

THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS

All Snap Seemed to Be Eliminated from the Trade. BUSINESS IN WHEAT WAS LIGHT

There Was an Impression Also That the Crop of Winter Wheat Has Been Overestimated—Corn Was Heavy Early.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 15.—All the snap in the market seemed to be eliminated today by the weathering local weather. An early advance of 3c in wheat disappeared almost entirely before evening. Corn shows a loss of 3c compared with last night. Provisions are 75c lower around the city.

Business in wheat was light. The market opened about from 1/2c to 3/4c higher and soon went up to 1/2c to 3/4c more, then gradually fell away, closing 1/2c to 3/4c over last night's figures. The advance was a continuation of the firmness developed yesterday and it was helped along by the firm and higher cables, together with a reported improved demand for cash wheat. The market closed steadily at a slight decline, compared with yesterday's closing prices. The business did not assume activity at any time during the session, but the crowd kept a close watch upon the market, which was held by the Chicago and St. Louis. When the market was sold liberally of hard and soft wheat, the market advanced 1/2c to 3/4c, but the receipts continued previous positions and induced the speculators to pursue a similar course. However, the market was held by the Chicago and St. Louis. When the market was sold liberally of hard and soft wheat, the market advanced 1/2c to 3/4c, but the receipts continued previous positions and induced the speculators to pursue a similar course.
