A WOMAN'S STORY

That Will Interest Many Who Suffer as She Did.

Catarrh Associated With General Weakness -Pain, Distress and Exhaustion Give Way to Strength and Comfort.

[Many women today suffer pain and are weak and nervous without knowing the cause Their work greatly fatigues them and they cannot eat well. At night they rest poorly and in the morning feel wholly unfit for the duties of the day. In short, they are miserable from general impairment of health, beside enduring various pains and distress hard to fully describe. Many such cases are the resuit of catarran ffecting the whole system and find quick and certain relief from treatment fitted to the case.

Such a case is that of Mrs. Nanna Nesser, of 515 Leavenworth street, whose husband is with the Merchants Express Company, Mrs Nesser in an interview says: "For a very long time I had been very weak and miseraple. I was unable to do my work and a little extra exertion made me feel faint and caused vomiting and Intense Headache. My nights gave me little rest or sleep and I was very tired in the morning. My limbs and I did not relish food, and when I ate a meal it distressed me by causing gas and bloating and a beavy feeling on my stomach. Often I had very severe head ache, which was a great affliction indeed. I had a cough and a tekling of the throat; also my nose was very sore and badly alcerated These symptoms were

Judge Davis Talks Plain to the Employer of a Juryman.

JUSTICE MUST NOT BE HAMPERED

Futile Efforts of the Chosen Jarors to be on Trial, The fourth and last installment of jurors drawn for the February term of the district court reported to Judges Davis and Keysor yesterday morning, and in point of numbers it the best jury drawn since the new law went into effect, as out of the ninety jurors selected sixty five reported for duty. As soon as Clerk Moores had finished calling the names of the men who are to serve during the next three weeks, Judge Davis remarked: "Those men who want to be excused will step forward." Lake one man sixty-one of the jurors stepped to the front with their excuses, but there was where they made the mistake. The court looked at the stock of jury timber and with a smile remarked, "I only wanted to talk with those gentlemen who de sired to be excused." The sixty-five men had a rocky road to travel and only a few got out of serving their coun-try at $2 per day. Fred Martin insisted in getting of for the reason that he had never served upon a jury, and had made a solemn promise that he would never serve.

The court murmured something about broken promises and then Fred wanted instructions. He was told that the court would instruct him, after which he was hurried into another court room where a case was about to be called.
By being attorneys, Howard B. Smith and John L. Carr secured their tickets of leave, but J. H. McConnell, general master me-chanic of the Union Pacific shops, was not so fortunate. He urged that this was a busy season at the shops, while Judge Davis orged that this was a busy season in the courts Several Union Pacific shop men who had been caught insisted that if they served on the jury they would lose their jobs. To settle that matter, Judge Davis called Mr. McCor nell from the body of the house and said "Mr. McConnell, do you propose to discharge these men if they serve upon this jury?"

Mr. McConnell replied that he did not. Ernest Carter, a bearse driver at the had told him that he would be discharged if be did not get excused.

Judges Davis and Keysor held a whispered consultation and then Judge Davis made some remarks. He had heard that the Her distillery people had discharged one of their men, Andrew Peterson, because he had served on the jury. If such a case occurred againhe proposed to make an example of the man. The sheriff would be ordered to arrest the employer and he would be fined $100 for interfering with the duties of the court and the discharge of justice. George Ames of the Consolidated Tank

Line company feared a discharge. An offi-cial of the company was present, who, when questioned, presumed that Ames would be discharged if he served on the jury.
"Discharge him if you dare," remarked the court when the oil company official slid out of the door and the juror resumed his seat.

Crushed by a Load of Hams. In Judge Keysor's court the case of Frederick Emms against the Armour-Cudaby Packing company of South Omaha is on trial. Emms wants $10,000 and is attempting to prove that on August 24, while in the employ of the company, he was "trucking" hams. On that day while he was wheeling away a loan of hams, he stepped upon a loose plank and the load of hams, weighing 1,200 pounds tipped over and crushed him to the floor, bruising and crippling him for life. Pulaski Wins One. One of the cases against Arthur Pulaski, charging him with not having toted fair with the city in the matter of slaughtering dogs, went out of the court in a burry yester-day afternoon. The evidence was in when Pulaski's attorney moved for dismissal on the grounds that the testimony did not substantiate the charge in the indictment. Judge

Davis sustained the motion and ordered the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. Another jury was at once empanelled and Puliski was placed on trial again to answer to another of the indictments, of which there

MADE A CONCESSION. Water Works Company Will Make Curb Line Connections to New Mains. City Attorney Connell and City Engineer Rosewater have held a consultation with Receiver Bierbower and Superintendent Hunt of the American Water Works company with reference to making an adjustment of the controversy relative to the curb line on streets ordered payed before the paye-ment is actually laid. The representatives of the water works company have consented to make such con nections in such places and in such manner as the engineering department of the city may suggest, and to carry the cost of so doing until the property owners may desire to make use of such connections, at which time the cost is to be paid on the estimate of the engineer. Under this plan the cost of making the connections will not exceed $10 each, whereas it would be over $30 if made after the streets were paved.

Edouard Remeny: Recalls the Omaha of a Decade Ago. A cosmopolitan in the best sense of the word, Remenyl at 60 is one of the most interesting of men and for the four hours he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Muentefering Sunday evening he talked with the easy grace of a scholar, To the gentlemen on his right he spoke Garman with delightful familiarity; to the lady on his left he spake French with a thoroughly perfect accent, interjecting now and then sentences in Finglish.

To recall his experiences makes one won der. To look into his homely, deep seamed and intellectual face, touched with the soft-ness of retrospect, was like sitting before a book of mysteries, golden-clasped and sacred, but that is another story. 'What marvelous changes in ten years," said Remenyl, after announcing to the host and hostess that he was a vegetarian, not having tasted meat in nine years. That he was a tectotaler on the wine ques-tion and had completely divorced himself from cigarettes, of which he used to smoke fifty and sixty a day.

"Ten years ago! What wonderful changes have been made in America in that time. Then in ten theaters in which I fludded nine were murderous dens and one passably good. Now nine are magnificent temples of Thespis and one passably good. You are a great people, and no matter what you undertake you accomplish. The whole world marvels and wonders at American civilization, and why not? She is today the queen of the world and darkness never closes her about, for when it is night at Attoo island it is 9 o'clock of the next day in Portland, Me., or some thing like. "Nothing so disturbs me as the realization of the millions I might be worth had I fol-lowed the advice of my friends of the years ago in buying lots. Let me give you some idea of my business ability," and there was a twinkle in his eye as he announced that this was really his best story.

"When in Omaha ten years ago, the mayor of the town, a rustler, as you call him, a good fellow in everything, but imbued with the wild west idea of bigness said to me: 'Mr. Remenyl here is an opportunity to make some money. Buy some Omaha corner lots and in a few years you will be a millionaire. I pulled my cyclid down and in phrase very similar to the one new in use wanted to know if he saw any green in my eye. Of course I dion't know the phrase then but that was what I meant. "In St. Paul a man said to me that I had better buy real estate there, and I inquired of him if he saw any green in my eye. In Minneapolis a friend told me what a great city it would be and advised me to buy lots these come tunt I did at last buy corner lots in Moorhead, on the Northern Pacific. All my money gone up." And the menner in which he told of his loss after having an opnortunity to invest in live cities was a deireious bit of comedy. In response to a query concerning the pos-sibilities of the violin be declared, with one of

"Fiddle scraping is mere noise, no musio at all. Millions do it. "Violin playing is something-a couple of thousand people can do it. "To play well on a violin is a great thing. A few hundred people may do it. "To be original, poetic, profound in play-ing, is reserved only to a very few who can be counted on the fingers of one hand, but to grasp its entire range or to fathom its little

"You see how we dwindle down from mil-lions to nobody."
When asked what music was he said: "Music is the transcendental expression of generic feeling—not corporal," which means that music is love, that it is sentiment, soul. "Music and love," said he, "are the only two absolute things in the world," in reply to a question from a friend across the table.
His descriptions of his visit to Japan sounded like the writings of Lafcadio Hears, so vital and exhaustive were they. The reception accorded him by the mikado was flattering in the extreme, and what is most remarkable, the ruler of Japan asked that he repeat the C sharp minor of Chopin for antencore. "When I received the command to appear before his majesty. I determined to play the very best 1 knew how and the very finest music. For here was a ruler who knew absolutely nothing of music and and I felt that good music would make a deeper impression than rot, as you call it in your expressive American slang. And it won-argument for good music all the time. "What did I receive for the work! Wait till the world's fair and you will see, for all the trophies of a busy and varied career I mean to place on exhibition there. Speaking of Granada, of which he says he knows every stone, although never in his pligrimages having visited the famous city, Remenyl showed thoroughly poetic temperameet. A profound reader of Washington Irving, he hopes some day to be able to play in the ilon's court of the Albambra, not for any selfish motive but for the purpose of singing on his violia the Moorish and Spanish melodies which so delight his heart, and through the means at hand earlich some worthy charitable institution of that beauti-ful old city. And it would be a concert worth going across the ocean to hear, should the artist, upon whom has failen the heritage of Paganini's erratic and brilliant but master-ful musical genius, be privileged to give utterance to his great ability amid such sur-coundings.

Of course Remenyi played during the evening bits from his own compositions, an arrangement of "Carmen," exceedingly full of technical difficulties, a "Waltze Dramatique," with emotional scenes spiendidly pictured.

The city schools opened this morning for the summer term after a week's vacation. There was an increased attendance of over 1,000 beginners, but by changing around and shifting about Superintendent Fitzuat-rick was able to arrange for all with only three additional teacters. Three new buildings were opened, the Kol-lom at Twenty-third and Paul, the Clifton Hill and the Monmouth Park schools, of sixteen, four and two rooms respectively. The Izard school with its corps of teachers, under Miss Foos, principal, were transferred to the Kellom. What will become of the Izard building is at yet problematical.
