

HOW GARZA WAS SUPPRESSED

Mexicans Complain of the Manner in Which Captain Bourke Handled Them.

SUBSTANCE OF THE CHARGES FILED

His Troops Were Not Sufficiently Particular in Their Regard for Private Property According to the Statements of the Outlaw's Friends.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE. (Special Telegrams.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—The origin of the charges against Captain John G. Bourke, Third Cavalry, U. S. A., is at last disclosed. They were filed with the War department by Congressman Crain of Texas some time ago on behalf of his "grosser" constituency.

The first charge comes, naturally enough, from one Alexander Gonzalez the father-in-law of the bandit, who claims that Bourke presumed to arrest him without warrant, slapped him in the face when he dared to enter Bourke's tent at midnight and used some of the fodder on his farm.

Other Mexicans make affidavit that he used very impolite language in conducting his search for bandits which were undoubtedly attempting to corrupt, and that houses have been entered without warrant and troops stationed on private property without consent of the owners.

Congressman Crain's district is what is called in Texas "a hell." It is 500 miles long by 400 wide, and filled with tarantulas and Mexicans, cowboys, rascals and desperados, with a sprinkling of American citizens.

The Nebraska delegation received today the petition of a large number of residents of Boyd county asking that they be allowed the same right to commute homestead entries in that portion of the ceded Sioux reservation lying in Nebraska as is accorded homesteaders living in the ceded portion lying in South Dakota.

Senator Padlock said today that the apparent discrimination arose from the broadening out of the northern Nebraska boundary and that the committee on public lands had already recommended that the same be done.

A curious case of discovery of an Iowa man long supposed to be dead, was unearthed yesterday by the pension office. General Greenleaf of the Rochester, N. Y., district recently prepared a private relief bill which will allow the pension of one there hangs a tale.

Senator Padlock was delayed today with telegrams of congratulation over his victory in passing his pure food bill. They came from individuals and organizations alike.
