This evening the city council will hold its regular mouthly meeting, and Mayor Lawrence will report his list of appointments on the police force. The force will consist of fourteen members for the present at least this number having been agreed upon by the members of the council with the understandlog that additions shall be made if found necessary after a trial. Who will the four teen lucky men is the question that is now agitating the minds of the hundred odd ap-plicants for positions, and manifestly there will be a great many disappointed hopes.

An effort will also be made this evening to appoint a clerk and chief of the fire depart-At the last meeting it will be remem pered that party lines were drawn in voting for men to fill these offices, and it was evident that neither side would give in unless some sort of a compromise could be arranged. The prophesy has been made freely and with considerable show of reason that a circus might be looked for this evening when the matter was brought up, but if reports are to be believed all expectations of this sort will be supped in the bud as the result of a conference that was held by the members of the council Saturday afternoon. What the re-sult of this conference was the aldermen refuse to say, but it has leaked cut that by the terms of the compromise W. M. Shepard is to be the next city clerk, with the tacit understanding that his deputy shall be a demo-crat. It is rumored also that Charles Nich-elson should fill the office of chief of the fire department. At all events a compromise has been reached which will enable the council to proceed to the niling of the vacancies without further delay.

Wouldn't Fight on Sunday. A report was circulated on the streets yes terday afternoon that S. Goldstein, who keeps a saloon and feed store on lower Broadway, had been shot, and that his corpse was basking in the April sun in front of his place of business. A large crowd col-lected at the place, becluding a policeman or two, numerous constables, justices of the peace, and others who were more or less interested in having the man that wielded the weapon brought up with a snap, but Gold-stein, instead of having gone to join the heavenly choir, seemed to be the first man that each one met as he reached the scene of the allered tragedy, while his tongue flew with increasing rapidity as he explained to each new comer how it had all happened.

Thomas Conway, he said, who lives not far from his saloon, came in and demanded a drink of whiskey. Either Thomas' credit had worn threadbare or the proprietor was opposed to selling liquor on Surlay, for he refused to grant the request. After Conway had applied a number of epithets to Goldstein he left the place and Goldstein followed him out to the street. When he reached the sidewalk Conway began to challenge him to fight. Goldstein had no desire to win renown in the first constant. desire to win renown in the fistic arena, and he refused. Conway finally said he would do the fighting for two, and suiting the action to the word, began to rain blows of various weights about Goldstein's head and various weights about Goldstein's head and shoulders, finally driving him into his salcon for safety. L. Brown, Goldstein's father-in-law, flew to the rescue and he was given a narcotic of the same kind. The jug-handled battle was stopped by the arrival of officers, and Goldstein bastened to fine Justice Hammer, before whom he swore cut a warrant for Conway's arrest on the charge of assault and battery.

EVERYTHING WAS COVERED WITH WATER

Broadway Sewers Were Clogged Early and the Avenue Became a Raging Torrent-Damage from Indian Creek Was Not Large.

The rain storm of vesterday afternoon was one of the hardest that has been known in this city for years, but owing to circumstances the damage done was less than on previous occasions when the rainfall was no greater. For an hour, lasting from 2 o'clock until 3, there was a steady down pour, and when at last the sun broke out through a rift in the clouds it looked down upon a water supply that was adequate to the demands of even a prohibition city. Every street was transformed into a running river, which varied in depth from three inches to a foot. Broadway was impassable for nearly half an hour after the rain had ceased, from the fact that it caught the water from the glens and the sewers becoming clogged up rendered it impossible for it to be carried off by the usual route. Indian creek rose almost to a level to its banks throughout nearly its entire length, so far as could be seen in the city, but the fact that the Northwestern bridges on Twelfth street had been raised in the last few months prevented an overflow such as took place last spring and covered the entire bottom. Had the bridges been as they were formerly, lower Broadway must have been submerged and the damage would have been much greater. As it was, a few cellars were filled on lower Broadway, as well as in other parts of the city, and pavements were torn away. Some idea of the amount of water that rushed down the streets may be gained from the fact that bricks were carried down to Broadway from the brickyards on upper Harrison street, fully three-quarters of a mile away, and some tele-phone poles that had been left lying at the upper end of Oakland avenue for the pur-pose of making repairs along the line floated down the avenue as easily as they would down the creek. Harrison street was left in very bad shape by the flood, and it is doubtful whether travel can be had on the

The electricity played a number of pranks during the storm. Officer Kemp and James Nichols were standing in the doorway of a building on Upper Broadway when one of the sharpest flashes of lightning happened along. They each sustained a severe shock, and it was several minutes before either of them knew just what had happened. The same flash struck the telephone wire leading into the Neumayr hotel and caused conster-nation in the place. Other telephones in the city were served in the same, and innumer able wires were broken or crossed by the wind. It will be several days before the system can be put back into its former good

Better Order Demanded. Complaints long and loud are being made by those who attended the theater at Dohany's opera house Saturday night over the noise made by the occupants of the gallery without any interference from the management. The statement has been made many times that those who want to see a good theatrical performance must go to Omaha, but when Modjeska was advertised going to Omana lately decided to patronize the home theater, and the result was a well filled house. All during the evening the gallery gods were rather noisy, indulging in conversation that could be heard all over house, and smoking eigarottes. fragrance was waited down into parquete was wated down into the parquet, but during the last act their behavior was such as to cause a number of people to leave the house. Mme. Modeska herself finally came to the front of the stage and stood with her eyes fixed on the gallery for a full minute. This hint caused a cessation for a short time, when the noise went on with redoubled energy until the close of the play. No attempt was made by the manager of the house to put a stop to the disgraceful proceedings, and the audience was left at the mercy of the hoodlums. DeWitt's Sarsaparina is reliable.

Burglars Out on Bail. Attorney J. G. Tipton, who has been try ng for some time past to get Joe McDermott and Charles F. Wilson, the Boston store burglars, out on bail, at last succeeded in his attempt vesterday morning at 3 o'clock, and had his clients set free on bonds in the sum of $500 apiece on each of the indictments that tand against them. Each is indicted for burglary and larceny, so that the amount of their combined bond is $2,000. The neces-sary amount was guaranteed by Mrs. Mary C. Long of this city, who was secured by John Flannagra, Dennis Cunningham and Charles Brandles of Omaha. It has been the supposition of Sheriff Hazen that the two men would secure their bondsmen and then skip the country, as they are known to be desperate crooks. On this account the sheriff was very loth to let them go, but when the necessary amount was put up for their appearance he had no choice left. Will Move the Station. Among the improvements which are to be made in the Chautauqua grounds before the opening of the coming season is one which will make the grounds much more easy of access than before, viz : The moving of the depot to a point much nearer the amphithea-ter. Just what place will be selected has not yet been decided, as the managers are con-ferring with the Rock Island company with a view to having a switc's run from the main line directly into the grounds and some dis-tance up the bill, so that the distance to be walked from the station will be cut in half. It is hoped that a satisfactory agreement can be reached, but even if it should not, the distance can be materially lessened by moving the depot farther up the track, and this will be done.

Left His Company in the Lurch. The Bruns & Nina's comedy company was booked for a performance in this city next week, and the members of the company bave been spending a vacation at the Ogden house waiting for their date to arrive. Last Saturday the discovery was made that Harry Brans, the manager of the company, with his wife, the junior member of the company, had taken the Northwestern for Chicago, leaving the balance of the company night and remain closed unt I Monday morning, front doors and back, and Bowling made the rounds of the saloons on his beat early in the evening, notifying them of the order. When he passed the opera house saloon at 12:30 a circk he noticed that it was still running wide open and a number of tough characters were inside. He told them to close at once or he would arrest the whole outilt.

Kildare replied with some very insulting language, and Bowling placed him under arrest. Maher then came up and attempted to make the officer release his hold on Kildare. Words led to blows and in a moment the officer was lying on his back in the gutter with Kildare and Maher occupying reserved seats on his frame. A couple of other men whose names the officer does not know also took a hand, but in spite of the heavy odds Bowling man-aged to get up, and hitting Maher a blow over the head with his club, graboed Kildare by the neck and started off for the city jail, Kildare was soon placed behind the bars, the charges of assault and battery, resisting an officer and keeping open after hours being entered against him. Officer Beswick went back to the saloon and arrested Maher, who was charged with resisting an officer and disturbing the peace. Both men gave bonds for their appearance in police court this

Something of the Advantages of Business in Central America.

SMALL CAPITAL AND RICH RETURNS

Mr. Henry C. Stuart's Interesting Observations on Life in Southern Republics-Guatemala's Beautiful Women-Only a Century Behind the Times.

A young man not yet in his thirties, but a young man of wealth and distinction, is Henry C. Stuart of San Salvadore, Central America. He is now in Omaha and is the guest of Dr. S. D. Mercer. He arrived in this city Saturday from New York City, coming by way of the Isthmus of Panama. In the elegant and bospitable home of Dr.

Mercer Mr. Stuart was called upon last night by a representative of Tue Ber. He is a tall, erect man of magnificent physique and has a manly and dignitied carriage. His buir is black and he wears a luxuriant mustache of a corresponding color. He also possesses a pair of sharp, piercing black eyes. As an entertainer he is exceedingly clever, and is apparently at home with everybody. With that cordiality for which gentlemen of southern climes are famous, Mr Stuart cour-teously receives you with a warm grasp of the hand, that at once puts you on friendly and hospitable terms with him. By birth Mr. Stuart is not a southerner, but he was born in a sunny, genial clime— California. This, together with his twelve years life in Central America, has given him the experience of a southerner.

Mr. Stuart talks of Guatemala's magnificent and exuberant climate, of the beautiful and lovely women, of the rich and profitable coffee estates, of the wealth of great sugar plantations, of the super-abundance of trop-ical fruits, of the genteelness and hospitality of the people, in glowing terms. South American War Scares,

"The telegraphic reports received and published in America from the southern republished in America from the southern re-publics are very much exagerated," said Mr. Stuart in alluding to Chin's re-cent troubles with the United States and the difficulties at present being had in Caracas, Venezuela. In speaking of President Palacio's tyranny in casting into prison the senators and deputies of his republic, Mr. Stuart said that although there might be an uprising against his tyrannical reign, his methods of conducting affairs was an unpleasantry often indulged in by the officials in power. Generally it had not gone so far as President Palacio had carried it recently, but since Mr. Stuart's departure from the south he knows nothing about the present trouble in Venezuela than what be reads in the daily newspapers.

"So far as I am concerned myself," continued Mr. Stuart, "I would not want to go to Chili within the next ten or fifteen years, unless I possessed English papers. At the same time my sympathies are with the Chilians. For what reason? Why, on account of the tariff over which the whole trouble

"As to San Salvadore I am, of course, more familiar with politics and governmental affairs. Notwithstanding the presidential election everything there is quiet. Reina Barios, nephew of the late President Barios of Gautemala, has been elected president of the republic, as you well know perhaps, and was to have taken possession of the office March 15. As l left there before that date 1 have not as yet been informed whether he has taken his seat or not. Young Barios was educated in the United States and married an American woman. I believe she is an Alabama lady.

woman. I believe she is an Alabama lady.

"I have been in the real estate business in Guatemala and have made some big deals for Denver people. I am now on my way to that city. Aside from that I have interested myself in some mines in Salvadore. They are fr e milling, gold quartz and a low grade ore. The veins are 1,000 feet in width and I am now engaged in running a tunnel in one of the mines. If the ore proves good there will be millions in it. Two mining engineers from the United States say the property is a freak of nature. There is only one other cre mine in the district and it is owned by two English gentlemen. Thus far they by two English gentlemen. Thus far they have expended only $40,000 on their mine, and its estimated value at present is $3,000,-000. They refused a cash offer of $500,000.

Rich Mining Interests, "All Central America is much richer in wealth of mineral and agricultural lands than is the United States. It is attracting year by year more and more American peo ple. Before I left in March I heard of a party of twenty-three young Americans reaching Nicaragua, and they intend to start a coffee estate. Coffee estates are worth $1 a tree and some estates have as many as a million trees. This industry is wonderfully profitable, and when a man once gets started he is not many years in accumulating an immense fortune. Sugar plantations are also very profitable. Central America is a great place for young Americans with small capital to go to. It has the finest climate in the world. No climate compares with it. At Gautemala the temperature is very even. In the highlands it never goes over 72°, and on the coast it seldom reaches 80°. The rains come with a great deal of regularity. For instance, it begins raining at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, it will continue until 5, then stop, give you time to go to dinner and visit the theater, commence again at 11 o'clock and rain all night, stopping long enough the next morning for you to go to your office.

"Cocoa (chocolate) trees are also a very profitable industry, but it requires seven years time for trees to bear their first crop. For this reason very few people engage in this business, as it requires considerable capital and it is too long to wait before any revenue is derived. It is the highest priced

There are numberless opportunities for "There are numberiess opportunities for farmers in hog raising, dairies, produce and market supplies of all kinds, to make money. When I left Gautemala butter was $1 a pound and eggs 6 cents apiece, Hog and poultry raising is the most profitable. The cattle business is also good. The soil for tobacco is excellent and much of it is raised, but the people don't know how to cure it as well as they do in know how to cure it as well as they do in cither Cuba or Mexico. The forests and groves abound in all kinds of tropical fruit which grow wild and can be gathered at the cost of gathering it from trees. Little Labor Required.

"The country yields its product withou much labor, but now, don't all you Americans make a rush for it at once. Business is good and profits are enormous. There are only and profits are enormous. There are only three banks in Gautemala, which has a popu-lation of 65,000 people. They declared a dividend last year of 18 per cent. All corporations such as street rail-ways, water works and the like are given perpetual franchises on certain con-cessions to the government. A franchise is a monopoly, and is worth something, as it lasts always. I have a sort of monopoly on the real estate business, as there are no dealers in the republic. I could not do it were it not for my extensive business acquaintance and long life there. But the realty interests are advancing rapidly.

"We have few, and, in fact, no modern improvements, as you have in America. We are at least a century behind the United States, and if you want to know how your great graud-father figed, make us a visit. You'll be living in the eighteenth century instead of the nineteenth. People will not change their style of living. They have no chimneys to their houses, nor even a fireplace. The most expensive houses have white cotton cloth for cellings. When the people want to take a bath they go out in the back yard.

"Hailroads are also in a primitive age, but now there are a number of United States officers detached in Central America engaged in the survey of the propos 1 international railway from this country to Chili. This, when completed, will enable us to go there in about four days, whereas now it requires n about four days, whereas now it requires fifteen days' time to make the trip.
"The people of Guatemala are very intelli gent and highly cultured. Still they don't read new-papers. They care very little what is going on in the world. They are courteous and polite. Even a common laborer would not think of entering a horse car without raising his hat and bowing to all Guatemala's Charming Women "As to their women, they are very charm ing. I never saw anywhere a prettier lot of women than those in Guatemaia. They have a beautiful coive skie, dars and black hair predominate. They are medium height and are very domestic. Still they are of a somewhat featous nature when there is occasion for it. There is a good deal of society in Guatemain and it is the Paris of Central America. The women get their fashions from Paris, France, and many of them are educated there. The women are very strink and are great artists and musicians. Most any one of them can play any Italian opera. The days of the old mantilla have gone and the women now wear bonnets. They never go out alone and are never allowed to receive a gentleman alone.

"When I left Guatemain three sacks of coffee were presented to me to bring here. Upon my arrival in New York I found they would cost me less than one-half as much to send them by steamer to Galveston and from there by rail to Denver than they would have cost me to have sent them direct from New York to Denver by the top the of Galveston than from New York, and I should think it would be a great disadvantage

Mr. Stuart met Mr. George Mercer, son of the doctor, at Gautemaia and was with him a good deal, going to the interior of San Sal-vador together. Mr. Mercer is now en route home, coming by way of San Francisco. DeWitt's Sarsaparitia cleanses the blood, ncreasesthe appetite and tones up the system. Private Charles Lee, Troop C, Sixth cavalry, has become tired of Uncle Sam's service and has deposited with the post commander the sum of $65 to enable him to again become a civilian. Private John Thomas, Troop C, Sixth cavalry, was discharged on the 27th inst. Captain E. B. Savage, Eighth infantry, has been granted a sick leave for two months. He leaves the post on the 29th inst, and expects to obtain an extension of four months, and if successful will visit Europe before returning to the post.

Colonel James J. Van Horn Garrison No. 56, Army and Navy union, gave its first grand ball on the 24th inst. The members of the union appeared in full dress uniform and the affair passed off very agreeably to the large crowd who were present.

All hope for a change of station this year has left us and we have about become recon-ciled to remain here another year. We of the "Ould Eighth" were very much in nopes of getting a large post when the entire regi-ment would be together once more, but the war authorities said no and that seitles it. All there is left for us is to hope for the speedy arrival of the B. & M. railroad, when it will be possible for the enlisted portion of the garrison to pay a visit to friends in civilization without having to serve five years to ecumulate money enough to reach the end of the railroad as at present. Private Ryan of Company E, Eighth in-fantry, met with a painful accident at the Log camp. He cut his foot with an ax, inflicting a very painful wound, necessitating his being sent to the post hospital, where he is now under the careful supervision of Surgeon George E. Bushnell.

Captain F. A. Whitney, Eighth infantry in charge of the post gardens, has received a big lot of garden seeds, and a detail consisting of Sergeant Parker and four private soldiers was made today to commence operations in the farming line. We have had very disagreeable weather for the past week, snow falling more or less every day and high north winds prevailing the entire time. Privates Callow and Sanford and Trum-peter Seibert were discharged Wednesday.

Trumpeter Barnes and Private Blackmore save deposited $100 each for the purchase of their discharges.

The usual weekly hop of the enlisted men was held Wednesday evening and proved to oe a very enjoyable affair. Sergeant Charles Dalkenburger, D troop, us been appointed canteen steward, vice Grogan. Miss Mollie Wells, daughter of Major Wells, Eighth cavairy, gave a birthday party Friday evening at the post hall. Six desertions have occurred from this post in the past three weeks. Private Cenley, 1 troop, who has been under surgical treatment for the past eight months, has been recommended for discharge on surgeon's certificate of disability. The band has been engaged for a performance in Deadwood on May 12. Chief Musician Klein is preparing a program that will eclipse mything that has been rendered in the Hills for some time. Captain Kendall has returned from his leave and assumed command of his troop. Lieutenant Slocum leaves in a few days for Jefferson Barracks, where he has been de tailed for recruiting service for two years.

Mrs. L. R. Patton, Rockford, Ill., writes From personal experience I can recommend DeWitt's Sarsaparilla, a cure for impure blood and general debility."
