

GRAND JURY'S WORK ENDED

Last Batch of Presentments Handed in and Its Final Report Made.

SEVERAL WORDS OF REBUKE AND CENSURE

Conduct of Public Officials Reviewed in Case Files—Reprobation Administered Unsparingly—Recommendations and Suggestions.

A rather straggling delegation of some sixteen souls strolled slowly along the upper corridor of the court house about a clock yesterday afternoon, and finally sauntered regretfully into court room No. 1 and took seats in and about the jury box.

It was the grand jury, and notwithstanding the fact that it had been at work investigating deeds of crime and censured for twenty-four days the members seemed to feel sorry that their labors were ended, for they were about to submit a grand report.

They didn't take very long, for when Judge Davis looked over his glasses and inquired: "Mr. Foreman, have you any report to make to the court?" Judge Gustave Anderson climbed briskly to his feet and said: "Your honor, we are glad to say that our labors have come to an end. We have several presentments to make, and he handed up a little book of nearly forty documents, the amount which was a calmly quiescent record.

The judge leaned back in his chair, and for several minutes forgot the existence of the grand jury, while he perused the lengthy document.

After slowly folding it, he said: "Gentlemen of the grand jury, while I am pleased to be informed that your labors have come to an end, I cannot help but feel that you have done your duty in a most commendable manner, and to the public I hope that your work will have an influence for good in all public departments. As I know of nothing more demanding your attention, I will discharge you from further service."

That was all and the sixteen jurors stretched themselves and left the room. They were out in a twinkling, and the body that began its investigations over a month ago had examined a small army of witnesses, returned fifty-three indictments, expressed commendations in a large number of cases, and quit.

Worked Long and Earnestly. The written report covered the work of the grand jury and such recommendations as it thought advisable to make. It stated that the grand jury had been diligent, but that the session had been delayed by the numerous cases of matters that had come to their attention. A number of anonymous communications were received, but the grand jury did not feel justified in expending its attention on cases of charges of crime. The report read:

"Persons who lack the courage to substantiate their charges, but who are complaining if the results of our work are different from what may have been wished. We have so conducted our business as to receive no complaints, and as an instrument to gratify private or petty revenge, but have inquired into all matters that have come to our attention in shape of written or oral communications. Our work has been greatly hampered by the evasiveness and reticence of the witnesses who have appeared before us, and by the numerous tenders back to the time when the statute of limitations would begin to run have had our attention, but when traced down, they were found to rest on no foundation, and less many of these rumors are founded upon more or less truth, but the manner in which the witnesses have testified prevents us from conducting our business in a proper manner, and we should be punished by indictment. The practice has been (especially in cases involving the public interest) to allow persons of little prominence to tell the jury as little as possible, although we have now and then had witnesses who were straightforward and honest in their testimony."

Chapter on Official Corruption. Under the heading "Municipal Affairs in General," the report says: "During our investigation we have uncovered many abuses in city affairs which cannot be corrected by the ordinary means of sufficient testimony. The municipal affairs of Omaha during the past few years are honeycombed with irregularities that have been costly to the public. It is our belief that the factions in the city council have created largely by the contractors and contractors. In the past few years the councilmen and other public officials have yielded the power entirely to them with unblinking servility. Voracity and unprincipledness have been the order of the day, and the city has been a prey to the most flagrant and unscrupulous methods of graft and corruption. We commend this matter to the proper authorities."

County Commissioners Censured. Then came the Thirtieth street grade, and was handled over the case as follows: "The grand jury have leave to report to the court that it has investigated the matter of the grading of South Thirtieth street, and in its opinion it is a matter in which it was not a matter in which an indictment should be returned, but that the grading of said street was a measure not a necessity to the general public, but one dictated solely in the interest of the contractors, and that the members of the Board of County Commissioners who voted for the awarding of the contract said grading were guilty of official corruption."

Concluding Remarks. As to future grand juries, the report said: "We find that many crimes have been committed that are covered by the statute of limitations, and we recommend that a grand jury be impaneled hereafter at least once a year."

It then gamblers and gambling received a rebuke as follows: "We recommend that the law be so amended as to confer exclusive jurisdiction on the police court to impose fines and penalties for gambling, including gambling devices, gaming rooms, etc."

The report concluded with the following advice to the grand jury: "The grand jury would further recommend that the county commissioners be requested to follow the statute strictly governing the payment of claims and salaries, as the present system of allowing the same is liable to error and contrary to law."

To this interesting document were appended the statements of Foreman Anderson and Secretary Reed.

Keen Caught in the Trap. There were eight indictments in the batch handed in, and the grand jury also recommended that the law be so amended as to confer exclusive jurisdiction on the police court to impose fines and penalties for gambling, including gambling devices, gaming rooms, etc."

The report concluded with the following advice to the grand jury: "The grand jury would further recommend that the county commissioners be requested to follow the statute strictly governing the payment of claims and salaries, as the present system of allowing the same is liable to error and contrary to law."

Plattsmouth Not Enthusiastic. PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., March 10.—[Special to The Bee.]—The committee on the matter of raising funds for the organization of a base ball club in this city, have been out hunting for two days, but have met with such poor success that they have about decided to let the matter drop. The committee looks as if this city will do without any club for the coming season. Such players as have been secured are Miller and Maupin, two of the best players in the state.

SENATOR PADDOCK'S BILL

His Pure Food Bill Finally Passed Without Change by the Senate.

HIS PERSISTENCY WAS SUCCESSFUL

Cheats in Food Products to Be Done Away With and Only Wholesome Articles Offered—Senator Paddock Provides His Honor.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE, 318 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9.

After two years' hard and persistent labor in committee and on the floor, Senator Paddock's pure food bill, the satisfaction of seeing his pure food bill pass the senate and receiving the congratulations of friends and opponents upon his persistency and faithful labor.

The last determined struggle over the bill took place yesterday afternoon, when the senator successfully resisted objectionable amendments by a vote of 31 to 19. The close of the contest today was less stirring.

The bill goes over to the house intact in every essential provision as the first general adulteration law which has ever passed either branch of congress, or which has ever been considered on the floor of either house.

Senator Paddock is naturally elated. He has been in his seat fighting hard for this measure ever since the session began. Since he submitted it first on the calendar he has struggled with much persistent tact to keep it in his place. He fought the fight alone and unassisted in the debate, which lasted day after day, and against opposition which concentrated the votes from all the cotton seed oil producing States. The victory is his and it is a result which has been achieved by unremitting effort, backed by the influence of a friendly press.

Senator Paddock Pleased. Senator Paddock said this afternoon: "I am pleased that the stain is removed, and I am satisfied with the result. The bill has not been at all affected by the amendments to which I consented. I feel confident that the house committee, which is now considering the measure, will report promptly and give it prompt attention on the floor. The strong pressure brought by the agricultural interests, the appeals of the alliances and granges, the resolutions of state legislatures and, by no means least, the public press in which Nebraska papers and the Bee have heartily persisted, must share with me any credit if we finally succeed in putting this important measure upon the statute books of the country. It will mean millions in the pockets of our farmers and produce exporters, and more than money to the health of the people, who are now the chief sufferers from the cheats and swindlers who are enriching themselves by selling injurious compounds under the brands of pure articles."

Wanted Acted Public Lands. Senator Warren Wyoming said to The Bee correspondent this afternoon: "The bill introduced today codifying the arid public lands to the states and territories wherein they are situated. I have endeavored to incorporate all the restrictions that have been placed on the public lands, and perhaps more restrictions than the bill should contain. The subject of reclamation of arid lands must be presented as a matter of great necessity, and I am confident that the western people, and as an undertaking requiring a vast amount of capital. If the United States government can contribute money to construct reservoirs, reserve forests, collect the waters and enter upon the reclamation for us, it would support such a measure. The bill is an important prospect of this of the arid region desire to show our good faith by some proposition which will lead to the reclamation of this land and one in which we have a strong position that we desire the reclamation and disposal of lands to benefit settlers."

Article vi provides that if the determination of these questions shall leave the subject in such a position that the government of Great Britain is necessary to the establishment of regulations for the protection of such rights, the government of the United States may, in its discretion, determine what regulations are necessary.

Article vii recites that the parties have been unable to agree upon a reference of the question of the liability for the injuries sustained in the case of the "Pacific Ocean," as used in the treaty of 1829 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, will be deemed to be reserved to the United States after said treaty? (4) Did not all the rights of Russia in Bering sea pass unimpaired to the United States after the treaty of 1829? (5) What right of protection or property in the fur seals frequenting the islands of the Bering sea, according to such claims and as for the finding thereon, the question of liability to be the subject of further negotiation.

The agreement by the parties to appoint two commissioners, who have already completed the work, to make the investigation contemplated in article viii will not be a subject of further negotiation at that point. From this agreement it appears that the reports of these commissions are not to be made until they are submitted to the arbitrators.

Article x, xi, xii, xlii provide for payment of expenses of arbitration. The parties to the high contracting parties to consider the proceedings of the tribunal as equal, perfect and in settlement of all the questions referred.

PROHIBITION MAY SURVIVE

Iowa Legislators Cannot Positively Agree on the Subject.

HOW THE SENATE AND HOUSE STAND

While the Former Declared for High License Tuesday the Latter Resolved for Reinstatement of the Amendment Yesterday.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 9.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The house this morning passed the joint resolution for a reestablishment of the prohibitory law. Fifty-two votes were cast for and forty-six against it, the democrats all voting no, and yet the question of what is going to be done on the liquor question remains an unsolved mystery.

The senate has passed a license bill and the house followed up with a resolution measure. The latter can't pass the senate without democratic votes, and the former can't pass the house without republican votes, consequently as the matter now stands the legislature is as far from reaching a solution of this question as it was the day it convened.

There was a rumor of a scheme to dispose of this question by sending it to the legislative chambers, however, this morning, which has a semblance of plausibility about it. It is to the effect that the democrats of the senate have agreed to vote for reestablishment if the prohibitory law is passed, and the republicans of the house to vote for the license bill if the prohibitory law is passed.

The senate committee appointed to investigate the "White Chapel" scandal has reported to the senate and agreed upon a report which will be presented to the senate in the morning. The report will exonerate Senators Dodge and Finn from any connection with the scandal.

The labor committee recommended the passage of a bill providing for the payment of the wages of miners in lawful mines. The educational institutions committee reported a bill to establish a commission to locate a normal school and provide for the education of the deaf and dumb.

The bill to reimburse ex-Auditor Brown, for the salary of the auditor, was passed today. The bill passed in the district court of eight counties south of the central part of the state.

The bill to cut down the salary of the state oil inspector came up as a special order. The bill cuts down the salary of the oil inspector from $2,000 to $1,500.
