COLLISION ON THE OMAHA

Car of Oattle Burned and Two Men Seriously Injured.

DISASTER OCCURRED IN A LONG CUT

Conductor Nichols and Fireman Harrington Caught in the Wreck—Something About the History of Engine No. 13—It is Always in Trouble.

WINSTED, Neb., April 2.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—About 4 o'clock this morning train No. 13, pulled by the famed and famous engine 156, which has been in more disasters than any engine on the Nebraska Division of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, dashed into the rear end of a special stock train standing at Apex, a siding in a long cut six miles west of here. The way car was completely demoralized and a car of cattle next ahead was set afire and entirely consumed.

Conductor Nichols of the special and Fireman Harrington were both quite seriously injured.

The wreck occurred a few yards west of where, during the great blizzard of January 12, 1889, the same engine killed Engineer Otto Boyer.

County Claims Secured.

COLUMBIAS, Neb., April 2.—[Special to THE BEE.]—The Plateau County Board of Supervisors met Thursday to hear the report of the committee appointed by them to confer with Ex-County Clerk John Stauffer regarding claims pending against him for the county for the recovery of excessive fees retained by Stauffer. The committee reported in favor of accepting $1,163.33 in settlement of the whole matter. The report was adopted by the supervisors. It is understood that Stauffer is willing to pay the amount. When the investigation commenced the county claimed that about $10,000 of excessive fees had been retained. But experts have been working on the books for some time and the county's claims were found to be erroneous.

Jail Delivery at Columbus.

COLUMBIAS, Neb., April 2.—[Special to THE BEE.]—Last night Martin Morrissey and James Morrissey, the two young men confined in the county jail awaiting trial for assaulting Mrs. Bondar, escaped from the jail and are now at large. A reward of $50 has been offered by Sheriff Caranagh for their arrest. Morrissey is about five feet eight inches tall, smooth face, dark hair, gray eyes, wears dark clothes and Scotch cap. Morrissey is about the same height, smooth face, black eyes, dark hair, sharp features, and wears dark clothes and Scotch cap. Both wore short overcoats, dark colored, considerably worn. Morrissey's shoes were badly worn and broken and he wore a pair of old rubbers. The officers here are making every effort to recapture the prisoners.

Changed His Politics Again.

HARTINGTON, Neb., April 2.—[Special to THE BEE.]—Another change has been made with the Herald plant of this city. Sinclair, the editor, changed the politics of the paper a week ago from that of republican to independent. After making the change quite a number of independents fled to the Herald office to swell the subscription list. Many of them paying in advance. Now the Herald has sold out to a man by the name of Young from Sioux City. The independents feel rather sore over the outcome. Mr. Young will run a republican paper.

For Captain Yocum's Pardon.

FREMONT, Neb., April 2.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—A petition was circulated here today asking Governor Boyd to pardon Captain A. D. Yocum, who was convicted at Hastings for the killing of Van Fleet. The petition received the signatures of a large number of prominent citizens, being headed by George W. E. Dorsey and L. D. Richards.

YORK, Neb., April 2.—[Special to THE BEE.]—Martin Gornober was brought before the Board of Insanity yesterday and pronounced insane. He has been quite troublesome, threatening to shoot some of his best friends. He was taken to the insane asylum at Lincoln this morning by Sheriff Shrook.

How a Patrol Box Works.

Mounded Officer Burns tried to report to police headquarters about 9:30 o'clock last evening from the patrol box at Thirtieth and Williams streets. Not receiving any answer he supposed the box was out of order, but it wasn't.

Then the policeman started to show Councilman Ellasser how the thing worked, and he pulled the needle on the dial down to not and let it fly back. Then he swung the indicator to the right and the needle pointed to inside of two minutes a patrol wagon full of officers and half a dozen fire companies dashed up to see what the matter was. When Burns explained the situation look of disgust overspread the firemen's faces as they turned their horses' heads toward town. The air out in that vicinity was blue for fully half an hour afterwards.

Will Consider it Tuesday.

The county commissioners will meet in regular adjourned session Tuesday afternoon to act upon the proposition of whether or not a special election will be called to vote upon the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $300,000 to aid the Nebraska Central Railway company in the construction of its bridge across the river at this point. Upon convening the board will resolve itself into a committee of the whole, with L. S. Berlin in the chair. Mr. Berlin stated yesterday that he hoped a large number of the taxpayers would attend the meeting and express their views upon the advisability of calling the election.

WHEN OMAHA WAS BUT A KID

Dr. George L. Miller Tells Something of the Early Life of the City.

HOW NATURE WAS IMPROVED UPON

Two Creeks and the Government Decided the Fate of the Future Metropolis, and Men Took Advantage of the Fact Quickly.

The lecture room of the Young Men's Christian association building was filled last night by a very intelligent and appreciative audience, drawn thither by the announcement that Dr. George L. Miller would deliver an address upon "Fifty Years of Omaha."

"The speaker began by asking the question, 'What constitutes a city?' In answering the question the speaker explained the necessity for the building of villages, towns and cities. He said that it took something more than brick blocks and railroads to constitute a great city. A great city was the concentration of capital, backed up by brains, energy and moral character, establishing great commercial, educational and religious enterprises. Twenty-five years ago, the speaker said, Omaha had no commercial history worth speaking of. During that period the city had grown to one of marvelous commercial interests and countless enterprises in which 140,000 people were engaged. It is a Great Country.

He began with his departure from his home in the east thirty-seven years ago, and followed his steps and meandering all of way to Omaha. At that time Chicago had 90,000 population, St. Louis 74,430, considerably in advance of Chicago. He then called attention to what he called the imperial parcel or great agricultural region, reaching across the continent north of the Ohio river. For centuries the great glaciers sweeping down from the mountains had deposited great wealth of soil in this region and now we see the towering millions of happy people cultivating the rich fields and building great manufacturing cities. In this great belt the cities of New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha had sprung up. This imperial belt was destined to rule the nation and across the continent in this favored region the mightiest cities of the nation were sure to be planted.

Turning then to his experience in coming west Dr. Miller said that when he reached Chicago people had been talking about Omaha's ultimate growth. In Iowa he was informed that Nebraska was a sandy desert, and nearly all the buffalo had gone to the other side of the mountains to get something to eat. The speaker then described Kansasville, which later became Council Bluffs. It was a ragged looking frontier village. He felt rather conspicuous in walking about the new town because he was the only man in sight who wore a dress suit.

Omaha Wasn't Pretty.

It was many long years before he had the pleasure of wearing another dress suit. When he came over to Omaha the few settlers told him he had better not think of taking up a residence on this side of the river. But he did all the same. He boarded in a log cabin hotel and stuck out his sign on the corner of the cabin with the words, 'Dr. Miller' on it. His first patient was an Indian pappoose and it died very soon after the young doctor prescribed for its relief.

Dr. Miller spoke feelingly of his departed friend Mr. Kellom, in whose honor the new Kellom school has been named. He also referred to General Estabrook and others with whom he had pleasant relations in pioneer days.

Referring to the chaotic state of society in Omaha thirty-six years ago Dr. Miller spoke eloquently of Rev. Rouben Gaylord, who 'brought Sunday across the Missouri river.'

Independent Order of Foresters.

After the regular meeting of Court Equinox at (late City hall last Friday evening the doors were thrown open to a large number of guests who had been invited to join in a pleasant social gathering. After a few introductory remarks by the chief ranger, F. L. Weaver, Mr. William M. Giller, in the name of Court Equinox, presented to two of the most assiduous and deserving members, Brothers S. M. Martinovich and David Hamilton, such an elegant gold badge, remarking that those had been well earned by the vast amount of time and labor which these gentlemen had given toward the building up of this court and the order in general. A light luncheon, music and dancing wound up the pleasant evening's entertainment.

FOR THE FAIR.

Douglas County Agricultural Society Laying Its Plans.

The board of managers of the Douglas County Agricultural association held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the exchange hall of the Board of Trade building. The object of the meeting was to make arrangements for the fair this fall. H. G. Clark, president and John Baumer recorded the proceedings of the meeting.

What Saved Omaha.

"There were three sites along this great river that were struggling for the lot to fall upon them. They were Florence, Omaha and Holywood. The latter was the natural location, but a great city was demanded in this vicinity and we who fought for Omaha across the river must reduce to a demand that no human power can control."

Her Growth Not Finished.

Dr. Miller then advised the young men present not to be foolish, not to make the mistakes that the older citizens of Omaha had made in thinking that Omaha would be a small inland city. He believed that Omaha would contain fully 400,000 people within twenty-five years. He advised everyone to get hold of some real estate, some good acre close to Omaha, and hold to them. The future would smile for the man who held Omaha property.

He believed that electricity would soon be the motor power for all railway transportation and the electric car lines would make it possible for people to live out several miles and still be closer to business by the actual time it required to reach their places of business than people who move on to live within a mile of the center of the city.

Unsettled at Home.

The speaker then spring a sensation by saying that there was a great scheme on foot to bring water from the Platte through a great canal sufficient to turn all the wheels that could be employed in Omaha for a half a century. The scheme was perfectly feasible, although the mosquitoes would undoubtedly pronounce it a visionary hoax.

In closing Dr. Miller advised the young men present to learn habits of frugality and economy and place every dollar saved where it would bring good results later on. The address was highly enjoyed and the speaker was frequently applauded.

District Court Doings.

Judge Ferguson yesterday granted a decree of divorce in the case of Carrie J. Johnson against Carl Johnson. The plaintiff had no difficulty in proving that the defendant was a bad man. He wedded Carrie on June 13, 1889, making the usual promises in such cases, but that afternoon he skipped out and since that date has failed to furnish any news of his whereabouts.

In the criminal court Jim Healey, Thomas Coleman and John Healey were arraigned, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of robbery. The information states that on February 20, 1892, the defendant met one, L. S. Bonnell, and by putting him in fear of great bodily harm succeeded in taking the sum of $40 from his person.

Anton Wobber and J. H. Craig pleaded not guilty to having struck, beat and bruised A. C. Oglo.

John Swanson, the man who while in the employ of the Omaha Gas Manufacturing company fell into a ditch and sustained severe injuries, is tolerably happy today. He brought suit against the company to recover $10,000. The case was submitted yesterday and yesterday the jury returned a verdict of $2,500 to the plaintiff.

The case of the state against P. A. Gavin, charged with having set fire to a building on Cumming street, owned by A. H. Sanders, was submitted to the jury yesterday morning and at 6 o'clock last night a verdict of not guilty was returned.

Tonight the ladies' section of the turnverein will give a children's masquerade ball at Germania hall. This is the annual masquerade gotten up especially for the benefit of children in connection with the turner society. The ladies have been the past month assiduously at work making preparations for the event.

The executive committee of the Germania American Citizens society will meet next Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Germania hall for the purpose of making preliminary arrangements for the celebration of German Day, October 6. All delegates of the different German societies have been requested to be in attendance at the meeting.

The Schweizer Verein will meet Sunday

April 17, at Eleventh and Dodge streets, for the purpose of organizing a new shooting club.

Max Jansen, one of the reporters on the German Tribune, has been promoted to the position of city editor of that paper.

WOMEN MANAGERS OF IOWA REFORMATORY CAN MANAGE THEIR OWN BUSINESS.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 1.—David Conant of Hamilton county brought habeas corpus proceedings some days ago to release his daughter from the female reformatory. Mrs. C. M. Walker and Miss Laura Roum, members of the board of managers, and Miss Keoley, the superintendent, appeared in court today in answer to the writ, and, declining to employ a lawyer, argued their side of the case themselves before the court.

The plaintiff made the point that his daughter was over 18 when she was sent to the reformatory, and, being now over 18, cannot be lawfully held in the institution. The managers argue that the law was not in answer to the writ, and, declining to employ a lawyer, argued their side of the case themselves before the court.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

BAILEY.—The funeral of John R. Bailey will take place from his residence, 1123 North Twenty-third street, Sunday, at 2 p. m. Interment at St. Mary's cemetery. Friends invited.
