Dull Days in the Swell Circles of Fashionable Life.

ANNUAL EXODUS OF THE BEAU MONDE

Conching Parties Take the Place of Card Affairs-Pretty Wedding at Erastus Young's Home-Promised Nuptials.

Lowell wrote something about a "day in June" which has since become a classic. The "perfect days" which he alludes to so charmingly are here and upon their heels the days of July and August, when the "warm ear" of heaven becomes a trifle too warm for the city dweller.

With the coming of the "perfect days" comes to every man's desire the invitation of the sea, a sonerous song of the rolling waves; the call of the mountain, a murmer of soft breezes passing through trees and gathering odors from the pines and the forest flowers; gentle beckoning of the babbling brooks purling through woods and meadow; the caim allurement of the still lake set like a gem amid the green of the hills.

All these things-all that is cool, resnimating, delectable-beckon the tried citizen, and as soon as he can safely abandon his business, his office and his desk, he will obey tie call and begin his preparations to enjoy as Whittier did-

"Low stir of leaves and dip of oars, And lapsing waves on quiet shores." The summer is pefore us, and the social columns of today's Beg tell whither the "birds of brilliant plumage" are bound; where rest will be woord by occan's melanwhere rest will be woosed by decade a dround choly roar, by rural rivulet's rippling sound or amid the icebergs of the north. You who would flee the heat and squalor of the town and commune with nature peruse what your neighbors and friends are doing.

Mrs. Depew in a recent interview on the care and education of children uttered some notable truths. Among other things she spoke of permitting her children to have a bowl of bouilion or broth of some sort when they came in from their daily walks, especially in winter. To eat between meals is with many careful mothers a habit that is promptly suppressed; as many others, however, find that the little tolks cannot go five hours without eating, as is necessary from a 12 o'clock luncheon to a 5 o'clock dunner. School children particularly crave and seem to need something to eat on reach-ing nome from lessons. To establish a regular fourth meal at this hour, which, of course, should be of the lightest character, is a rule of many households. The children seem to thrive upon it, and without it are fretful and disinclined to undertake either play or more study. For dyspensia or any form of delicate digestion, physicians advoente frequent cating at regular intervals. The same principle applies to growing chil-

An edict of Mrs. Denew's, however, to which many methers will take serious ob-jection is that which forbids fairy stories. "I do not allow them to read fairy stories. I do not think it well for them to do so. Instead I give them interesting and instructive books of history to read," Mrs. Depew is quoted as saying. A child who is shut away from "Sinoad the Sailor" and "The Fisherman and the Geni," from Hans Anderson and Grimm, and all the rest down to "Alice in Wonderland," seems to be shorn of his very birthright. The delicious nours spent in believing in fairies and guoves and eives, in watching the moon beams and listen-ing for the tinkle of fairy music, in slyly rubbing a ring and trembling lest its dread ful slave should come, then sighing because he does not—these are precious memories when life settles into a dull reality. It seems a pity to deprive anyone of them.

What promises to be the swellest wedding of the season will occur at Trinity cathedral June 29, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Opal Touza lin will become the wife of Solo-mon E. Sparrow, lieutenant of in. fantry, U. S. A., located at Fort Sidney, Miss Touzain will have a trio of beautiful girls to assist in the nuptral ceremony, Miss Lynn Curtis being the maid of honor, Miss Emily Wakeley and Miss Bianchard of Fort Sidney, Captain Crowder, judge advocate of the Department of the Platte, will be the best man, and Mr. Charles How, Mr. Fairfield, Mr. W. G. Doane and Mr. Frank Clark will be the ushers.

A June Wedding.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was celebrated Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the residence of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Young, 3172 Dodge street. The house, which is one of the handsomest in the metropolis, was embowered in flowers, the lower floor being particularly redolent with the perfume of myriad blossoms. A quintette of strings stationed off the hallway on the first floor played very delightful mus'c throughout the atternoon, the wedding march from "Lohengrin" sounding particularly sweet and win-ning as the contracting parties entered the drawing room from above stairs.

The music room, in which the ceremony occurred, was filled with rare palms and other tropical plants, giving a handsome background to the pretty picture made by the contracting parties, the attendants and the officiating clergyman.

Shortly after the bour named in the invitations for the marriage ceremony to take place David Young and Raiph Nutting came down the stairway, wearing the uniforms of Kemper Hall academy, Davenport, and sus-pended ribbons from the newell posts through the drawing room into the music room. Following the young men came Mas-ter Richard Merrill and Miss Benita Mount carrying bouquets, then Miss Ethel Mount walking alone, and after these the bride and groom, Miss E. Genevieve Young and Mr. D. Preston, Benedick. The bride, a very pretty and at-tractive young woman, was beautifully gowned in white faille with court train, the corsage being trimmed with duchesse lace. Broad white ribbons fell from the shoulders to the train, and as a gift from the groon, she were an exquisite locket set with dia-monds and carried an immense bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Benita Mount wore white silk mulie trimmed with Valenciennes lace, while her sister Miss Ethel Mount graced a sweet costume of crepe and silk and carried a basket of flowers, while Master Richard Merrill wore a pretty page's suit of black. The groom presented to the little maids of honor lover's knot plus while to Richard be gave a gold

At the conclusion of the services the bride and groom held a short reception, a pretty feature of which was the giving to each guest a rose from the bridal bouquet. Then came refreshments in the diame groom, and here the florist and the caterer were at their best. The table was a picture in its wealth of flowers and ribbons suspended from the central chandeller, while cut glass and handsome table ornaments added to the pretty effect. The bride's "go-away" gown was a mode shade of diagonal, with a large fancy braided but to match. The brid and groom left on the same evening for Chicage and the east via the Northwestern, to se at home after July 1, at Twenty-third and

The groom is a well known young pusiness man, being connected with the jumber firm of C. N. Dietz, with whom he has been asso-ciated for several years. The presents were in any and very beautiful, showing the esteen in which these two young people are held by a wide circle of friends. While the guests were few owing to the desire of the contracting parties to have a quiet weiding, it was in many respects one of the prettiest affairs of the year. of the year.

Kimball and Stephenson.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Stephenson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stephen son, and Mr. Albert Edward Kimball was solumnized Wednesday at high noon at St. Carnabas, Rev. John Williams officiating. hir. Arthur East presided at the organ and played the wedding march with musicianty feeling. The bridal party was preceded by the ushers, Mr. Fred McConnell and Mr.

George Nason, followed by Mr. James Stephenson, jr., and Miss Mullie Stephenson, the maid of honor and then the bride, escorted by the father. Her costume was of fawn colored cache mire, heavily embroidered about the hem and prettaly trimmed with passementerie. The groom, attended by Master Willie Stephenson, met the bride at the altar. The maid of honor, a pretty and stylish brus ette, was zowned like her sister. by Master Willie Stephenson, met the bride at the altar. The maid of honor, a bretty and stylish brut ette, was gowned like her sister, wearing a large hat completely covered with leaves and ribbons. After the ceremony an informal weading reception was held at the residence, a most delicious weading breakfast following. Mr. and Mrs. Kimball left later on an extended eastern tour and will be home after July 15 at 3003 California street. The following were guests at the reception: Mr. E. P. Kimball, Mrs. George Mack, Waterloo, Ia.; Colonei and Mrs. E. P. Hooker, Mr. and Mrs. William Stadelmann, Miss L. Hooker, Mr. A. Crawford, Peoria, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fuller, Mrs. R. W. M. A Nebraska Woman. Among the distinguished visitors in the city last week was ex-Senator Charles H. Van Wyck of Nebraska, He was accompanied by Mrs. Van Wyck, who was the recipient of much social attention, and charmed all who met her by the elegance of her manner, and nor brilliant qualities of heart and brain. Mrs. Van Wyck is a representative of the best type of American womanhood. Highly endowed with all the distinguished characteristics of her sex, with varied mental attainments, and all the graces and accomplishments which come from a long residence at the national capital, an entertaining conversationalist, an adept in the art of pleasing, and a devoted wife and mother. Mrs. Van Wyck is a lady whom to know is to admire, and whose presence breathes an atmosphere of nurity and pleasure rarely excelled in the social circles of the country—Rocky Mountain News, May 29.

A Pretty Home Wedding. A quiet home wedding occurred Wednesday at 2 o'clock at 1721 Davenport street, the happy couple being Mr. John Stevens and Miss May Mackey. The parlors were beau-tifully decorated with roses and smilax. The bride, young and beautiful, wore a traveling suit of cadet blue, hat and gloves to match. There were a number of valuable presents received.

Those present were Mrs. Mackey, mother of the bride; Mrs. Smith, an aunt from Dubuque, Ia.; Miss Marie Dewar, Miss Marguerite Kress, Miss Blanche Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Davies, Mr. Martin Cooper, Mansure, Prawl, Durling, Stevens, Parmaties, Welsh, Dr. Clayton and McConnel.
