

FELL HEADLONG FORTY FEET

Two House-Painters Perhaps Fatally Injured Through a Rotten Rope.

BOTH MEN IN A DANGEROUS CONDITION

Ed McPhee Injured in a Runaway Accident at South Omaha—Jules Lombard a Victim of a Serious Street Accident.

William Leichtenau, a painter, and James F. Knox, his helper, yesterday threw their bodies over the east side of the Tibbo building at Twenty-seventh and Cumings streets, and after going to their heavy swinging staves began painting the galvanized iron cornice work surmounting the fourth story.

They had only been at work a few minutes, and half a dozen spectators were watching them from the other side of the street, when one of the "screaming" ropes snapped, and the two men were shot down to the wooden pavement forty feet below.

Knox's body whirled around in the air, and he struck the sidewalk on the side of his head and shoulder, and lay there motionless. Leichtenau shot down feet first, and the heavy staving fell on him.

The men were both picked up and carried into the building, whence Knox was sent to St. Joseph's hospital, still unconscious. His head and face were a mass of clotted blood, and it was thought that he was fatally injured. Leichtenau was screaming with pain. Three of his fingers were broken and it is feared he is internally injured and cannot recover. Half a dozen physicians were on hand almost immediately and everything possible was done for their relief.

Leichtenau is a married man, who was living with his wife and two children in the rear of 2016 Cumings street. He is about 45 years old.

Knox is about 51 years old and was boarding at 1109 North Nineteenth street. His home is in Topinka, Kan., and he has no friends in the city. He had been out of work for two weeks.

The scaffold was a borrowed one and was put up by the unfortunate painters without examination of the ropes.

Struck by a Runaway Team. Ed McPhee, an employe at Cudahy's packing house, South Omaha, was struck by a runaway team, under the Q street bridge, and thrown over the side of the bridge. The wagon passed over McPhee's body, breaking several ribs and injuring him internally.

The injured man was removed to St. Joseph's hospital.

Jules Lombard Badly Hurt. At 8:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Jules Lombard, general manager of the Pennsylvania lines, met with an accident which will keep him confined to his bed for a week or so. Mr. Lombard attempted to board a car at the east crossing of Thirtieth street. As the gentleman jumped for the step of the slowly moving car, his hand missed the railing and he fell heavily to the ground, striking upon his head and shoulders, and stunning him so that for a few moments he was unconscious.

The injured man was hastily carried into a store near by and Dr. Sumney sent for. It was found that Mr. Lombard had suffered two severe gashes on his face, one over the right eye and the other under the chin, besides a general shaking up, and numerous bruises. After the physician had temporarily dressed the wounds a cab was called and he was taken home where, at last accounts, he was resting easily, though suffering considerably from his bruised and badly swollen face.

I Know His Meant. That is why I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the public as I do to my friends and my own family. It has cured me of all the well known remedies had failed at it cured me in a few minutes. I recommend it candidly and cheerfully upon its merits, not because it is a cheap remedy, because it has others in stock on which I make a larger profit, but because Chamberlain's is the best remedy for bowel complaints I know of. There is no doubt about it, it does the work of any other remedy, and it is the only one that James Forgy, druggist, McVeytown, Pa.

BISMARCK AT SEVENTY-SEVEN. The greatest German of his generation, the world knows all about Prince Bismarck as soldier, statesman and patriot. How do these leaders of the nations look and act in private, every-day life? Is a natural question of those who acknowledge their right to rule in national life. Can we catch a glimpse of one of them in deshabille, so to speak? Through Sunday's Bee a glimpse may be had of the maker of Germany in negligee. For where can one be so charmingly informal and unconsciously natural as at a picnic? And it was at a picnic in the woods of Friedrichsruhe, Bismarck's favorite home near Hamberg, that Mr. Frank Carpenter "caught" the iron chancellor a couple of weeks ago, and he has reproduced him for readers of The Bee in a most interesting article, displaying all the famous correspondent's acute observation and keen literary style, takes the reader right to the "side of the great Prussian" and no one Prince Bismarck as he is at 77.
