CRISP KILLED BLAND'S BILL

How the Speaker Prevented Further Consideration of the Measure.

CHANCE TO AGAIN COME UP

Some Inside History of the Work in Con nection with the Scheme-Democratic Harmony Considerably Disturbed Over the Affair in the House.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE, 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.

The Bland bill for the free coinage of silver is dead for this session of congress at least and cannot come ap again until next December. Both the national conventions and the presidential campaign itself will have become history before this question can again rise in congress. Mr. Bland, who has clung to the last to the hope of galvanizing the bill into life admitted late this afternoon with obvious reluctance that the bill is dead for this session.

Many influences combined to bring this result in the conferences of Sunday and Sunday As a result of this influsee, Speaker Crisp announced today that he would not call a meeting of the committee on rules to consider a resolution to fix an hour or for a final vote on the free coinage bill, and would not vote for such resolution in the committee itself unless he were petitioned to do so by a majority of the demo-crats of the house.

Crisp is Against Bland's Bill.

Tonight Mr. Bland said to The Bee cor-respondent: "As soon as I heard that the speaker had come to such a determination I went to him and asked about it. The went to him and asked about it. The speaker told me it was true and there would be no cloture resolution unless a majority petition came to him. I told him I could hardly believe it. We had some further conversation, but nothing was said in heat." Why were you so surprised when you ard of the speaker's decision?"

heard of the speaker's decision?"
"For a very simple reason," was the reply. "When last Thursday night, or rather early Friday morning, I moved that the house adjourn, it was with a distinct understanding that a cloture resolution would be brought up and that understanding was had with the speaker himself by myself. Of course I was surprised when I learned that the agreement was not to be carried

"Do you think that the bill is dead?"
"For a time, yes."
"How would it be possible to get it through the house this session!"

There is no possible way of doing so with the speaker against us. He knows that we could not get a majority of the democrats to petition for a cloture resolution. He knew that he has a sufficient number of friends who would refuse to sign such a petition to make it impossible to secure the necessary major-ity. Well, I might as well confess, the bill is dead as far as this congress is concerned. It has been killed by the speaker and his friends. I do not care to discuss the probable effect that the bill will have upon the political future of the democratic party." Nebraska's Sugar Productions.

Today the census bureau completed statisles on the production of maple sugar and maple syrup throughout the country from which it appears that much to the surprise of the census official that Nebraska is to some extent at least a producer of those The productions last year were confined exclusively to Douglas county which produced twelve pounds of maple sugar and thirty-nine gallons of maple syrup Nebraska is the most extreme western state where maple productions are reported and it is believed that no maple sugar and syrup is made west or northwest of that state. She produced nothing from the maple according to the returns of the census in 1880.

How to Treat the Indians. enator Pettigrew of South Dakota, in his talk on the Indian question before the Quak-ers' meeting at Philadelphia on Saturday evening, used some practical illustrations drawn from his own experiences in the Da-kotas and Northern Nebraska which at-tracted much attention and were warmly commended. Senator Pettlgrew, who is a prominent member of the senate committee on Indian affairs, said among other things that the Indians should be brought into im-mediate contact with civilized life to enable them to measure up to the standard of citi-

He praised the present ad-ministration, saying it was controlled and shaped by the wisest and most devoted officer that ever held the position of commis-sioner of Indian affairs. The people of South Dakots, he said, are in earnest and want the Indians civilized, but more schools are Indians civilized, but more schools are needed and an education for every Indian child is desired.

BETTER THAN EVER.

New City Directory's Exterior and Interior a Decided Improvement.

The Omaha and South Omaha city directory for 1892 has just made its appearance, fresh from the hands of the compilers, J. M. Wolfe & Co., and is an improvement over any of its predecessors in more ways than one. One noticeable change is that it is less than two-thirds the size of the directory of 1891, though showing an increase in population of 553. The reduced size is due to the improved arrangement of the columns of names and addresses, which in the new volume are arranged in two columns instead of one as in previous years. The matter is thus made more compact and will probably be found more easy of reference. Thus arranged, with a small increase in the width of the page, though there is no perceptible change in the size of the cover, the book is considerably less bulky and much exist to handle. In the less bulky and much easier to handle. In the directories of all cities that have attained metropolitan proportions it has been found best to adopt the double column system, and Omaha has reached that stage. The number of individual names in the volume is 47,620. which, estimating the usual number of three to a name, shows a population of 142,820, as against the 140,452 shown by the United States census of 1800. A brief sketch of the work of the past year shows substantial growth and progress, with real estate transfers amounting to $16,000,000 and new buildings costing $3,000,000, besides public improvements made by the city and franchised corporations amounting to nearly $3,000,000 more. A mortuary list, containing a record of all deaths reported to the Board of Health during the year. is a new feature. The directory also shows 1.620 births during 1891, and 317 during the first two months of 1892. South Omaha is treated by itself on the same scale as the larger city with the single exception that the names are arranged in single column as of yore. None of the Smiths, Petersons, Olsens or Joneses seem to have gotten away. So far as observed all the old ones are there and several car loads of new ones. The publishers are justly proud of their latest work, and there is sittle doubt that all who have occasion to use it will be duly pleased in proportion.

Mr. Wood had hardly finished speaking, when a little girl came in the store with an empty bottle. It was labeled, "Chamberlain's Pain Balm." The traveler was interested, as there was certainly a bottle coming back, but waited to hear what the little girl said. It was as follows: "Mamma wants another bottle of that medicine; she says it is the best medicine for rheumatism sheaver used." best medicine for rheumatism she ever used.' 50-ceat bottles for sale by druggists.

The directors take the position that the whole matter is simply in the hands of the property owners of the city, and it remains for them to furnish the association with the returns to the circular letters recently sent support asked for, if they care to have it un-dertake the work of bringing factories here. dertage the work of bringing factories here. The association is now resting on its oars waiting for the people to come in and subscribe at least $i a month each. Will the people do this or will they let the only organization that is now or ever was in the city, working exclusively for their loterests, go down for want of support? It is high time that the people of Omaha should put themselves out a little and repair to our headquarters and make their subscriptions. If they do not support this association it will be a long time before another springs up to take its place. We all know what the Real Estate Owners association means for Omaha, if furnished the means to carry out its work, and we well know the loss Omaha would sustain we well know the loss Omaha would sustain if its efforts were abandoued."

Eastern People, Tired of Fertilizing Rocks, Seck Nebraska's Fertile Soil. Mr. Isaac Shepherdson of Riverton, Neb., was a guest at the Millard tast night. He said to a Bee reporter that settlers from the east were coming into Nebraska up along the Republican valley in great numbers. All the land that could be farmed is rented and a great many of those who were coming in were buying farms. Farm lands have advanced in the vicinity of Riverton from $4 to $6 per arre within the past few months and nearly all the lands that had been offered for sale had been purchased by the home seekers. The prospects for a very large crop. Mr. Shepherdson said, were never better.

Colored People Organize. CHICAGO, Ill., March 28 .- One thousand negroes assembled at Bethel African Methodist Episcopal church to "consider the recent outrages to their race." The first sensation of the evening came when, after a short address, the pastor, Rev. G. W. Gains, asked the audience to join him in singing "America." As one man the audience rose and refused to sing that song until this country is what it is claimed to be-the sweet land of

"Our dear son is insane, but he is not a murderer or a forger. The trial which is coming will vindicate his innocence. Till then we must bear up as well as The press teems with ingeniously fabricated falschoods and with cruelly malignant in-sinuations. The tide of persecution runs all in one way, and we are powerless. Public opinion is whetted in every way against my son. God slone can help us. Pray for us that out of this horror of darkness light may spring up, and that through this howling storm we may be brought to the shore of a divine deliverance. vine deliverance.

issue The Bee published over a page of interviews with prosperous farmers in various portions of Nebraska, each of whom gave his personal experience in tilling the soil, in stock raising, in fruit culture, etc. The showing was a revelation. Eastern newspapers commented upon the unexampled success of Nebraska farmers as demonstrated by THE BEE, Farmers and business men at once became interested and are now demanding more information with respect to other sections of the state. The issue was soon exhausted and late orders for extra copies could not be filled. No strouger inducements could be held out to prospective settiers or land buyers than the facts as gleaned by THE BEE, coming directly from the men THE BEE will soon print another exhaustive showing of the agricultural resources of various counties. Old residents have been interviewed, and they furnish a fund of trustworthy information concerning the propraska is pre-eminent as an agricultural and stock raising state. This information will be in demand not only in this section, but

Bee Bureau of Claims

OMAHA, NEB.

Equal with the interest of those having claim against the government is that of inventors, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions but an effect of the incompetency or institution of the atternay, employed to obtain their patents. Too much cars cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the atterney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worth less or careless attorneys, and of seeing that mysactions are well protected by valid patents. THE BES BUREAU has retained counsel expert in patent practice and is therefore prepared to
