HOW IOWA LAWYERS STAND TOGETHER |

Peter Egan Stole Fifty Cents But Several Attorneys Thought it Worth Two Hundred Dollars to Defend Him -Local News.

Justice Cones heard the testimony yesterdsy in the case of Emmet Tipley against Peter Egan, in which Tinley was suing to collect $100 from Egan as attorney fees for his services in defending Egan when he was on trial in the district court a few mouths ago on the charge of holding up a man named Sheriton and robbing him of $30. After a trial of the case the jury, in order to avoid a disagreement, compromised and found Egan guilty of the simple larceny of 50 cents, which Egan bad already admitted baving taken while on the witness stand. Instead of going to the penitentiary Egan was consequently sent to the county jail for a thirty day term. Thinky was unable to collect his fee, and so brought suit for the amount. The trial yesterday was attended by something less than a dozen lawyers besides a number of other interested spectators. All the attorneys were subconned as witnesses and they agreed unanimonsly that $200 would have been a very mild dose for Tinley to have dished up to Egan in the shape of a fee. The trial occu-pied the entire afternoon. After being out for fifteen minutes the jury returned a ver-dict giving the attorney the full amount of his claim.

Conductor Rolla Shugart has distinguished himself by implicitly obeying the instruc tions of Colonel Reed to prevent any misconduct on the Manawa motors. He has recently been compelled to eject two or three unruly characters, and on Saturday evening used his bell punch with excellent effect or the skull of a fellow who persisted in the use of profane language. Last evening he had an exciting interview with a stockman named Matt Goodwin, who made an insult-ing remark to three lady passengers. Conductor Shugart promptly stopped the train a mile or two from town and left the disagreeable passenger in the weeds. Regular patrons of the motor line are discussing the project of giving the plucky conductor a handsome testimonial of their appreciation of his good work. Goodwin, on the other hand, threatens to commence a damage suit against the motor people for being so uncer-emoniously kicked off the train.

Righwaymen as Benefactors. Marshal Templeton, who has just returned from a visit to Siloam Springs, Mo., tells a good many interesting things about the natives of that part of the universe. It is within a short distance of the place where the notorious James boys plied their trade a number of years ago, and reminiscences of them are by no means uncommon among the people who made their acquaintance under circumstances more or less exciting. Accoroing to one of these stories there was an old lady living near Siloam whose little farm was encumbered with a mortgage for $1,000, which she had no means of paying off. It was only a day or two until the officers were coming to seize the place under the mortgage, when a couple of horsemen rode up and asked for a meal for themselves and their animals. The woman, like everyone the trouble which she was having, and how she expected her farm to be taken away from her the following day.

"Oh, well," said one of the men, "I wouldn't feel any anxiety over that, I think we can fix the matter up in some way." They rode away, but soon returned and putting a purse Sontaining $1,000 into her hand, they asked her to accept it in return for her hospitality and to use it in paying off the mortgage. The next day the officer came to levy on the property and with her heart full of thank-giving to the unknown friends who had helped her she paid him his $1,000 and sent him on his way. At a lonely point in the road he was met by a couple of gentlemanly highwaymen who bore a most suspicious resemblance to the two kind hearted wayfarers and was compelled to shell out the $1,000 he carried in his pocket, at the end of two seven-shooters.

The mortgage was paid off, the woman had her farm and the James boys had their money, so that everything was levely.

What the man who held the mortgage thought of the transaction is not stated, but the story is still told by the Sucamites as a sample of how much good a little money can do if used judiciously.

Rainey was not anxious to retain Fegley as a neighbor of his, and so after a short conference he agreed to dismiss the case he had started in Swearingen's court on condition that Fegley would leave the city. To this Fegiev consented, and he at once struck out for the setting sun. Fegley made some very vicious threats as to what he would do to Sheriff Hazen and County Attorney Organ as soon as he got out. SOUTH OMAHA.

Prospects of an Increased Stock Shipment From the Northwest.

W. N. Babcock, manager of the Union stock yards, returned yesterday from a ten days trip in the northwest. He visited severai towns in northwest Nebraska and South Dakota. Mr. Babcock was found yesterday in his private office and in front yesterday in his private office and in front of him was a mass of correspondence which had accumulated during his absence. He said to a reporter of his trip: "I had a pleasant and successful trip. The excessive heat prevented my visiting several ranges which I had intended to, but I found by diligent inquiry and research that the stock interests of the northwest are not lagging and in a very healthy condition. Stock is in as fine very healthy condition. Stock is in as fine a condition as could be wished for. The supply is very liberal and the movement will be very large and beein early. I found that about 140,000 head of south-ern cattle were driven into South Dakota during the earlier months of the year and will be ready for market earlier than is the general rule. Our business from the northwest has been very good in times past, but I am confident of a large increase from that section this year.

Our gain in receipts during this year will be considerably larger than that of last year, and we are zealously laboring to that end. From what knowledge I acquired during my brief stay in the northwest I am convinced that it was a wise move to increase the capacity of the yards as we have done, and we will need all of it. South Omaha's market is pros-pering, and our efforts for its betterment are bearing fruit each day." Mr. Babcock was well pleased to know that the Missouri Pacific had met the reduced differential rates on live stock to Indian Territory points, and that the Atchi-son had atolished the differential rate on packing house products to Las Vegas, N. M.

Martin Dillon's Miraculous Escape. A gate swinging suddenly open at the Union stock yards yesterday knocked Martin Dillon insensible and before he could be picked up a drove of 100 cattle rushing down the alley passed over his pody, and those near at hand expected to find him dead. He was picked up and carried into the Exchange building and a physician called. He found Dillon badly injured. The gate struck him on the fore-head and the bone was laid bare from just above the right eye to near the top center of the head. His body was a mass of bruises, where he was kicked and trampled upon by the cattle.
Dillon has been employed by the Union

Stock Yards company for some time. He resides on Twenty-sixth street, near M street, and was taken there. His injuries, though serious, will not prove fatal. Mr. and Mrs. Moyer Injured. Last evening William Mover and wife were anchoring a wooden awning to the front of their house at Albright. Mover was on top of the awning and Mrs. Moyer underneath. The fastenings gave way and both were badly injured. The awning came down with a crash and Moyer with it, burying Mrs. Moyer underneath. His left shoulder was dislocated and he was bruised considerably about the body. The lady was rendered insensible and received a long and deep cut upon the head. The injured couple are aged people.

WILL PAY THE LEVY.

Athletic Club Members Will Meet the Assessment Levied by the Directors. The Omaha Athletic club embroglio came to a sudden and felicitous termination at the meeting at the club house Monday evening. The history of this tumultuous epoch in the organization's career is briefly this Owing to an inadequate source of revenue, engendered principally by a laggard payment of dues on the part of a large number of members, the directorate, at recent meetings have been endeavoring to devise ways and means of meeting sundry obligations in a manner that would subserve the best interests of the club and at the same time prove satisfactory to a large element of its membership.

At the last meeting, a week ago, they arrived at the conclusion that this could be best accomplished by levying an assessment of $10 on each member, and at the same time raising the initiation fee from $10 to $25.

By this procedure it was figured out that the club could unburden itself of all pressing indebtedness and place itself on a basis to cater to the tastes of a large majority of its members by a series of attractive and expen sive cards during the autumn and winter months, and at the same time be enabled to quarely incet all exponditures incurred and maintain the excellent character of the organization.

That the directors hit upon not only the most feasible, but the most satisfactory plan to all concerned, was fully attested by its nothing short of recellion was anticipated. President Ames submitted his statement mbodying all that is included in the above and a good deal more, and then the transient thunders of the meaningless storm reverber-ated through the gymnasium. Fiery, vehement and vociferous speeches were made by members imagining themselves aggrieved, and passionate and dispassionate re-sponses were made by different mem-bers of the directorate, until it looked indeed as if much disaster, if not the complete overthrow of the club, was imminent. This end would have been inevita bly reached, too, had not the members in dulging in this meaningless and ill-advises assault upon the main bulwarks of the organ ization, suddenly realized what the outcomof a continuance of the light meant. It cam like an electrical stroke, and like the shift ing of a scene in the theater. or a scene in the theater. The very members who had been kicking at what, they hardly knew, called for a motion put by one of their number to ratify and indorse the action of the directors, and voted yea harder and louder than any one else.

This indorsement of the legitmate work of the directors was ununimous, and thunderous and more than anything else put the stamp of burlesque upon the whole
