ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The second Apollo club concert will be given tomorrow evening at Boyd's theater A program of unusual merit has been ar! ranged and the club has made an effort to excel all previous efforts. Prof. Ludwig has come all the way from Europe to take part in the entertainment and he will have be assistance of many of the best singers in Omaha. The soloists will be supported by a strong chorus and a well trained orchestra. The Apollos are doing more for the musical interests of Omaha than any other organization in the history of the city, and they de-serve the hearty support of all good citizens. A few subscribers for tickets are for various reasons unable to use them. These tickets have been left at the box office of the theater where they may be secured by persons desiring to attend the concert.

An engagement of "The Parisian Gaiety Girls" burlesque company will commence at the Grand Saturday with a matinee.

The pantomimic burlesque, "Spider and will be produced at Boyd's New the ater on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next. and the This season the piece is a great success, and between thirty and forty professional people will be employed in the production. M. B. Leavitt, the proprietor of the "Spider and lord with a career before him. He sat down Fly," has spared no expense in making the e one of the best spectacular attractions on the road.

Sara Bernhardt plays "La Tosca," Sar-dou's great drama, at Boyd's New theater on Febryary 22.

DeWolf Hopper and his excellent organization in Goodwin and Morse's clever musical conceit, "Wang," for the past three weeks weeks attracted immense audiences at the Chicage opera house, and the big comedian and his folly crew of fun makers and singers schieved a notable success in the "World's Fair City." The Hopper-Wang engagement at the New Boyd is limited to three nights, and as this one of the greatest treats of the season there will no doubt be a succession of crowded houses. The sale will open Saturday morn ing.

> Much Public Curiosity. EARL DUDLEY'S REPLY TO THE QUEEN

> Much Interest shown by the Government in the Young Peer's Maiden Speech-How the House of Commons Commenced Its Labors.

> [Copyrighted 1892 by James Gordan Bennett.] LONDON, Feb. 9.- |New York Herald Cable-Special to Tan BEE.]-The opening of parliament brought together a considerable assemblage of people today, both indoors and out. People stood outside the palace vard watching the arrival of members, but as there is always a special force of police at this spot, sceping everything clear, no inconvenience was occasioned. The House of Commons was very crowded, especially on the Giadstonian side. This was caused by the desire of the radicals to give the new members for Rossendale and South Moulton a hearty greating, and the somewhat insignificant looking gentleman who wrested Lord Harting:on's seat from the unionist party was received with a volley which seemed to make his hair stand on end, unless perhaps it is always in that position.

Anxious to Hear a Response. This afternoon the center of interest was the House of Lords, for everybody was curious to know how the young earl of Dudley would acquit himself of the ticklish task of proposing an address in answer to the queen's speech. The chamber was very crowded on the government side, but not on the other side. The galleries were filled with pecresses, all in deep mourning. Among them, you may be sure, was Lady Dudley and her son's wife. If a man's wife or mother present when he is to make a speech she is bound to have a worse time than the man himself, but there was no necessity for slarm. Lord Dudley is a manly looking fellow. He spoke well and in a loud and clear voice, not down in his boots as the House of Lords manner is. Everybody could hear him distinctly, and taken altogether I should say that I have never heard a better maider speech. What he had to say was put in terse and vigorous English, committed to memory no doubt, but it came out in a natural and flowing manner. Once, however, the speaker stopped, hest-

tated, and was silent while you might have counted ten. To his molher, I dare say, that seemed hours. We spectators who felt no special interest in the matter were rather afraid he had broken down, but there was a slight ripple of a cheer voungster took courage, the on gallantly to the end. Decidedly a noble amid quite a burst of cheers for the starchy and cold blooded assembly in which he spoke.

Salisbury's Speech Followed.

There came one of our House of Commons men who has recently succeeded his father-Lord Lammgton. He also did well. I step over Lord Kimberly, dull and wooden person. The prime minister followed, and it never pays to miss anything he says. His manner is somewhat ponderous, his voice somewhat hard and unsympathetic and occasionally shows a ten-dency to sit on a table. This last, however, he manages to keep in check. Lord Salis bury's matter is always weighty. This atter-noon he spoke at first with unusual slowness and deliberation. By and by he warmed up and made things lively for Lord Kimperly. He explained why the government had not yet settled the Newloundland difficulty, because unpatriotic opposition prevented it: but still be hoped to succeed. Then agricultural labor was brought upon the scene, patted on the head, fold to behave himself properly and he should have some more small holdings, and so ended the prime min-ister, evidently greatly to his own relief.

So They All Went Bome.

Salisbury in Lis recent speech at Exeter about a Catholic regime in Ireland in the event of home rule being granted, did not promise we for the liberality of the coming marks of the prime minister at William declared, were as unill. The Exctor, Si founded hit orically as they were unstates-manlike in maracter. These remarks could only mean pair nowhere under English rule ought a Carbo lie majority to possess the right of a majority. Suppose, he asked, such re-marks were made in Canada or Australia?

Respondings to Sir William Verson Har-wurt, Mr. Balfour said he had distorted true: the meaning of Lord Salisbury's re-marks in his Exeter speech. The proposals of the minister's granting an extension of local government as well as an education measure to Ireland, would show that the government tind confidence in a Catholic majority. The hoped that Sir William's silence on the other topics in the queen's speech indicated that the debate on the address in reply would not be prolonged.

Sanguinary Letter Written to London by : Brigadier General.

(Copyrighted 1892 by James Gordon Bennetl.) London, Eab, 9.- [New York Herald Cable- Special to THE BEE. |-The Times today prints the following leader, dated New York, without comment:

"We see that, as usual, England is getting ready to interfere in our quarrel with Chill, and that, in the probable event of war with that country, England will supply war ships o destroy our commerce. The English people do not understand the strong feeling in this country on that subject. England will not be allowed to fight us under the Chilian flag. She will find that we will make her fight under her own flag. Notwithstanding the soft talk that has been indulged in late years, you will find that a war with England will be very popular with us, and we are now strong enough and rich enough to wage it. The English people would better to wage it. understand this, for it would not conduce to peaceful relations between the two countries to have English built vessels, armed with English cannon, fighting us. I do not think we would arbitrate this a second time, and the result of a war between England and the United States would eventuate in the reduc-tion of England to a fourth-class power.

Some of the evening papers take it up and poke fun at it. One asks: "Is it not a ques-tion that had better be brought before Parliament at once to devise some means when by to pacify the late brigadier general of volunteers whom we never heard of." FREE COINAGE.

Arguments in Its Favor Before the Committee-News from the Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.-At the hear ing before the house committee on coinage weights and measures today Leonard R Hone, representing the legislative committee of the National grange, said the American farmer was asking that silver be restored to the position it occupied prior to 1873. The increased volume of money, he said, meant enhanced prices. He read resolutions of the National grange in favor of free coinage, and said when the American farmer went with this wheat into the Liverpool market he obtained possibly $1.10 a bushel for it, while the Indian and Russian farmer realized $1.30 in silver. The American farmer would be very willing to take the United States silver coin in Liverpool, because it was worth as much as gold, but if he took silver for his wheat he was not given American coin, but builion, which he would have to sell here at the bullion price. When the Indian farmer took his sliver home he could get it turned into coin which would buy there as much as any other form of money ouy Hone said the free coinage of silver would go a great way toward bringing it to a parity with gold. Even if all that was said against free coinage of silver was true the farmer would not lose anything, because there was no tune when the farmer fared so well as in 865 when there was a depreciated currency

CEDAR RAPIDS' SENSATION Queer Story of Two Women Who Think They Are Heiresses. PURSUED BY AN UNKNOWN ENEMY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Feb. 9.- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The Misses Augusta and Freda Kealson, a couple of middleaged Swedish women, who have lived here about oight years, teil a very sensational story. They are dressmakers and have always borne an excellent reputation for veracity. Miss Augusta, the eider, claims to be an heiress to a large sum of money, left her by a friend whose name she refuses to disclose. She claims a will is in existence bequeathing to her a largo sum of money and that an immense amount had been stolen from hor. She said that $500 sent to her from Washington, D. C., had been stolen from the mails.

Miss Kealson seems to think that the government has something to do with the case, and that the matter is in litigation in the federal courts. She exhibits a letter from E. Halford, President Harrison's private secretary, in which he says: "The president cannot make an engagement to see you, as he knows nothing about the estate to which you claim to be heiress.'

They claim that certain people have leagued themselves together for the purpose of robbing her of her money, and that repeated at placing poison in their milk, fruit, groceries and wine, and that not less than eight or ten such attempts have been made, and that upon several occasions they have been serously ill as a result of partaking of things

MENACE TO BOARDS OF TRADE

Law-Prominent Members of the Chicago Board of Trade Discuss Its Probable Workings.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 9 .-- [Special Telegram to Tue Bee, |- Considerable uncasiness was caused among the members of the Board of Trade during the latter part of today's session by the report that President Hamil, who had returned from the east Monday afternoon, had stated that the acti-option bill was certain to pass the house. This statement by the president was made at a special meeting of the board of directors Monday night, and in making it Mr. Hamill was simply echoing the opinion of the majority of people in Washington who are watching the pill. In some way the president's statement became distorted so as to appear that he had said the bill would undoubtedly become a law and the effect of such a statement in a nervous market was to materially depress prices. Trade generally considers that the passage of the bill will mean a revolution in the grain business and an unsettling of values, which, for a time at least, will range much lower. For this reason outside speculators and investors, who bought freely during the advance of last week and who were encouraged by an improvement in the general situation, became so anxious to sell out their holdings that the aggregate of the offerings broke the prices of wheat for May delivery from 91 cents to S9% cents. When it was discovered that the president's statement had been distorted there was possibly some recovery of confidence in the trade, but prices did not react.

There has been a growing helpef that the privilege trading is bad for the interests of the trade generally, so far as its reputation among the farmers is concerned, and for this reason an organized effort will probably be made to stop it altogether.

Illegal Under Illinois Laws.

Trade in puts and calls is illegal under the state law and is not recognized by the Chi-cago Board of Trade. There is no way to enforce contracts made in this business, and transactions are always subject to the risk of repudiation by the seller. At the same time an enormous business is done each day on the lower floor of the Board of Trade, buts and calls to the amount of millions of ushers being bought and sold. The trans actions are not restricted to the Chicago Board of Trade, the crowd being made up of nombers of the open board and more or less disreputable characters who hope to be able to win a few dollars by a favorable turn in

Just at the close of trading on the board a request was sent to a number of the leading houses that they discontinue executing orders for puts and calls, and in the majorityof cases the request met with prompt pliance, but there were enough of siders not subject to the rules of the Board of" Trade to continue the trading in considerable

Our Lord Hartington, who spoke from the liberal side, and was cheored when he rose, said a few well-chosen words about the grief which has recently overtaken the royal family

Then the lord chancellor picked up his skirts, rose from his uncomfortable porch on the woolsack and read a resolution. It was car ried, and all the noble lords and ladies went comfortably home, soon after 6 o'clock, but we, at our end of the building, kept it up much later and did not get through with so much of the business after a'l. MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

In the Lords.

Loxpon, Feb. 9.-A large number of ladies was present at the House of Lords. They were all attired in mourning out of respect to the late duke of Clarence, and Avonuale. When the House of Lords had been formativ declared to be in session, Lord Salis bury ordered that the House of Commons be summoned to listen to the reading of the None of the opposition leaders was speech. present. After the speech had been read the House of Lords and the House of Comons adjourned until 4 o'clock. When the House of Lords had reassembled at that hour the earl of Kimberly (liberal).

secretary of state for expressed surprise that formerly the colonies. queen's speech made no reference to the dispute between Great Britain and France in regard to the claims of the latter ountry in Newfoundland. Parliament he declared, ought to obtain an explicit early statement as to the position of the Lord Salisbury said that the absence of special reference in the queen's speech to the order and prosperity pre-vailing in Ireland showed the confidence the government in the country's itness for one Irish local government bill proposed implied that conditions prevailed in Ireland which justi-the government in giving that that W'48 fied the government in giving that country extended power of local control. With regard to Egypt, Lord Salisbury said that after the sacrifices Great Britain had made in connection with that country, he be lieved that England would never surrender its supremacy to another power. Replying to the criticisms of the earl of Kimberly regarding the absence of reference to Newfoundland in the queen's speech Lord Salisbury said that the present settlement of the question was not due to the action of the government, but the people of Newfoundland themselves. The address in reply to the speech from the throne, which has been moved by the Eari of Dudley, was then passed to the House of Lords.

In the House of Commons.

The chief interest after the assembling of Parliament was centered in the House of Commons, whe the popular members as they entered and took their seats were welcomed with hearty cheers. Mr. George Lambert, (Gladstonian), who, in the south Milton division of Dovonshire, turned a liberal unionist majority of 1,600 into a minority of 1,200 received a most hearty welcome from the opposition benches. Right Hon. Arthur J. Baifour, successor to the late Hon. William Henry Smith as goveroment leader in the house, received a onged ovation from his supporters. L. Jackson, the newly appointed chief secretary for Ireland, was loudly cheered as he took his seat. Mr. John Henry Madden, the Gladstonian, who was elected to succeed Lord Harrington (liberal-unionist), was cheered by the opposition when he entered the house Mr. Balfour gave notice that he would inroduce the Irish local government bill on Thursday next. In the House of Commous Mr. Hodge noved the adoption of the address in reply to he queen's speech. Sir William Harcourt said it was his first duty to express they sympathy of the oppoduity to express they sympathy of the oppo-sition for the royal family in the loss sus-tained in the death of the duke of Clarence and Avondale. With regard to the Irish local government bill. Sir William said it was a matter he wished carried out. If a genuine measure

Took an Overdose.

Frank Diedrich, who resides at Fortieth and Grant streets, was found in an unconscious condition at Fiftcenth and Farnam Tuesday night, and the wagon was called to remove him to the station. That vehicle was not on hand, having been called to Sheely station, and did not arrive for nearly

In the meantime, Disdrich was removed to the corridor of the Barker block and a physi-cian called to attend him. It was found that he was suffering from an overdose of opium, of which he is an habitual consumer. Restoratives were administered and he regained consciousness, and was later taken

The Wabash and Rock Island roads are stealing a march on the Quincy by diverting stock and grain from the Quincy. A few days ago a car of hogs was shipped from here to Chicago over the Wabash to Council Biuffs and transferred to the Rock Island, landing them n Chicago five hours ahead of a car of cattle hipped over the Quincy, leaving here at the same time.

"Stormy" Jordan's Misfortunes.

KEOKUK, Ia., Feb. 9.-At the January term of the federal court "Stormy" Jordan of Ottumwa made application for a writ of habeas corpus. He is in jail under seven indictments aggregating a $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment in the county jail for infractions of the prohibitory law. He claims exemption under the original package decision and having paid internal revenue tax. Judge Woodson today decided that the the revenue tax does not conflict with state law; that the lower courts had full jurisdiction, and the federal court is not a court of appeal, out that the state supreme court is the proper source of remedy for the alleged errors in the fludings of the lower court and denies the writ Aggressive County Auditors.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 9.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- The annual convention of county auditors opened at 11 o'clock this morning. The attendance was iarge and many more are expected. Many important measures will come up for discussion. Among others, the Finn bill, introduced by that senator in the legislature and restricting the auditors and treasurers to two terms of office. The auditors think the bill should not single them out, but include all county officers or none at all. They will sit down on the measure strong and hard. The conven tion will continue over tomorrow.

Iowa County Supervisors.

DES MOINES, IL, Feb. 9 .- (Special Tele gram to THE BEE. |-The state organization of county supervisors met at 10 o'clock this morning. The main topics discussed were "Means to Insure The Moro Equal Assossments of Property for Taxation Purposes," and "Means to Limit Several bills will be prepared and presented to the legislature tomorrow.

Malvern Citizen Suicides.

MALVERN, Ia., Feb. 9 .- | Special Telegram THE BEE.]-A telegram was received today by B. F. Barnett from St. Louis stating that his son Charles had committed suicide by taking poison. No reason for the act was given, but it is believed that it was on account of domestic difficulties, as he and his wife had separated several times, but have been living together at St. Louis since leaving here last summer. The parents of the young man are old and highly respected citizens of Maivern.

lent shock. He found the vessel had struck a reef of rocks near an island. He found the vessel had struck a reef of rocks near an island. A rock appeared to have torn the bottom of the vesel before the foremast. Her baw was slightly elevated. Water htly elevated. Water was rushing and flooding the stern and the Embirocos was settling down. The can tain was on the bridge trying to direct opera tions. There was a general scramble for the boats. Halzan and two companions entered the boat despite the efforts of the Greeks to exclude them. Balzan admits that there was a call for knives, but only to be used to cut the boat away. When they left in the lifeboat the captain and officers were trying to launch the other boat. Ther was room for lifty men in the lifeboat, but it coatained only fifteen. When they had pulled a little distance those left on the vessel were heard shrieking and imploring to be saved. The Maltese started to back water, but the Greeks overpowered and threatened to kill him him ា less he obeyed orders. He did not see the vessel founder, but on looking ten minutes later he could not discern anything. According to another story the Greeks de-clined to pick up men who were swimming behind the lifeboat, and felled with an iron bar on man who had clutched the poat. Mark Twain

'I believe it will come near closing all the Boards of Trade in the country. How sort ous this matter is may be shown by the fact that the board of directors had laid before them a petition this afternoon shreed by all the bankers of this city, ing $50,000,000. I shall forward that petition to congress at once.

Have Let Privileges Alone.

Mr. Baldwin, of the firm of Baldwin & Parnum, said : "We, in company with other firms decided today to lot privileges alone. We are doing this on our own authority and without any notice from the Board of Trade. We cook the step because we consider 1 Lhe best thing to do in view of the possible passare of the anti-option hill "

John Cudahy, said : "From the fact that Mr. Hamil returned from Washington today and spoke strongly and confidently to the effect that the auti-option bill would pass men long on wheat with 'strong pulls' and firm believers in the long side of wheat sold out knowing that if the anti-option bill passes we will have a break of from 15 per cent to 20 per cent on wheat. This has given rise to a feeling of uncertainty on the market and it seems likely to market continue for some time. As to puts and calls, the best houses on the floor refuse to trade in them in the present state of the narket No one knows what may happe and firms do not want to place puts and calls, and it has been dead for reasons too multiplied for me to state. However, a n tional law would be quite another thing. believe it would be effective." Frank Logan said: "Schwartz, Dupee & McCormica, Konnett & Hopkins, Baid win & Farnum and our firm decided today not to deal in privileges any more. The board does not recognize priv-

leges. In time past the board has tried to do away with the business, but the rules passed have become a dead letter. The forcement of the rule would demand the dis ciplining of many members.
