Arrangements Completed for Governor McKinley's Reception.

EVERYBODY WILL JOIN IN HIS WELCOME

Business Will Be Suspended and a Half-Holiday Taken to Listen to the Greatest American Exponent of Protection.

Today is McKinley's day in Council Bluffs and the advent of the "Little Giant," as the great protectionist is called, will be the signal for an unusual demonstration, in which all the citizens will take part, regardless of party beliefs. All the business houses will close in the afternoon in order that every one may have an opportunity to hear this famous orator and statesman. An informal meeting of citizens was held in the parlors of the Grand notel vesterday morning and arrangements were made for the speaker's reception. A committee was appointed consisting of Dr. O. W. Gordon, C. M. Harl, Judge J. R. Reed, Scott Rice, W. F. Sapp, jr., R. E. Ingraham, Hon. J. Y. Stone, B. F. Clayton, Frank Shinn, William Arnd and Smith McPherson to meet the Ohio governor on the train and escort him to the Grand hotel in this city. The comnittee was also given power to add to the list the names of any person, who might be able to go over into Nebrask Livith them. able to go over into Nebrask divith them.

Row in Court. An interesting little piece of fist play was een by these who were fortunate enough to be in Justice Hammer's court during yesterday morning's session. H. Pyburn had been bound over to the grand jury, and he presented himself in court with F. A. Jeromo, an Omaha real estate man, whom he had secured as bondsman. When Jerome was introduced as prospective bondsman Hammer refused to accept him, as he said that Pyburn's attorney had been bragging to him how he had induced another justice, before whom the case was formerly pending, to take a "straw man" as bail, referring to Jerome. He said, however, that if Emmet Tinley, the attorney for the prosecuting wit-ness, was willing to take Jerome as bonds-ness, was willing to take Jerome as bonds-man he would not raise any objection.

Tiniev was accordingly sent for, and Jerome's proposition was stated to him, and he was asked whether Jerome would be ac-ceptable to him, "No, he will not," was the reply. "Jerome does not own any property in the city that is worth anything." in the city that is worth anything."
"I own sixty-seven lots in Lafayette addition to the city of Council Bluffs," gently suggested Jerome.

'The whole addition is under the Missouri river, and there isn't a lot in it that is worth five cents," said Tinley. "Your a — liar," shouted Jerome. Before the words had hardly left his lips Tinley struck the Omaha real estate man a terrific blow on the forehead. Jerome retaliated, shape. At this point in the conversation i Lost His Berries and His Time. F. M. Hall, a farmer and fruit grower living east of the city, went to Omaha Tuesday with a load of perries, which he intended to sell. He had hardly uncovered his wares on the west side of the river before he was surrounded by a crowd of bucksters, every one auxious to get the first bid. Some of them bought, more of them talked and all of them are, until Mr. Hall saw that he must get his stuff away in order to prevent bankruptcy. When he got out of the maddening crowd and reckoned up the proceeds of his morning's sales he found that he had lost two crates of berries by quick consumption and had had a bogus 50-cent piece passed off on him into the bargain, so that he was $4.50 worse off than before he started. The Boston Store great clearing sale now in full swing. Bargains await everybody. Fotheringham, Whitelaw

DISTURSS PH SIR REST.

Steepy Bellevue's Connectmen Annoyed by the Speed of the Burlington's Fiyer. The beautiful but sleepy little town of Bellevue has been shaking from center t circumference during the past few days, and all on account of the Burlington's flyer having given it the go by.

There was a time, some forty years ago, when Believue put in claims to being the metropolis of the west, and in those days well it might, for it was the largest town in what was then the territory of Nebraska. But time changed Bellevue. It got a knockout when the territorial capital was located in Omaha, and still another when the Union Pacific bridge was built between this city and Council Bluffs. Cruel time as it rolled off decade after decade left the marks upon the ouce prosperous community. The county seat was moved to Papillion and the two-story stone court house and jail has now become the roosting place for bats and owls. Three of the four churches in which the good preachers of other days taught the Word now stand doorless and windowiess, while the hand of the vandal has with brush and paint, besmeared the walls, by lettering inscriptions, advising people to visit a certain store in Omaha if they desire to buy the finest line of goods.

Streets that were once graded and over which bowled merry coaching parties have now grown up to weeds, and rows of huge oaks, elms and drooping willows alone make the outlines. decade after decade left the marks upon the

the outlines.
The town, without any exception, is most quiet little nook in the country, and al day long during the short summer season, the inhabitants sit in the shade of the wide verandas, which run entirely around their houses, and listen to the hum of the bees, the tinkling of the cow bell worn upon the neck of some mild-eyed bovine which grazes in what was formerly a public square, or discuss the target practice at the rifle range a mile to the north.

There are two stores and a postoffice when the daily mail is received. In other words the town is the ideal picture of Goldsmith's Deserted Villiage.

While time has been working this sad havoc with Bellevue's once bright prospects, one thing has been studiously retained, and this one thing is the city council. Why it exists the oldest settler cannot say. It has been more than thirty years since a new sidewalk was ordered; more than thirty years since a water hydrant was located; more than thirty years since the mayor approved or vetoed a city ordinance; more than thirty years since a councilinan was accused of boodling, but the council remains and it is as aged as the town.

A few days ago this council concluded to take in some new life and in doing so it re-solved that the town of Bellevue should be something more than a mere siding on the something more than a mere siding on the Burlington line.

The mayor, for the town has one of these ornamental figures, went deep down into his trunk and dug up an ordinance that was musty with age. In the document he discovered that it was ordained that no railroad train should pass through the town at a speed exceeding eight miles per hour.

He clapped his hat to his head and rushing into the street cried in lovous tones. ing into the street cried in joyous tones, "Eureka." The people of the town did not comprehend the situation, but were informed that the Burlington would have to come to time; that the flyer which had been humming past the little depot at the rate of fifty miles per hour would have to bend to the reading of the law and reduce its speed accordingly. The officials of the road were notified that any further violation of the time honored ordinance would result in the arrest of high officials as well as train man.

This did not scare the officers of the Burlington road, but fearing that the Bellevueites might make trouble, the officials of the road yesterday appeared before Judge Scott and secured a temporary injunction which restrains the common council of the town of Bellevue from interferring with the running of the trains, and especially the fiyer.

Militia Called Upon to Keep Order-One Man Arrested-The Arrested Men Arraigned and Released-The Anarchists-News Notes.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 3.-The arrest of Yardmaster James Dovey and Superintengent of Open Hearth No. 2 McConneil on the charge of murder this afternoon was attended by the usual interference by the military. Constables Stewart and Ginber came to Homestead with four warrants, two for the above Carnegie officials and the others for Superintendent John O. Potter and George A. Curry. The last named had gone to Pittsburg, but Dovey and Conneil were found at the mill and were taken to their residences, where they donned street suits. Rumors of the arrests had spread through the town and hundreds of the workmen gathered at the different stations.

At Munball the crowd numbered about 200. The Hocking Valley & Cokeville train is que there at 4:05 and about a minute before that time the constables and their prisoners appeared. This was a signal for a great shout and the crowd surged around the station door. A patrol of militia strove to keep back the men and were aided by a few deputy sheriffs. The train was twenty minutes late, and every minute the crowd increased, while muttered threats, especially directed against. Dovor, were plain to be firected against Dovey, were plain to be

As the crowd became more and more turbulent word was sent to Provost Marsial Lieutenant Colonel Meching. He dispatched at once Major Crawford with a company of the Fifteenth regiment to the station. These arrived just as the patrol was fixing bayonets to repel the people. The soldiers marched company front, pushing back the crowd which retired in a surly way. One striker, named Thomas Bowen, became obstreporous and yelled: "Three cheers for Dovey, d—n him."

Before the crowd could give them, Major Crawford signaled to the soldiers, who hastily seized Bowen. He had a penknife in his hand at the time. He was hustled into the station and placed in charge of two deputers. ties. Superintendent Potter has not yet been arrested. The statement that he had been released on bail was erroneous and it is not at all probable that he will surrender himself until tomorrow, as it would necessitate self until tomorrow, as it would necessitate remaining in jail over night. It is said that the reason Potter did not surronder this afternoen is that the evidence is stronger against him than the others. He was on the barges with the Pinkerton men and it is claimed gave the order to fire, For this reason, the other officials were anxious to be released before he gave himself up.
