

PATRIOTISM AND WISDOM

Teachers at Saratoga Give President Harrison a Welcome

ENTERTAINED BY A DELIGHTFUL TALK

One of His Characteristic Speeches Repays
the Educators for Their Courtesy—A Popular Reception Given the Chief Magistrate of the Nation.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 12.—President Harrison arrived this morning and was escorted tional Association of Teachers is assembled. He was received with an address of welcome and replied in a neat, taking and well turned little speech, complimenting the teachers and their work. The president said:

It is not simply to give that power that comes from education, but to give it proper direction that schools are established. He is not a benefactor of his race, who develops but misdirects power. Therefore, we must insist that in all our schools the

shall be instilled. [Applause.] That lessons of subordination to authority shall be taught. [Applause.] The family and the school are the beginning of the fundamental element of good citizenship and obedience to law—[applause]—a respectful deference to public authority; a self-sacrificing purpose to stand by the established and orderly administration of the government. [Applause.] I rejoice in nothing more than every school house. [Applause.] I have been charged with too sentimental an appreciation of the flag. I will not enter upon any defense. God pity the American citizen who does not love it, who does not see in it the story of our great free institutions and the blood of the brave—no, another of them

Remembered His School Days.

It has seemed to me that we are taking on in education some of the developments which characterized the mechanic arts. No workman produces a finished product. He gives it a little touch and passes it on to some one when the teacher left his strong impress upon the pupil—[laughter]—by reason of long years of personal intercourse and instruction. [Laughter.] Universities where the professor knew the members of his class—[laughter]—and could detect the fraud when a dummy was substituted. [Laughter.] Now primary and the graded system, much as a moving belt in a machine shop and it carries him on until he is dumped from one of these great universities as a 'finished product.' [Laughter and applause.] Perhaps the work is so large and the demand for economy so great that the pupil more upon himself, and out of this there may come some advantage. But without discussing the relative merits of the old and the new, let's thank God that the great army of instructors, reinforced by the great body of citizens, is marching on to reach that great result, when there shall not be found

The Story of Two Little Girls.

"There is a just mean, I think, that between a system of intellectual competition which destroys the body, and a system of physical labor that overtaxes the mind."

too early to our little ones. I throw out this word of caution to our good lady friends here."

Here the president told a story of two little girls who met on the way to school. One said to the other: "Oh, I had such an awful dream last night."

"It was safer," said the president, "for such little ones to dream, as in his boyhood he was wont to do, about bears." "But I have already talked too long in this desultory way," continued the president. [Cries of "go on," "go on,"] everywhere. It is inscribed over every door in that public institution where I live. [Long continued laughter.] There are some proverbs and sayings that we use without any adequate appreciation of what they mean. I never knew what the story of the last straw and the camel's back meant until I was

"It gives me great pleasure to express a sincere personal interest in, and to commend with whatever official sanction I can give to it, the great work in which you are engaged. There is none other like it. It has has an element of life that no other work has. It has that communicating touch of intelligence, morality and patriotism, which runs from one to another, and which shows elements of character which come to it from the skies. If not crowns of wealth, if not the luxury and ease that in every touch upon the life of the young you have lifted it up. That your meeting here in this delightful place may be accompanied by every pleasure and profit, and that you may find in it a fresh inspiration and dedication to your work is the wish I leave with you."

The Omaha Baptist City Mission union gave a public meeting in the chapel of the tendance was indifferent, but the exercises were interesting. All joined in singing "Coronation," after which the audience was informed as to the history and aims of the union. Its purpose is to foster mission work in the city, aid the churches in supporting who devote their whole time to its work and are paid for their services. Interesting addresses on mission work were delivered by Rev. F. W. Foster and Rev. L. M. Woodruff, D.D.

mine has closed down, throwing several hundred men out. The Lake Superior mine will probably close soon, throwing out 3,000 men.

Mr. J. G. Anderson
Of Scottsdale, Pa., a veteran of the 11th Penn.
Volts, says, as a result of war service he Suffered Every Minute

Hood's Sarsaparilla

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after-dinner pills. They assist digestion and cure headache.
