Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Kinsler Celebrate Thei Silver Anniversary-Mrs. Carter Gives a Dinner-Movements Here and There.

Twenty-five years married! It is not vouchsafed every husband and wife to celebrate their silver anniversary, but Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Kinsler gathered about them a host of warm friends last evening to join in their celebration of a quarter of a century of tnarried life. Their very beautiful home at Twenty-first and Binney streets in Kountze place was exquisitely decorated with flowers, palms and smuax in honor of the event, while over all parti-colored lights shone on men and women well known in the social, business and professional life of Omaha. There was a wet blanket upon the world without, while within the atmos-phere was perfumed with the scent of lilies, faces told how much they were enjoying the evening.

In the hallway, which is almost square, finely arranged as to light, a tall paim tree their partials are which atood holding out its inviting arms which made resilient etchings upon the background of gray wall forming the stair case. To the right of the entrance is the drawing room, in which Dr. and Mrs. Kinsler, Miss Kinsler, Miss Moroney, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Miss Moroney, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Coad, received. The room is prettily deconated in gray with a silver frieze, a mahogeny mantel giving a touch of color to the apartment that is very restful. There were flowers in the recesses and on the mantel, and with soft gray curpet presented a perfect parture of a fin de seicle apartment. Mrs. Kinsler, a fine looking woman, were her weeding gown of a quarter of a century area, a light blue silk trimmed with silver ago, a light blue slik trimmed with silver carnations, margueretes and roses and bright entraine.

Miss Kinsler, who enjoyed the entertainment from two standpoints, the celebration of her parents' silver wedding and her formal introduction into Omaha society, was prettily costumed in white silk crepe trimmed with silver and moire ribbon. Miss Moroney wore a gown of blue and cream crepe entraine and decollete.

Mrs. Cushing graced a handsome costume flemon colored suk with passementerie. Mrs. Smyth wore a dress of green crepe trimmed with a darker shade of green.

Across the entrance hall to the left is the library, which on this occasion was turned into a floral bower, in the center of which stood the punch bowl, almost embedded in stood the punch bowl, almost embedded in smilax and cut flowers, over which three graces in the persons of Miss Parker, Miss Ada Parker and Miss O'Keeffe presided. Miss Parker, a very pretty and attractive girl, wore a simple costume of white creps trimmed with chiffon; Miss Ada Parker looked particularly sweet in pink creps with chiffon trimming, while Miss O'Keeffe added to the beauty of the trie, by wearing a handsome beauty of the trio by wearing a handsome gown of dove colored crepe trimmed with chiffon, decollete and entraine.

The music room which opens into the draw.

ing room was a magnet which attracted every guest, for here the presents were dis-played, and they were very beautiful and appropriate to the occasion. During the evening refreshments were served in the dining room, which was ornamented in keeping with the rest of the lower floor. In the hallway above stairs the orchestra played throughout the hours of the reception, from 9 until 12. Twenty-five years ago, on May 14, 1867, Miss Mary J. Callan and Dr. J. T. Kinsler were married at Lockport, N. Y., and last night this sliver anniversary was the out

Reception to Bishop and Mrs. Worthington. The weather was rolly outside Tuesday evening, but there was warmth and geniality within the walls of Brownell ball. The balls and reception rooms were redolent with the perfume of apple blossoms and flowers, while the girl pupils were gowned in their best in honor of the reception tendered Rt. Rev. George Worthington, bishop of Nebraska, and his newly made wife, tendered them by the clergy of this city. Bishop and Mrs. Worthington received in the drawing room of the half assisted by Dr. and Mrs. Doherty, while Mr. Robert Ringwalt officiated as major domo. It was a delightful reception in every respect, for it brought together the members of the various parishes throughout the city to welcome the new Benedick. There was a pleasant absence of formality about the function, the people coming and going as they desired. The num-ber of priests present was remarked and Bishop Worthington had a right to feel proud of the hearty manner in which he Bishop Worthington had a right to feel proud of the hearty manner in which he was received by the clergy and the people over whom he exercises churchly powers. The city of London is the smallest of cities, but the lost calculate. It has an area of one square mile which produces a rental of $7,-0.0,000 per annum.

AN EPISTLE FROM ST. PAUL

A City Distinguished for Big Debts, Big Salaries and Narrow Streets.

ACRES OF DECAYED WOOD PAVEMENTS

snap Shots at the Municipal Machine, the Municipal Payroll, Municipal Jealousy and the Recent Municipal Revolution.

St. Paul, Minn., May 14 .- | Special to Tite BEE, |-St. Paul is in some respects a bigger city than Omana. Take her bonded debt for instance, which aggregates $7,579,000, drawing interest annually to the amount of $365,-000. Most of the money has been spent upon internal improvements. About $305,00) was paid in bonuses to three different railroads that sought terminal facilities here. This investment is considered by the people as a very profitable one. Over $1,000,000 was paid for the water plant, which is now controlled by the city, greatly to the advantage of the private consumer and the city in generat. St. Paul is blocked out after truly matro-politan ideas. I took a bird's eye view of the city from the roof of the Pioneer-Press eleven-story building. Arms stretch out in different directions to a great distance, with acres upon acres of intermediate unoccupied ground. The radius of the densely built portion is not large. The city has less than fifty miles of paved streets, mostly cedar block. This material was used because the lumber merchants pretty much own the town. Some of the block payement is in fair shape, but the most of it is in wretched condition, reminding an Omahau of Leavenworth street. St. Paul's streets are narrow, and along many of them are double cable and motor tracks, so that vehieles have a rocky time of it. Omaba streets are far superior in every way, save the motor poles. Here the electric companies are required to erect iron poles along the business streets. The poles are about five inches in diameter at the base and probably three inches at the pinnacle. On the line connecting St. Paul and Minneapolis these iron poles are placed between the tracks, the crossarms being supported by ornamental iron brackets. But the motor cars are not as good as those in Omaha. The transfer system is complete. You can rife from any where to anywhere for 5 cents. Only it cents is charged for the twelve mile ride be-tween the Twin cities.

I didn't see a policeman in St. Paul, but when midway between the two big cities I saw a mounted officer. He was probably doing time on the picket line which is thrown out to check the encroachments of Minneapolis. Talk about municipal jealousy and mutual contempt. A stranger can feel it in the atmosphere.

There are many things in St. Paul that Omaha might emulate. The Board of Education, for instance, does not consider itself bigger than the city council, great city hall building covers them all. I looked in upon the quarters of the beard. They are not as capacious or lesirable as the rooms set apart for the board n the Omaha city hall. Nor are the room is well lighted.

The city library is also in the city hall building. I groped my uncertain way through the dark and devious hallways and had to make at least four right angles before the reading room was reached. Compared with the bright, new library rooms in the Omaha city hall these rooms are abominable. Yet they are well patronized and everybody appears satisfied.

St. Paul's streets are well lighted and last year it cost over $150,000 to do it. An official report gives the number of gasoline lamps at about 3,500; gas lamps, 3,200; annual cost of each gasoline lamp, $14.40, each gas lamp, $29.52. There were last year nearly fifty electric are lights in use, at a cost of $130 each. Omaha pays $175.

The city saiary list is exceedingly large. It is the correct measure of $2. Dann's grout.

it be a correct measure of St. Paul's greatness in all respects, Omaha cannot enter the lists in comparison. Here are a few examples: Mayor, $5,000; treasurer, $5,000; clerk, $5,000; comptroller, $3,500; cach member Board of Public Works, $2,500; attorney, $5,000; engineer, $5,000; fire chief, $3,500; sec retary water commissioners, $3,500; superin tendent of schools, $4,200, etc. The total nayrolls of the engineering department, street and sewer forces amount to nearly $400,000 per annum. Last week the municipal election revolutionized things. The democrats had ruled the town for twenty years. Now there is not one left to tell the tale. On all sides one hears echoes of the battle. "We turned the rascals out," "a stinging rebuse to corrup-tion," etc., are among the expressions picked up. Possibly it may not cost so much to run the city government Lereafter.
