Both Sustain Broken Bones as a Result of a Horse's Fall-Racing at Brighton Beach-Base Ball and Other Sports.

Cuicago, Ill., July 25 .- The Garfield club will not yield without a struggle. The city authorities are equally determined to have the law carried out. In accordance with its declared intertion the club opened the track this afternoon without a license. Tickets were sold just as pleutifully as if the injunction had not been dissolved. The police appeared on the scene with instructions to arrest the association people if an admission fee were charged. This had the effect of inducing the directors to refund the money received, and the gates were thereafter thrown open to all who wished to enter. Inspector Lewis and Captain Mahoney had 100 men present and a patrol wagon outside the gates in case of an emergency. The bookmakers were all there, but did no pool selling and posted no odds. The talent hemselves sat foriornly on their boxes and looking reproachfully at the officers. A quarter of an hour before the last race matters were brought to a test, Four bookles mounted their rostrums and posted odds on the final event. This was according to instructions given by the Gar-field management. Captain Stanton and four of his squad made the arrests and escorted the men to the waiting patrol

Six strangers, thought to be from St. Louis, came to Queen's lake in the morning and ran a three-shell game near the picate grounds during the day. A number of men lost heavily betting on the games. Toward evening trouble arose between one of the manipulators of the shells and an outsider, The trouble soon spread and revolvers and anives were used in a reckless fashion. When the northbound St. Louis train on the Louisville & Nashville road reached Queen's lake the light was at its height. vindows were broken and lamps smashed the train pulled out. The gamblers finally gave up the fight and took to the woods. Two of them were badly hurt, but the full extent of their injuries is not known. Upon the other side Peter Miller, hotel keeper of Valeda, was cut up in a frightful manner and it is thought he cannot live. A mill worker named David Heddiker was

WOUNDED KNEE SURVIVORS TO BE THERE

Their Camp Will Be Prepared in Native Style and Every Effort Will Be Made to Present the Tribe in an Original Manner,

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 25 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-George A. Bartlett, United States marshal at Pine Ridge, is back from a trip to Washington, where he went to consult with the South Dakota congressional delegation relative to having an ressional delegation relative to having an indian village at the World's fair. He says that it is almost certain that the government will provide means for the exhibit. Mr. Bartlett will have charge of the exhibit if it is arranged for. He has been in the Indian country for eighteen years in government positions and probably knows more of their ways than any other white man. His plan is to take a party of some seventy Sioux direct from the reservation to Chicago and have them quartered there in a village of their own construction, pat-terned after the style of the tepes villages In addition to these, he will also have a party of what are termed the "civilized" Indians, those who have been to the govern-ment schools and who are now engaged in ment schools and who are now engaged in agricultural pursuits or in government work, to show the contrast. Those in his party will probably be of the number who took part in the uprising of a year ago. Bartlett had much to do with putting down of the uprising, and was one of the few white men who visited the camp of the hostiles in the Bad Lands to confer with them for peace measures.

EXPERTITESTIMONY.

Progress of the Trial of Alice Mitchell for the Murder of Freda Ward. MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 25.—The usual pla-cidity of the court was, overcome and the court and coursel was shrown into a contention that developed targe proportions in the Alice Mitchell ease today. Immediately after the opening of court Dr. B. F. Turner was placed on the stand. He has made the diseases of the mind a specialty. In a person with a predisposing influence, any aggravation was liable to occasion a violent outburst. A pereditary tendency can show itself in almost any emotional manner. In answer to a hypothetical question, fitting a part of the history of Alice Mitchell and her mother, the witness said if the facts were true he would say that the child inherited the same mental derangement manifested by the mother in a more or less degree.

Concerning the history of Alice Mitchell's idea and plan to marry Freda Ward, the witness said that he would regard it as a manifestation of the same tendency in the mother and would regard the killing as an act of insanity, adding that he should re-gard said insanity as permanent, although it might never be incled to evidence itself again, but might, when aggravated, break out at any time. He had visited Alice-Mitchell, and during his first visit had in-formed Miss Mitchell she could not marry Freda. She said she could. He asked her if she did not know when people married they anticipated having children. She said yes, but they did not expect to have any. He did not consider the relations between the defendant and Freda Ward of a compromising character. He said she was not as mature as her age might indicate, taking in some cuseal like a person four or five years her manifestation of the same tendency in the cases like a person four or five years her junior. He classified her insanity as "impera-tive insanity." He aid not think the fact that a certain girl passionately loved an-other girl evidence of insanity. When Dr. Turner stated that he told Alice Mitchell as an excuse for his inquiry that the matter would have to be investigated some time or other, Judge Dubose turned to the attor-neys and said: "All of his testimony is in-admisiable."

He said he had examined the authorities closely. A rule as laid down by Wharton was read by the judge and the evidence was clearly excluded on the ground of contemplated liti gation. After arguments by the defendant's counsel Judge Dubose decided the testimony inadmissible and the cross-examination of Dr. Turner was resumed, but nothing new was developed. Miss Lillie Johnson was placed on the stand and being interrogated concerning manifestations of love between Alice and Freds said once when the two girls were in a hammock at Gold Dust hugging and kiss-ing Alice said: "Freds, you ought to be ashamed to hug and kiss me in public." Freds replied: "If you love me you ought uot to be ashamed to have me kiss you in public." public," and the osculating proceeded. Court then adjourged uptil tomorrow, when more expert testimony will be introduced. SLEPT IN AN OPEN WINDOW.

Luke Morgan's Fatal Search After Surcease Prom Heat.

Just as the little clock in the morgue struck the half hour after 10 o'clock last night the unkle of the telephone bell was heard by the coroner's night watchers. "A man has fallen from the window of the Home hotel and is dead," was the message which came over the wires. Two or three of Coroner Maul's men started for the scene. The Home hotel is located at 412 South Thirteenth street, and is more of a private lodging house than a regular hotel. Directly in front of the doorway lav a large well built, healthy man in a great pool of blood, dead. His name was Luke Morgan, a native of Virginia, but for some years past a resident of Nebraska. Morgan had lived at the house for the past eighteen months, and to all appearances was a sober, industrious man. Owing to the excessive heat he had taken a

Will Test Their Strength.

Today it was suddenly announced by some of the opponents of the bill that the senators above referred to would secure the oppor-tunity they wisbed for, and right speedily, too. This announcement was followed by the proposition of Mr. Wolcott to refer the bill to the finance committee. Among the arguments in favor of refer-ence are the following: The original bill was certainly a revenue bill, and its rev-enue features had never been passed upon by the finance committee Among the by the finance committee. Amendments have also b en added to the original bill and in such number and of such scope that few senators are prepared to assert that they understand exactly what the bill in its present shape means. This fact, it is urged, gives reasons for the reference of the bill to the finance committee, in order that an authoritative declaration may be had as to Its probable effect upon the finances of the country. Using this and other arguments, postponements of the anti-option bill have been making inroads upon the strength of the measure, and this afternoon it was asserted that when the vote is taken upon Mr. Wolcott's motion it will prevail. But if it should not, the opponents of the bill will have lost no ground, they will be where they are now-in opposition to take against time to defer action on the bill until the next ses-

Mr. Wolcott fully expects that Mr. Allison will tomorrow renew the motion he made, but withdrew today, to lay the motion to refer the bill on the table, and that will bring the matter to a head immediately and test the strength of the opposition.

RINGLING BROTHERS' SHOW.

A Notable Combination of Arenic, Hippo-dromic and Menagerial Features. The Ringling Brothers combined circus, hippodrome and menagerie is a colossal institution. It is a congress of many shows in one. It is the best all-round circus now before the public: the thrilling interest of the hippodrome races have never been equalled by any other show, and the menagerie is a never-ending source of entertainment to those interested in the rare and curious attributes of the dumb creation. The latter department of the show has been selected with great care, and nothing but the best spenimens of each species have been secured. The elephants are notable for their size and intelligence. One of the novel features of the horse fair is a noble Percheron stallion, strong-limbed and massive, with snow white mane and tail, over nine feet in length. So remarkable an instance of hirsute growth in horse has never before been recorded, and "Prince Chaldean" is always the centre of admiring groups. Horsemen in particular exhibit great interest in this magnificent anexhibit great interest in this magnificent an-imal, as his pedigree is such as to cutitle him to a high blace among the world's famous stock. Confusion is avoided, however, by having the acts in the outside

The horses seem to share the spirit of emulation felt by the drivers and strain every nerve and muscle to win. There were dancing, games and amusements of various kinds until time for the return home. Then came the trouble. Some of the pienickers had a little row among themselves, but it would not have amounted to anything had not some of the Plattsmouth folks attempted to arbitrate the differences. This was resented, and quite a udge advocate. scrap followed. No one was burt, how-ever, and the Omaha paople soon forgo; the event. New Scheme of Enlistment,

The subject of the quantity and quality of the men enlisted has been for many years me of great importance and value army and every proper, practical effort has been made by War department officials to devise ways and means to secure a sufficient number of desirable men for the service, it being regarded by experienced officers as the most serious question presented for their consideration, it appearing that existing methods of disseminating information concerning the duties and obligations as well as privileges, and prospects of soldiers are imperfect or ineffectual, and that the services of many respectable young men of the country, imbued with the mili-tary idea are not obtained for the army. Secretary Elkins has directed the formation of traveling recruiting parties whose duty it will be, under the guidance of commanding officers of regiments, to visit rural districts which connot be canvassed by stationary recruiting officers. The War department believes that the system of traveling recruiting parties has many advantages over the present fixed system and is well calculated to produce excellent results, particularly with reference to the antecedents, character and age of men obtained. Secretary Elkins has therefore ordered that the present method of regimental recruiting be made to include within certain territorial limits traveling recruiting parties to be composed officer and a party of eight or ten men and to proceed from point to point at prescribed times for the purpose of enlisting Second Lieutenant W.
