LOSS AT THE SUNDAY FIRE

Damage Proves to Be Not So Heavy as Was at First Reported.

ESTIMATING THE DESTRUCTION DONE

Ames Building Suffers Less Than Was Supposed-Omaha Hardware Company's Stock a Total Wreck-How Other Firms Fared.

The damage by Sunday morning's destructive fire in the Ames block, in which was the Omaha Hardware company's wholesale store and which was completely destroyed, is not so heavy as was first sup-

The loss on the entire building, fronting on Jones street and which is owned by Frederick H. Ames, a Boston capitalist, will not exceed $10,000 or $12,000, as just that portion of the building occupied by the hardware company was gutted. There were five floors and those, together with the roof, went down in a ruinous heap. The fire walls on either side of the hardware storeroom were strong and substantial, protecting the building on the east and the west from the hot flames. It is thought that the portion of the building occupied by the hardware firm can be replaced for $10,000 or $12,000. The building is insured.

The serious loss is, of course, to the Omaha Hardware company, whose stock of goods was almost entirely destroyed. The stock, according to Frank V. Miller, secretary of the concern, was not worth over $135,000 or $140,000, while the insurance carried is $125,000. The secretary is the son of I. A. Miller of Council Bluffs, and general manager of the hardware company. He, togetner with A. S. Carter, treasurer, and other members of the company, visited yesterday morning and afternoon the dilapidated and ruinous scene of their business.

The origin of the fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary, although some seem to think that it got its start by some explosive substance that was included in the hardware stock. At all events it was one of the most destructive fires Omaha has had for some time. It was also handled exceed-ingly well, considering the fact that the fire men were hampered on account of the storm, the city being in darkness and all the wires being down. Then, too, the building is badly located and hard to reach in quick time, on account of the Tenth street viaduct and the close proximity of adjacent build-Scenes at the Ruin,

All day long, and in fact from the time the fire started, the firemen were assiduously at work playing streams of water upon the smouldering debris that lay in a mass at the bottom of the once five-story structure.

Iron girders, twisted and contorted in all maginable shapes, heavy hardware, cutlery, iguns, pistois, axes, knives and the like, lay there in the ruinous heap. Everything perished, as the heat from the fierce and hot flames destroyed them.

The portion of the building occupied in the west end by the United States Wind Engine west and by the United States Wind Engine and Pump company was slightly damaged only. The company's stock is principally damaged by water which surged in at the celiar, damaging the plumber's stock of goods. The insurance will cover the slight loss. The east end was unoccupied, with the exception of some hardware stored in it by the Omaha Hardware company.

Thousands of people in throngs visited the scene of destruction and viewed the ruinous mass of debris, with its bare walls towering upward on either side of the mam-moth building. In the massive pite of rubmoth building. In the massive pile of rub-bish at the north end a portion of the com-pany's safe could be seen. At the east end an immense quantity of axel grease burned all day and fed the smouldering rubbish.

The only accident that occurred during the fire was to C. Reynolds, a fireman of truck No. 1. A huge timber, in falling, struck Roynolds on the shoulder and right arm. He was not seriously injured, but was incapacitated for work. He was removed in the particular transfer. trol wagon to No. 3 engine house, after which he was taken to Brown's hospital. It is thought that he will recover from his

Who Deserve Credit.

In yesterday's account of the fire the name of Chief Galligan appeared, although the fire chief is now seeking to recuperate his broken health in Florida. The credit for so successfully handling what threatened to be a most serious confagration is due Acting Chief Charles Salter and Assistants Barnes and Graves. That the fire was so soon gotten under control is little less than remarkable, as the firemen were handleapped from the very start by almost overwhelming odds. The fire alarm wires were prostrated by Saturfay's storm, and as the telephone service was in a similar condition the only way of sending the alarm to the various engine houses was by mounted messengers. Considering this state of affairs it will be seen that almost superhuman work on the part of the downtown companies in delaying the progress of the flames was all that prevented the total destruction of the entire corner if not, indeed, of the whole block. In yesterday's account of the fire the name

CONVICTED A LYNCHER.

Barney White Falls to Escape, Although

One Witness Was Assassinated. Camille, Ga., March 27.—Mitcheli county has convicted its firstlyncher. The lyncher's name is Barney White. It was early last fall that a party of masked men took Larkin Nix from a Thomas county prison. For two days nothing was heard of the party, at the end of which time they tied Nix to a tree in Mitchell county and riddled him with shot. The citizens of Mitchell county set about finding out the lynchers. A few months after a party of men took Burreli Holiand out at midnight and flogged him. The mask fell from one of their faces and Burrell recognized Barney White. He was arrested, together with six of his companions. Great interest was created by the trial, which opened last Monday, ending yesterday in the conviction of White. The same evidence will convict all of them, although Will Davis, one of the witnesses, was murdered last night by assassins. His evidence, however is available under the law of clearly ever, is available under the law of Georgia from the stenographic report.

NO REASON FOR THE CRIME

Cause of Yesterday Morning's Terrible Tragedy Still Wrapped in Mystery.

HOW THE DEAD BODIES WERE FOUND

Terrible Discovery of a Friend of the Dead Girl-Coroner Mant Takes Charge of the Bodies and Notifies the Friends.

About 3:20 Sunday morning a friend and chum of Mabel Stevens, an inmate of Nellie King's establishment on Ninth street, entered the room occupied by the young woman and Abner N. Gafford, the young Iowa com mission man. She wanted to speak to Mabet and being acquainted with both the occupants of the room felt no hesitancy in entering. The gas was burning dimly and she walked directly to the bedside and shook Gafford's arm. One touch of the flesh was enough to alarm her, for the arm was cold and stiff. With a cry for help the girl rushed from the apartment and down the stairs as fast as her feet could carry her. An officer was quickly called who tried to report the matter to police headquarters, but the wires were down and he had to run clear to the Mulard hotel in order to find a telephone that was in working order. In a moment after the discovery of the awful crime the whole house was in an uproar. The inmates huddled together in the pariors or rushed wildly up and down the hall asking all sorts of questions from the frightened woman who had found the bodies. After a moment or two of intense excitement the women quieted down and hardly spoke above a whisper until the bodies had been removed from the premises. When the Coroner Came.

Owing to the fact that no telephones in the western part of the city were working, a cab had to be called and sent to Coroner Maul's residence in order to get that official on the scene as soon as possible.

After the bodies had been viewed by the coroner a search among the effects of the dead was instituted. The coroner at first decided to leave the bodies as they were until morning, in order to give the jury an opportunity to view the remains before removal, but this suggestion of Mr. Maul was met with so much opposition from Nellie King and the inmates that the coroner gave up the idea and sent for his wagon and two coffins. The dead man's satchet was the first thing examined and from books and papers it was found that the murderer's name was Abner N. Gafford and not J. J. Gafford, as was first supposed. Every scrap of paper both in the dead man's clothing and satchel was care-fully looked over in hopes of finding a bit of writing which would clear up the mystery of writing which would clear up the mystery of the crime. But the search was fruitiess as nothing but a half dozen business memoranda books were found and their contents threw ne light on the subject except to establish the name and residence of the dead man. Some letters addressed to Mabel Daniels from Denver and signed Aggle Mooney were found in the ton drawer of the dressing. were found in the top drawer of the dressing case. These were taken possession of by the coroner, who afterwards learned that the Denver woman was a sister of the dead girl. When the bodies were being prepared for removal it was found that Gafford held tightly clutched in his left hand a crumpled $1 bill, which, when unwrapped, was found to contain 15 cents. The revolver which lay close to the cold and stiff right hand was one of the latest pattern Smith & Wesson, 38-caliber, ham-meriess weapons. A tiny stream of blood had flowed from the wound in Gafford's temple, across his death white face and down onto the snowy pillows and into the bed.

It was found that the bullet which entered the woman's brain had clipped off one little curry lock of jet black nair, which lay on the illow directly below the spot where the bullet had entered. On Gafford's coat was found the ensignia of the Iowa State Traveling Men's association and in the pockets enough money in sil ver to make the total amount $2.42 was found. When the room occupied by Gafford and the apartment adjoining were being cleaned the money which it was stated the young man had was found. Scattered under the bed in the next room was a bundle of pills amounting to $240. It is presumed, judging from this fact, that Gafford had opened the folding doors and tossed the money into the room where it was found; that the crime was premeditated and not committed on the spur of the moment, as was first supposed.

Just as the first streaks of dawn were peeping through the windows the bodies were placed in separate coffics and taken to the

Concerning the Victims. As soon as possible the coroner telegraphed

As soon as possible the coroner telegraphed to the sister of the dead woman and received a reply asking him to notify two brothers who were stopping at the Pacific house in Council Bluffs. This was done and the brothers called at the morgue later in the day to learn the full particulars of the affair. One of the brothers said that his sister's name was Mary Mabel Mooney and that she was 16 years old. He also said that their parents were dead and that the girl had lived in the Bluffs until last August, when she left saying she was going to Carrol! Ia. Since then nothing had been heard from her. A telegram was also sent to J. J. Gafford, the father of the deceased, at Manning, Ia., who replied stating that he would arrive this morning.

Notwithstanding notices which were posted in the doors of the morgue denying permission to see the bodies, a small crowd of curious people hung about the front entrance nearly all day.

The inquest will be held at 3 o'clock this

"I have used Londonderry Lithia Water in cases were there was a uric act testiment in the urine, and I have found that it increases the quantity of urine in twenty-four hour and diminishes the amount of uric acid very noticeably. I have used the water in the treatment of the various forms of Bright's Disease which arose from gody ten ears. One obscure case that I remember was one in which the matient hada sently urine containing allower and more or less urit acid continuous ministrations of this water was followed by the passage of a large amount of ret sand which relieved the patient greatly. Londondermy Lithia Water is a valuable adjacant in the treatment of diseases of the kidneys." Hom. Med. College, Chicago.

"I have had a long experience in the treatment of Kidney Diseases with Londondern, and am pleased to add testimonial, although I think it unnecessary from the fact that the effects of the water speak more conquently than any words which I might utter. I prize it very highly in all cases of Chronic Rheumatism or other manifestations of the condition known as the 'Litnic Acid Diathesis.' I have used the water extensively in my practice and intend to continue the use of it."

Clifford Mitchell, M. D., Prof. Chemistry and Toxogogy,

With invalids the cry is for the Still Water, while "Sparkling Londonderry" is used in all fashionable cluts and hotels, and is found on thousands of private tables simply because the physicians have said: "In this age of wear and tear, your blood has become poisoned with Uric Acid, and you must drink Londonderry always." If you doubt us, as your own physician what he thinks of Londonderry Lithia Water. For sale by all Druggists and Crocer,
