. one year's imprisonment. The law provides that all offenders embraced by the act shall be placed in solitary confinement and shall be supplied with only a plank bed and bread and water.

Already the police are taking the law from the emperor to enforce the provisions of the act, and Berlin, Hamburg and other cities are being cleared of a social evil. Many hundreds of immoral women and men have Mitchell will not be present at the wedding, aiready been imprisoned.

The measures applied under the ignorant dictation of a reforming despot, are held by thinking men as being of small avail in effect ing a radical cure for the evils attacked. In a number of cases gross injustice has been done through the arrest by the police of workmen out of employment as souteneurs. Several hundred suspected persons are now confined in the Moabil prison awaiting trial under the act on charges made by the polico and other informers.

William's Birthday,

The thirty-third anniversary of the birth of Emperor William occurs on Wednesday next. The occasion will be celebrated by court fetes, at which the sing and queen o Wurtemburg and the king of Saxony and number of princes will be present.

Special significance is attached to the ra ception at Berlin of the king and queen of Wurtemburg. During the lifetime of the late king the relations of the Wurtemburg court with the imperial house were those of latent hostility. The king never visited Berlin. The new king having accorded open friendship to the imperial house, the em peror has determined to make his reception the occasion of special pomp.

German Executions

A woman named Badmewski vas beliended by the merlin executioner for murdering her husband by administering poison to him. She will, however, in all probability be the last criminal despatched in this manner, as the emperor is turning his attention to other methods of capital punishment. His majesty has decided against the present barbarous system.

As executions are now conducted in Ger many the condomned criminal is placed on a stool, an assistant holds the head, while the executioner, who has a sword ground to a razor-like sharpness, severs the head from the body. One blow is supposed to be sufficient to effect this purpose, but it sometimes happens thei several strokes have to be made before the head and body are separated. The emperer hesitates between death by hanging and electrocution. He is understood to prefer the former method. The use of guillotine as practiced in France he rejects entirely.

Foul Play Feared.

can preacher whose passionate and dramatic eloquence ten years since made so much stir in Paris, and whose impetuous liberalism led to his being silenced by his superiors, delivered a sermon in which he advocated the acceptance of the constitution by Catholics and satirized the ants-republican erusade of the alleged apostles of the monarchy. The preacher spoke in terms of scathing scorn of these malcontents, whose every war cry seemed to have a financial ring and whose faith was bound up with business interests. Lastly: In their recent declaration, which ha- served as a preface to the papal letter, five cardinals assumed a constitutional attiude, which shough perhaps less sturdy than that of Cardinal Lavignere, was sufficiently significant.

The question there seems virtually settled. The French Catholics are no longer identified with the monarchial opposition. No blow that has been dealt to the royalists, not even the downfall of Boulaugism, has been so terrible. Without the Catholics, the compte de Paris will be a chief without an army. He will still have a few officers, but he will have no troops. He will have candidatee, but he will have no constituents. All this will be shown at the next elections, unless the advent of a new pope should meanwhile ogcasion a fresh change of papal policy. There will still be an opposition in the next Chamber of Deputies, but it will to constitutional, not irreconcilable, and it will be far less religious than conservative, which will at least allow the parliamentary system to be tested more thoroughly and more sincerely than has so far been possible since the

COSTLY CURIOSITY.

Princess d'Arenburg Fires the Palace While Watching Her Husband.

[Copyrighted 1892 by James Gordon Branett.] BRUSSELS, Jan. 23.- [New York Herald Cable-Special to THE BEE. |-The finest old palace in Brussels, that of Prince d'Arenberg, caught fire this morning at 2 o'clock. Prince do Croy d'Arenberg had remained late at his club. The princess, who was sleeping in the left wing of the palace, lit a iamp to see the hour at which her husband came home. The lamp upset, setting fire to a curtain, and soon the entire left wing was in flames. The princess assisted by her husband, had to escape in her night dress and seek refuge in a neighboring house. The servants, sleep ing in the upperspart of the palace had to lower themselves from the windows by ropes. One fell and broke both legs. The firemenstrove to save the building, but the whole west wing was totally dustroyed, togother with the magnificant family pictures, some painted by Rubens and Van Dyke.

One fireman was killed and two seriously injured. The fire was not subdued until 7 o'clock.

The center of the palace and right wing remain, but the loss of the family portraits and historic furniture is irreparable. All the iewels of the princess were malted in the fire, During the day immense crowds of sight seers viewed the ruins of the palace. The feeling is that the loss is a nations affair, as some of the most famous and unique historical relics existing in Belgum have perished. These have been accumulated during centuries by the d'Aranberg-Egmont families. The palace itself was a historic building. It was the residence of the French kiar, Louis XV, when he invaded Belgium in 1744, and one of the pavilions destroyed had been kept exactly as it was in lats, whon its then occupant. Count d'Ermont, whose tragical story has been dramatized by Goethe, left it to go to the scaffold.
