

man of the national committee is a fair specimen of his modesty and his good nature. Mr. Cartwright is a good deal more to the party than the party does to him. The way in which he has kept the news of the day before him in an accurate, but not too much, in his opinions is fairly indicative of the methods by which he achieved such prominence as he enjoyed. The place for Mr. Cartwright is in the ranks of the country and the republican party can get along for a while if they do not hear more than once a month what he does or what he thinks about politics.

ONE OF AMERICA'S GREAT MEN.

New York Times: Cyrus W. Field was very eminently a "man of business" in this sense, and it may fairly be said that in many respects he was typically an American man of business.

New York Commercial: Cyrus W. Field is one of those names that the world will not forget. By one brilliant achievement, born of genius and courage, he has not only shed lustre on the land that gave him birth and benefited all mankind, but rendered his own name immortal.

Detroit Free Press: Napoleon died a prisoner at St. Helena under the happy delusion that he was again at the head of a conquering army. Cyrus W. Field was not harassed by the financial troubles that beset him, but in the delirium of his dying hours imagined that he was laying the Atlantic cable, the crowning achievement of his career.

Washington Post: The name of Cyrus W. Field, as long as time shall last, will remain identified with the early history of the Atlantic telegraph. As the foremost of its original projectors, the leader of this memorable enterprise through a multitude of difficulties and the hero of its construction, he attained a position of illustrious and universal distinction, and the world old him homage.

New York Herald: Cyrus W. Field's name will be remembered for the laying of submarine cables and the building of aerial lines of traffic, and his influence will long be felt in the business world. It was the construction of lofty office buildings in lower New York and from his connection with other enterprises in which large amounts of capital were invested, that he has been able to have cause to remember him also for his works of philanthropy.

Washington Star: The sufferings and death of Cyrus W. Field find a parallel wherever the great Atlantic cable has flashed the news. His name is linked forever with the achievement by which the continents have been brought together. His name is linked with the great enterprise, it was the great merchant who first thought of the Atlantic telegraph. It was he who, after many failures, succeeded in carrying out the mighty undertaking.

Boston Advertiser: Indiscriminate eulogy is seldom a truthful estimate. It would not be so in this case. The life of Cyrus W. Field from the civilized world mourns today was long, busy and many-sided. Much of it was spent in scenes and states that were not of faultless perfection. Cyrus W. Field had his full share of human infirmities. At various points he incurred what just men believe to be a just and severe reprobation. The verdict of those who knew him best was and is that his personal character entitled him to sincere esteem, no matter how severely and judiciously to the imperishable renown that was secured long ago and will shine with undimmed splendor long hence.

Hear Chicago Hour.

Chicago Herald.

The directors of the World's fair should peremptorily announce that they will not accept the appropriation that was passed yesterday by the United States senate. It is a dishonest, a sneaking and a contemptible measure.

Led by the saintly Matt Quay of Pennsylvania, a majority of the senators added to the bill a proviso that the fair should be closed on Sunday. Captivated by Peffer, the product of Kansas crankism, a majority added a further proviso that no liquor should be sold on the grounds.

These amendments were imposed by demagogues, hypocrite and skinflints for the purpose of shirking a manifest duty. They would not admit of a compromise. Unusual and unnecessary conditions would not be accepted. They knew that they were sinking the ship when they out the cargo board. They should have thrown back in their faces with as much vigor as Chicago can command.

A Bogus Veteran.

Chicago Tribune.

In the reports of a national convention the papers made much of the pathetic spectacle of the presiding officer—H. L. Loucks, a one-legged veteran, swinging his crutch and leaning on the arm of a young man, Huron, S. D., where Loucks lives, inform us that he never was in the army, and only immigrated to this country about ten or twelve years ago. His leg was cut off by the Dakota doctors last year to save his life from a fever sore which has been troubling him for years.

Hasping a Jawsmith.

Chicago Herald.

A. G. Wolfenbarger of Nebraska, prohibitionist, finds fault with the church for "resolving" one way and voting another—praying for the support of the church and voting with the saloonkeeper. If the Christian people were only united, says Mr. Wolfenbarger, they could force any party to accede to their demands. True enough, but fortunately they cannot be united for the purpose of enforcing unjust and oppressive demands.

Buffalo County's Worst Enemies.

Chicago Herald.

THE OMAHA BEE gives a nice write up of Buffalo county. The Bee could fill all its columns full about Buffalo county without exhausting the material. The facts and facts set forth one could not infer that the worst thing it is to be "bankrupt." The worst thing it is to be "bankrupt" with the "realistic" lovers.

A Life Saving Law.

Chicago Herald.

The uniform act coming bill has passed the house. This is a life saving measure of vital importance to railroad trainmen and should not be permitted to be smothered in a senate committee. It is the duty of every senator who will assume the responsibility of pushing this humane measure to a speedy passage.

Political Anarchy Kodaked.

Chicago Herald.

That Homestead strike shows that the anarchist element of the democratic party, in congress and in the press, is much larger than the general public was aware of.

CLEVER AND CAUTIOUS.

Chicago Herald.

Minnesota Times: Gladstone, if reports are true, should open a sea bathing resort in Great Britain. He is to have a bare majority.

Philadelphian Record: "Out" yelled the distinguished but puerile why you could be crazy.

He is a Philadelphia politician. "It's you that are out of your base."

Truth: She-Your parents had always objected.

He-Y-But when you came to ask her parents for her hand they found that she was on the other side of the door.

He (simply) didn't stop to see which foot.

Washington Star: "Here we are," remarked the train to the conductor, "again wakened by them as own land."

Why?

"The man over there told me to get away from that creek. He said he was afraid I'd take a notion to go in it, and he didn't want it dammed up."

The man who goes down to races.

And foolishly gets in the soup.

New country.

His vacation away on the stoop.

Pioneer Press: The man who spends an hour trying to kill one vicious and pernicious snake.

And is encouraged, or discouraged, according to the result of the fight. The snake bit the declaration that the progeny of a house fly every six weeks reaches the respect- able grade of full grown.

SOME PLAIN HARD FACTS.

Hon. Rowell G. Horr Lays Down a Few Simple Propositions.

DEMOCRACY'S DOCTRINE DEMOLISHED.

Fallacies of the Free Traders Met and Disproved by Logical Reasoning and Naked Truth—Great Rally of the People Last Night.

If enthusiasm is the standard by which to measure the success of a political rally, then last evening's demonstration at the Farnam Steamer was a stem-winding top-notch among campaign gatherings. And it wasn't the enthusiasm of an open air gathering, either, for the audience was the peer, both in point of numbers and make-up, of any assembly to listen to a discussion of political issues in this city. It was, in fact, just such an audience as it was desired to have assemble to hear a logical, dispassionate exposition of political questions by a speaker who appealed to the good judgment and common sense of his hearers rather than to their partisanship or prejudice. It was a commonplace crowd, without it was an intelligent and spirited one. There were employers and employes, merchants, bankers and professional men, skilled mechanics and artisans, and the ranks of more humble labor were by no means sparsely represented. They were there out of curiosity, as was testified by the fact that many of them were in their earnest. They wanted information on questions of vital importance to their interests. They were there to see the speaker of the hour, and to hear the views of a man who had been so successful in his work of philanthropy.

Washington Post: The name of Cyrus W. Field, as long as time shall last, will remain identified with the early history of the Atlantic telegraph. As the foremost of its original projectors, the leader of this memorable enterprise through a multitude of difficulties and the hero of its construction, he attained a position of illustrious and universal distinction, and the world old him homage.

New York Herald: Cyrus W. Field's name will be remembered for the laying of submarine cables and the building of aerial lines of traffic, and his influence will long be felt in the business world. It was the construction of lofty office buildings in lower New York and from his connection with other enterprises in which large amounts of capital were invested, that he has been able to have cause to remember him also for his works of philanthropy.

Washington Star: The sufferings and death of Cyrus W. Field find a parallel wherever the great Atlantic cable has flashed the news. His name is linked forever with the achievement by which the continents have been brought together. His name is linked with the great enterprise, it was the great merchant who first thought of the Atlantic telegraph. It was he who, after many failures, succeeded in carrying out the mighty undertaking.

Boston Advertiser: Indiscriminate eulogy is seldom a truthful estimate. It would not be so in this case. The life of Cyrus W. Field from the civilized world mourns today was long, busy and many-sided. Much of it was spent in scenes and states that were not of faultless perfection. Cyrus W. Field had his full share of human infirmities. At various points he incurred what just men believe to be a just and severe reprobation. The verdict of those who knew him best was and is that his personal character entitled him to sincere esteem, no matter how severely and judiciously to the imperishable renown that was secured long ago and will shine with undimmed splendor long hence.

Hear Chicago Hour. Chicago Herald. The directors of the World's fair should peremptorily announce that they will not accept the appropriation that was passed yesterday by the United States senate. It is a dishonest, a sneaking and a contemptible measure.

Led by the saintly Matt Quay of Pennsylvania, a majority of the senators added to the bill a proviso that the fair should be closed on Sunday. Captivated by Peffer, the product of Kansas crankism, a majority added a further proviso that no liquor should be sold on the grounds.

These amendments were imposed by demagogues, hypocrite and skinflints for the purpose of shirking a manifest duty. They would not admit of a compromise. Unusual and unnecessary conditions would not be accepted. They knew that they were sinking the ship when they out the cargo board. They should have thrown back in their faces with as much vigor as Chicago can command.

A Bogus Veteran.

Chicago Tribune.

In the reports of a national convention the papers made much of the pathetic spectacle of the presiding officer—H. L. Loucks, a one-legged veteran, swinging his crutch and leaning on the arm of a young man, Huron, S. D., where Loucks lives, inform us that he never was in the army, and only immigrated to this country about ten or twelve years ago. His leg was cut off by the Dakota doctors last year to save his life from a fever sore which has been troubling him for years.

Hasping a Jawsmith.

Chicago Herald.

A. G. Wolfenbarger of Nebraska, prohibitionist, finds fault with the church for "resolving" one way and voting another—praying for the support of the church and voting with the saloonkeeper. If the Christian people were only united, says Mr. Wolfenbarger, they could force any party to accede to their demands. True enough, but fortunately they cannot be united for the purpose of enforcing unjust and oppressive demands.

Buffalo County's Worst Enemies.

Chicago Herald.

THE OMAHA BEE gives a nice write up of Buffalo county. The Bee could fill all its columns full about Buffalo county without exhausting the material. The facts and facts set forth one could not infer that the worst thing it is to be "bankrupt." The worst thing it is to be "bankrupt" with the "realistic" lovers.

A Life Saving Law.

Chicago Herald.

The uniform act coming bill has passed the house. This is a life saving measure of vital importance to railroad trainmen and should not be permitted to be smothered in a senate committee. It is the duty of every senator who will assume the responsibility of pushing this humane measure to a speedy passage.

Political Anarchy Kodaked.

Chicago Herald.

That Homestead strike shows that the anarchist element of the democratic party, in congress and in the press, is much larger than the general public was aware of.

CLEVER AND CAUTIOUS.

Chicago Herald.

Minnesota Times: Gladstone, if reports are true, should open a sea bathing resort in Great Britain. He is to have a bare majority.

Philadelphian Record: "Out" yelled the distinguished but puerile why you could be crazy.

He is a Philadelphia politician. "It's you that are out of your base."

Truth: She-Your parents had always objected.

He-Y-But when you came to ask her parents for her hand they found that she was on the other side of the door.

He (simply) didn't stop to see which foot.

Washington Star: "Here we are," remarked the train to the conductor, "again wakened by them as own land."

Why?

"The man over there told me to get away from that creek. He said he was afraid I'd take a notion to go in it, and he didn't want it dammed up."

The man who goes down to races.

And foolishly gets in the soup.

New country.

His vacation away on the stoop.

Pioneer Press: The man who spends an hour trying to kill one vicious and pernicious snake.

And is encouraged, or discouraged, according to the result of the fight. The snake bit the declaration that the progeny of a house fly every six weeks reaches the respect- able grade of full grown.

Philadelphian Times: There's a counting girl in the treasury at Washington who can set fire to a nation in five minutes.

That's nothing. A lot of married men know a woman who can set fire to all the can't say her name.

Attention Globe: When man has a tooth aching, a dentist is a better help than an attorney.

We note that he is a better help than an attorney.

WE CANNOT PRODUCE.

That is how it is added to the article and impoverishes the country.

Effects of Protection.

"Now, there are four natural results of our system of protection that I want to call your attention to. First, it builds up new industries and far more for the people and this even our free trade friends cannot deny. We not only do that in the second place we pay better wages than the other people get in any other country on the face of the globe. Once in a while we find some one who denies this, but it is true whether he denies it or not. Then some of our opponents claim that while our wages sound bigger, everything that a laboring man uses costs more. Now, that is not true. Europe with what he gets for a day's work there than he can here with our wages. I wonder if they really believe it, or if it is some case where a mortgage is given to escape from some pressing want, but in any case out of ten it is but because the owner believes that he can improve himself by doing it, and the money is obtained to effect some improvement that he regards as a judicious investment. He has no intention of comparing the one who hasn't anything to mortgage. Some Financial Facts.

"Another fact is made that we want more money than we can get from the dog and the only way out for the government to manufacture what money we need. This money is not made by the government, but it is made by the government creates money. In cases of necessity it can issue notes and make the people take them, but will anyone want to take them? It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or not. It is the duty of the government to issue notes of peace and prosperity. Some time ago the government made the yard stick measure thirty-six inches. They might change it to two and one half feet if they wanted to. Now our greenback friends practically assert that the government cannot change the yardstick, but make the two and one half feet as long as three feet. The government can produce money but it cannot create value. It cost more to produce a dollar with the dollar with a depreciated currency. It was a case of stern necessity. The republican party made a mistake when they tried to keep it that way. You cheapen the dollar and the man who feels it first is the one who is hurt. The man who can remember back in the fifties when we had money galore, and when we took a dollar we didn't know whether it would be worth a cent tomorrow or