Investigating the Preachers. The Council Bluffs presbytery, which in cludes seventeen counties in the southwestern part of the state, has just completed a short session for the purpose of looking into the actions of a couple of clergymen of the Presbyterian denomination who are charged with unministerial behavior. One Walker, who formerly resided here and is well known in this vicinity, was one of the parties whose case came up for an investigation. He moved to Washington territory a number of years ago, but his name was never stricken from the rolls of the presbytery. After he had been in Washington for a time he and his brother were indicted for house breaking and his brother was convicted, while he himself was acquitted on accout of a technicality. The profamity have been preferred against him and he will be required to make a defense or else be expelled from the church. Another case is that of Rev. B. W. Coe, who lives at Newmarket, Ia. He is charged with serious fractures of the ten commandments. He is said to have left the Presby terian denomination and to be preaching for the Baptists. Formal charges will be pre-ferred against him, and his trial and that of Walker will come off at an adjourned ing to be held at Shenandoah, March 7.

Candidates for Positions Under Colonel Steadman Not So Plentiful.

THEIR FEES WILL BE LARGELY REDUCED

Duties of the Commissioner Will Be At tended to by the Chief, Hence This Source of Revenue to Assistants Will Be Diverted,

Colonel J. J. Steadman has returned from Keckuk, where he went to attend h's first term of United States court in his official capacity as cierk. He was seen by a number of applicants for the position of deputy and asked to throw some light on the question of who would be the lucky man, but to each one he was decidedly noncommittal, stating that he did not wish to anticipate Judge Woolson in making public the appointment. He admitted, however, that the matter had been practically settled.

There is one thing that has been decided during the last week that will make the office of deputy at this point considerably less remunerative than the applicants had hoped it would be. In the past the clerk has also been the commissioner, and by far the greater part of his fees was received from the commissionership, the clerkship averaging from $600 to $800 per annum. Judge Woolson has decided to make a change, Colonel Steadman being appointed the commissioner and of course receiving all the missioner and of course receiving all the fees. The gentlemen who have been strain-ing every nerve to get the appointment of deputy have come to the conclusion since the announcement of the change was made, that they did not want the office as badly as they had supposed, and one or two of them have even dropped out of the race and recon-sidered their applications. The change is made in accordance with a determination on the part of Judge Woolson to cut off a number of commissioners in various parts of the be revoked all along the line.

The Bargains Will Last. For the benefit of the many, ladies specially, who have been unable to get into Evans' shoe store for the past two days on account of the crowd, the proprictor wishes to announce that there is no danger of the bargains running out, even with daily sales that more than triple the best days in the history of the shoe business of Council Bluffs. Additition salesmen have been procured and nereafter there will be less confusion and delay in waiting upon customers. It is scarcely necessary to remind the people that all the goods offered at the great cut prices are very best makes, and that there is not a shoe in the house that was damaged a cent's worth by fire or smoke. Parties living within 100 miles of Council Bluffs will find it to their advantage to lay in a stock of foot wear for a year, for it is seldom that such an opportunity is offered to buy such goods at such prices.

Would Arrest the Detective. A rather peculiar scene took place at the police court yesterday morning at the trial of Burke and Hall, the two men who were supposed to have stolen some watches and pawned them in Omaha. Officer O'connell of the detective force had been working on the case and had managed to secure a few innocent bits of information, among other tnings that the stuff had been pawned at considerably less than its real value. He had also gotten hold of the pawn tickets, but he had been unable to find the slightest evi-dence to show that the goads had been stolen, although the general appearance of the two men indicated that they were not first-class citizens.

The detective told his story and Judge McGee at once ordered the prisoners dis-enarged, refusing to commit them even for vagrancy. He also administered a lecture to the detective on matters connected with his profession. This gave an idea to John Lindt, the attorney for the prisoners, and he pro-ceeded to run in a bold bluff on the detective, asking him what right he had to have the pawn ticket in his pocket when it belonged to his clients. He demanded that the bit of pasteboard be delivered up instanter. "But I left it in Omaha," said the detec-

"Well," was the attorney's reply, "we'll see about that. Here, Hall, sign this," and the attorney hustily drew up an information charging O'Connell with lurceny and Hall signed it.

The residence of Charles Baughn, on South First street, was entered by a thief vesterday afternoon. Mrs. Baughn left the house for a few minutes and went to call on a neighbor. When she returned she met a man just coming out of the front door, who asked her if a certain man roomed there. She told him no and he left the house. When she went up stairs she found that a $5 gold she had said on a mantel minutes before she went out had been stolen, bureau drawers had been ransacked and the ole up stairs had been turned topsy turvy. Whether anything besides the money has been taken could not be learned last evening. Mrs. Baugho did not get a very good look at the man, and it is not likely that she could dentify him if he should be caught.

FROM STAGE TO PULPIT. George Hanlon Renounces the Foot Lights

for the Cloth. The St. Louis Republic in a recent issue says: The ministry has furnished several shining lights to the dramatic profession, but there are very few instances on record where the latter has contributed anything to the work of the religious field. Such a case, and a prominent one, too, is now found in the retirement of George Hanlon of the famous Hanlon prothers. The retirement was made definite by communications between William Hanton, by communications between william Hanlon, who is now here with the "Superba" company, and George himself, who is in Philadelphia, preparing to engage, it is said, in evangelistic work in a special faith. Whether or not Mr. Hanlon is to go into the evangelistic field cannot be learned definitely but that it is true is not doubted by nitely, but that it is true is not doubted by those conversant with the situation, but who are not in a position to speak freely on the subject. Mr. William Hanlon, when seen at the Hagan, consented to give a statement of facts as to his brother's retirement, but as he did not know anything absolute as to his brother's intentions for the future, he could not venture any opinions.

"Suffice it," he said, "to know that my prother George is acting as he thinks for the best, and between us there is the warmest of brotherly feeling. I have seen paragraphs in several religious and dramatic papers of prominence to the effect that at the end of this season I was to retire from the theatrical profession on account of my extreme religious profession on account of my extreme religious views. It was also stated that I was the oldest of the Hanlon brothers. Now that George has retired there is no further reason for keeping the facts from the public. In fact, they should become generally known, and so far as I am personally concerned I desire to have them fully understood. George has been gradually taking an increasing interest. been gradually taking an increasing interest in religious matters for several years. This intimately connected with him in either business or social affairs. This has been to such an extent that for the past two or three years he has practically relinquished all active interest in our theatrical prises. In fact, I may say this was so the case that the burden of inventing and producing our latest pantomime, 'Superba,' fell of a necessity upon my shoulders, the attention of my brother Edward being entirely occupied with the affairs of 'Fantasma,' In retiring from the theatrical profession, which he has been associated with us for years, George takes with him our love and warmest affection. The bonds of brotherly affection which have for years held the Han-hood are, if anything, strengthened by my brother's action.' Mr. Hanlon was plied with several other questions, but he would not consent to discuss the affair any further. It was learned from local sources, however, that George Hanlon's religious inclinations have been very strong for soveral years and that last year he not only declined to attend a Sunday performance, but refused to accept any share of the receipts of such per-formances, directing that his proportion should be set aside to devote to special charities. The sums so set aside amounted to considerable in the aggregate, and it is said that he will devote them in bulk to some special institution. The case is the strangest one on record. The Hanlons' productions have alwaps been on the highest plane of morality, and the only explanation is that George Hanton desires to devote his remaining years, with the fortune he has harvested, to religious work without having his time divided by husiness cares. He is abundantly

HAY AND FEED DEALERS. Some Differences Between Wholesale an

Retail Dealers on Minor Points. There was quite an interesting meeting of the Hay and Feed exchange Tuesday evening in the Board of Trade rooms.

Fred G. Shinrock, manager of the Glencoe mills, occupied the chair. The principal object of the association is to establish a system of mutual protection among the hay and feed dealers, their shippers and customers. It seems that there is considerable dissatisfaction at present on all sides on account of the irregularities in prices at which goods are sold alike to dealer and consumer.

The session last night was mostly de-voted to a discussion of the best plan to adopt to protect prices and devise a system of blacklisting the supposed dead beats. Several members of the exchange presented grievances on the line of business repre-sented and which comes under the provisions of section 9 of the by-laws. The sec tion referred to reads as follows:

Members of the exchange are allowed to sell hay and feed to consumers on track in ear lots only and are not allowed to buy or sell to anyone selling less than car lots to consumers on track. Members of this exchange shall not sell to consumers from their stores at the same price they do to dealers, and they shall make the following difference on the following difference to the following difference on the following difference to the following difference on the following difference on the following difference to the following difference on the following difference on the following difference on the following amounts shall be considered retail: Ten bushels of grain, 1,000 pounds of bran and chop feed, 2,0,0 pounds of hay. Further, the members of this exchange may sell hay to dealers on the track from 8 a. n. to 12 m., and salesmen are prohibited from selling on track at any other time. Members of the exchange are allowed to set

It appears that this provision does not meet with favor at the hands of the jobber because it provides that he shall not sell direct to the consumer except in certain quantities and at prices in advance of that charged to retail dealers. The jobbers claim that this would not be objectionable if the retailers were willing and would deal only with the jobber. As it is the jobber claims that he is offering all and receiving none of the protec-On the other hand the retail merchant claims the right to buy where he can get the best bargains, while the wholesaler wants the middleman superseded. The purpose of the association is to try and induce members not to deal with trackmen who sell to the consumer at lower rates than the retail price. A motion to reduce the penalty for a violation of the rules from $25 to $10 was lost.
