HE WAS A BRAVE FELLOW.

Sketch of Mate Riggan, Who Lost His Life in the Chilean Riot.

Charles W. Riggan was one of the American sailors who was brutally murdered in the streets of Valparaiso.

His home was in Philadelphia, where he was well and favorably known as a steady, ambitious young fellow.

He worked hard to advance himself as a man-of-war's man.

His brother, John L. Riggan, is still living in Philadelphia and has made public the following facts concerning his brother, Captain W. S. Schley wrote: "It is with feelings of the greatest sorrow that I have to communicate to you the death of your brother, Boatman's Mate Charles W. Riggan, who while on his liberty at this place, his tragic death at the hands of a mob enlisted against all Americans has left a wound in the hearts of his shipmates that may not soon heal.

The time will soon come when it will be avenged by all who remember his worth and his genial good manners.

I feel more than ordinary sorrow as the commanding officer in being the messenger of such sad intelligence to you, but I can assure you that his name and his worth will not be forgotten as long as honor her records keep."

AN INDIA RUBBER NAVY.

The Ex-Auditor of Indiana Thinks Iron Must Give Way to Rubber.

As the man was going out of the big hotel he whispered in sepulchral tones: "Colonel Rice is not right in his upper story—the clean dirt."

In a few minutes I saw the full-moon, jaunty face of Colonel James H. Rice, ex-auditor of Indiana, coming from the elevator, says a writer in the New York Times. He looked perfectly sane, and I asked him who his friend was that had just departed.

"That man," said the colonel, "is a promoter and has not given me a minute's rest since I arrived in the city. I've just let him in on the ground floor of an idea of mine and have shown him illustrations of it. I offered to have him elected vice president of a company that is not formed. If my idea is put into execution it will revolutionize naval warfare, and an ironclad will be as harmless as a barge carrying a load of Sunday school excursionists."

The colonel invited me to his room, where I saw a number of illustrations in the rough of queer-looking ships. I asked him to explain them. His eyes beamed with pleasure as he proceeded to elucidate his ideas.

"The cuts," he said, "represent war vessels armored with tough India rubber. Each vessel is protected with rubber seven feet in thickness and with enough give or elasticity to send the largest ball flying against its bow or back into the water. I admit that the common rubber is not of sufficient toughness to resist the impact of the ordinary cannon ball, but mind you, the rubber I intend to use is not common. Every man who has an innovative and original idea established methods to the past is the beginning considered a crank. But I do mind any little epithet of that kind."

"What is the tall spire in the vessel?" "That," said the scientific colonel, "is the lookout. It is a tower that can be telescoped in a second to the surface of the vessel's deck, and erected in the same space of time. It is 800 feet high. There is only one smokestack and it can be drawn in or down in a minute. Cannon? Ah! that is a secret, but I shall tell you because you are not a promoter. In the rear of the vessel is a turret tower with four destructive guns. You don't see it, eh? Well, neither do I, but, if the enemy appeared by manipulating the chimney there would rise from the hull of the vessel a turret, protected by India rubber and ready to sink a fleet of iron clads. Everything on the deck of my india rubber vessel can be dropped below in a few moments."

"Have you ever studied that branch of mathematics which treats of trajectory?" "The colonel had, and added: "My boy, a ball dropped on the deck of one of my vessels would bound a mile high. There is absolutely no powder or force strong enough to drive a ball into the upper."

"One more question, colonel. How long have had this peculiar elastic idea?" "It came to me as an inspiration five years ago. I was in Chicago and a weazened-faced man with a voice that sounded like the noise made by tearing calico made life miserable to me. He had a scheme, and for a week he became my shadow, trying to get me to go into it. I worked out the india rubber vessel and for three hours I earnestly explained to him the fortune in it if he would accept the vice presidency. From that time he has never said 'adieu' to me again. I have shown it to dozens of promoters, and have talked so much about it that I really think some kind of rubber can be made to resist and throw back cannon balls."

"I've mentioned your idea to General Tracy, secretary of the navy."

"I am a democrat," said the colonel proudly. "You wait until a democratic president is elected."

NORTHWESTERN INDIANS.

Disease Sweeping Them Like Wild-Fire from the Country.

M. M. Cowley, president of the Traders' National bank, Spokane, Wash., arrived here yesterday and is at the Occidental, says the San Francisco Examiner. Mr. Cowley has been for many years a pioneer of the northwest. In 1857 he was one of the first to cross the place now known as Cowley's bridge on the Spokane river, and then bought and handled furs obtained by the Callispe, Spokane, Coeur d'Alene and Columbia River Indians. He remained there and on the Kootenai river, where he was also engaged in buying furs, till three years ago, when he went into banking. He is one of the best informed men on all matters pertaining to the Indians in the northwest.

"They are all dying off rapidly," said Mr. Cowley yesterday. "In a very short time we shall have no Indians. Take the Coeur d'Alenes, for instance. I was among them for a long time. They have a magnificent reservation and fine farms and good houses, but the houses are killing them. They can't stand roofs. Last week they got the money for a portion of this reservation not used by them. It amounted to $1,100 apiece. There are only about 1,200 of them, and the children and old ones, too, are dying all the time. Chief Gary, one of the warriors of Alpoowa, who fought against Colonel Stepien in that famous war, died just before I left. They are all going fast."

"In 1862, when I was located on the Snake river, there were many Indian bands of the Coeur d'Alene, Callispe, Spokane and Columbia River Indian about there. They were engaged steadily in hunting and trapping all kinds of wild animals. I bought black and silver gray fox skins of them at $1.50 and $2 apiece, 500 martens a year at $10 each, a grizzly, black bear, beaver and other kinds of skins without number. Then the whites had no more Indians, and they were robust and healthy."

"It is a mistake to try and civilize them. Civilization kills, and the government, when it does it, puts itself in the position of murdering them. They must be wild or they are nothing. They cannot exist at all. If we keep on civilizing them we shall have no Indians. Apparently this is something the government will not understand."

"Another thing the government has done that neither meets the approbation of the Indians generally, nor the whites of the northwest, and that is the awarding of $1,000 a year to old Chief Moses, in addition to former concessions, and similar sums to different chiefs."

Old Moses has, with his own hand, killed several white men in the past. He shot them down barbarously. Then old Chief Joseph of the Nez Perces has also been given a good fat annual sum. Such injustices as these create indignation among the Indians. Several of them have acquired a contemptible character who was decent and respectable could get anything of the government. He had to be a murderer. Then he was a hero and could get whatever he wanted."

Cowley was one of those spoken of by Washington Irving and others as belonging to the class known as independent traders among the Indians. He has had, during more than twenty-five years that he was engaged in acquiring a competency of fortune, and is now content to settle down in a city.
