NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

Attorney J. J. Shea the Victim of Desperate Highwaymen.

SLUGGED AND SEVERELY INJURED

Suddenly Assaulted by Three Toughs While Enroute Home in the Heart of the City—Will Not Hold Mahr.

The sluggers and garroters are not all locked up. A party of three of them were abroad last night and found a victim in Attorney J. J. Shea. Mr. Shea lives on South Eighth street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, and he left his office in the Merriam block shortly after 9 o'clock to go home. He went down Fifth avenue, one of the best lighted streets in the city, and when he turned the corner to go up Eighth street he noticed three men standing in the full glare of the electric light. As he approached them they circled around him and one of them showed a revolver under his nose and bade him throw up his hands. The attorney thought it was some of his friends trying to play a good-natured joke upon him, and he laughingly replied that he would do so but that it would not do any good for he did not have anything they wanted.

The joke part vanished when the fellow with the gun repeated the order with a flood of profanity and an admonition that no fooling would be tolerated. Mr. Shea is a six footer and a man of courage and the thug with the pistol was surprised and staggered by a blow under the ear that knocked him down, but before the attorney could follow up the advantage the contents of the can over the other's head from a sandbag in the hands of another of the trio. The blow struck him in the face as possible, threatening him with a punishment if he should be found trying to sell "downs" in the city again. As soon as the man with the pistol recovered his temper he turned to the attorney and said that he would not strike him again, and told him that he would be glad to see him at his law office and that they might have all to be possessed.

Then they carefully searched his pockets and found nothing of value excepting a five dollar gold watch chain belonging to Mrs. Shea. This they took, and after giving him a parting kick and an admonition to be sure to tell his friends that he was appearing in the adjoining alley. The robbery was committed right under the electric light that is swung across the street, within 100 feet of Shea's residence.

Shea gives a partial description of the thugs. One was a tall man, the other a medium sized fellow, heavy set, and the third was a smaller man.

When they were out of sight Shea got up and went to his residence, when he was informed by his wife that the men had been looking around the house and had stepped out on the walk and went down the street toward the corner where they met Shea and took him by the neck of the neck to the first victim that appeared.

The blow from the bludgeon that fell across the attorney's head produced a large bump and a lumping headache.

After the robbery Shea followed the robbers to the end of the alley east of Eighth street on Fifth avenue and saw the body of the man in front of her house who informed him of what had happened and asked that her husband be arrested. Murphy had just got out of the back door, was making a living leap down the bank of Indian creek when he was nabbed by the officer. He was slugged and taken to a battery and will have a hearing in police court this morning.

fellows, and then dressed for sale. The same fellow was caught trying a similar trick a short time ago and was fired back to Omaha where he came from. When the inspector saw that he was attempting to repeat the operation he called a taxi. Examining the beef in the fellow's wagon, he found it horribly mutilated, the owner evidently having an excited opinion of the quality of Council Bluffs butchers. He accordingly secured a can of coal oil, and before the seller knew what he was about he had quickly poured the contents of the can over the diseased beef. He then notified the man to leave for the Nebraska side of the river as soon as possible, threatening him with a punishment if he should be found trying to sell "downs" in the city again. As soon as the man with the meat could recover his temper he turned to the inspector and said that he would not strike him again, and told him that he would be glad to see him at his law office and that they might have all to be possessed.

HON. WM. F. CODY. "Buffalo Bill." Many are familiar with the famous "Buffalo Bill's" wonderful wild west show. Prior to his venture abroad, Mr. Cody exhibited at St. Louis Island, in New York Harbor, where he became afflicted with a peculiar disease, the "Kikapo Indian Sagwa." Mr. Cody sent to the agents for this wonderful Indian remedy, and after using a few bottles was completely cured. "It is a remarkable medicine," said Mr. Cody, "and I have known of its virtues a long time. You may use my name and say that I claim to do it. It has cured me and for malaria and chills it is far superior to quinine in many ways."

This, from the leading plainman in American history, a man whose integrity is unquestioned, should prove beyond a shadow of doubt that Kikapo Indian Sagwa is just what is claimed for it: an honest medicine of superior curative qualities, combining the best of the vegetable kingdom gathered from the forests and gardens of nature.
